Fifty Early Poems	349

Introduction

By the time of her death, on 11 February 1963, Sylvia Plath had written a large bulk of poetry. To my knowledge, she never scrapped any of her poetic efforts. With one or two exceptions, she brought every piece she worked on to some final form acceptable to her, rejecting at most the odd verse, or a false head or a false tail. Her attitude to her verse was artisan-like: if she couldn't get a table out of the material, she was quite happy to get a chair, or even a toy. The end product for her was not so much a successful poem, as something that had temporarily exhausted her ingenuity. So this book contains not merely what verse she saved, but—after 1956—all she wrote.

From quite early she began to assemble her poems into a prospective collection, which at various times she presented—always hopeful—to publishers and to the judging committees of contests. The collection evolved through the years in a natural way, shedding old poems and growing new ones, until by the time the contract for The Colossus was signed with Heinemann, in London, on 11 February 1960, this first book had gone through several titles and several changes of substance. 'I had a vision in the dark art lecture room today of the title of my book of poems,' she wrote in early 1958. 'It came to me suddenly with great clarity that The Earthenware Head was the right title, the only title.' She goes on to say, 'Somehow this new title spells for me the release from the old crystal-brittle and sugar-faceted voice of Circus in Three Rings and Two Lovers and a Beachcomber' (the two immediately preceding titles). Two months later she had replaced The Earthenware Head, briefly, with The Everlasting Monday. A fortnight later the title had become Full Fathom Five, 'after what I consider one of my best and most curiously moving poems, about my father-sea god-muse . . . "[The Lady and] The Earthenware Head" is out: once, in England, my "best poem": too fancy, glassy, patchy and rigid—it embarrasses me now—with its ten elaborate epithets for head in five verses.'

During the next year Full Fathom Five was replaced by The Bull of Bendylaw, but then in May 1959 she wrote: 'Changed title of poetry book in an inspiration to The Devil of the Stairs . . . this title encompasses my book and "explains" the poems of despair, which is as deceitful as hope is.' This title lasted until October, when she was at Yaddo, and now on a different kind of inspiration she noted: 'Wrote two poems that pleased me. One a poem to Nicholas' (she expected a son, and titled the poem 'The Manor Garden') 'and one the old father-worship subject' (which she titled 'The Colossus'). 'But different. Weirder. I see a picture, a weather, in these poems. Took "Medallion" out of the early book and made up my mind to start a second book, regardless. The main thing is to get rid of the idea that what I write now is for the old book. That soggy book. So I have three poems for the new, temporarily called The Colossus and other poems.'

This decision to start a new book 'regardless', and get rid of all that she'd written up to then, coincided with the first real breakthrough in her writing, as it is now possible to see. The actual inner process of this quite sudden development is interestingly recorded, in a metaphorical way, in 'Poem for a Birthday', which she was thinking about on 22 October 1959 (cf. note on No. 119). On 4 November she wrote: 'Miraculously I wrote seven poems in my "Poem for a Birthday" sequence, and the two little ones before it, "The Manor Garden" and "The Colossus", I find colorful and amusing. But the manuscript of my [old] book seems dead to me. So far off, so far gone. It has almost no chance of finding a publisher: just sent it out to the seventh. . . . There is nothing for it but to try to publish it in England.' A few days later she noted: 'I wrote a good poem this week on our walk Sunday to the burnt-out spa, a second-book poem. How it consoles me, the idea of a second book with these new poems: "The Manor Garden", "The Colossus", the seven birthday poems and perhaps "Medallion", if I don't stick it in my present book.' But then she realized: 'If I were accepted by a publisher . . . I would feel a need to throw all my new poems in, to bolster the book.'

This last is exactly what happened. With time running out at Yaddo, which had suddenly become so fruitful for her, followed by the upheaval of returning to England in December, she was able to add very little to her 'second' book. So it was this combination of the old poems, which she had inwardly rejected, and the few new ones that seemed to her so different, that James Michie told her—in January 1960—Heinemann would like to publish, under the title of The Colossus.

Once that contract had been signed, she started again, though with a noticeable difference. As before, a poem was always 'a book poem' or 'not a book poem', but now she seemed more relaxed about it, and made no attempt to find an anxious mothering title for the growing brood, over the next two years, until she was overtaken by the inspiration that produced the poems of the last six months of her life.

Some time around Christmas 1962, she gathered most of what are now known as the 'Ariel' poems in a black spring binder, and arranged them in a careful sequence. (At the time, she pointed out that it began with the word

Introduction

'Love' and ended with the word 'Spring'. The exact order of her text is given in the Notes, p. 295.) This collection of hers excluded almost everything she had written between The Colossus and July 1962—or two and a half years' work. She had her usual trouble with a title. On the title-page of her manuscript The Rival is replaced by A Birthday Present which is replaced by Daddy. It was only a short time before she died that she altered the title again, to Ariel.

The Ariel eventually published in 1965 was a somewhat different volume from the one she had planned. It incorporated most of the dozen or so poems she had gone on to write in 1963, though she herself, recognizing the different inspiration of these new pieces, regarded them as the beginnings of a third book. It omitted some of the more personally aggressive poems from 1962, and might have omitted one or two more if she had not already published them herself in magazines—so that by 1965 they were widely known. The collection that appeared was my eventual compromise between publishing a large bulk of her work—including much of the post-Colossus but pre-Ariel verse—and introducing her late work more cautiously, printing perhaps only twenty poems to begin with. (Several advisers had felt that the violent contradictory feelings expressed in those pieces might prove hard for the reading public to take. In one sense, as it turned out, this apprehension showed some insight.)

A further collection, Crossing the Water (1971), contained most of the poems written between the two earlier books; and the same year the final collection, Winter Trees, was published, containing eighteen uncollected poems of the late period together with her verse play for radio, Three Women, which had been written in early 1962.

The aim of the present complete edition, which contains a numbered sequence of the 224 poems written after 1956 together with a further 50 poems chosen from her pre-1956 work, is to bring Sylvia Plath's poetry together in one volume, including the various uncollected and unpublished pieces, and to set everything in as true a chronological order as is possible, so that the whole progress and achievement of this unusual poet will become accessible to readers.

The manuscripts on which this collection is based fall roughly into three phases, and each has presented slightly different problems to the editor.

The first phase might be called her juvenilia and the first slight problem here was to decide where it ended. A logical division occurs, conveniently, at the end of 1955, just after the end of her twenty-third year. The 220 or more poems written before this are of interest mainly to specialists. Sylvia Plath had set these pieces (many of them from her early teens) firmly behind her and would certainly never have republished them herself. Nevertheless, quite a few seem worth preserving for the general reader. At their best, they are as distinctive and as finished as anything she wrote later. They can be intensely artificial, but they are always lit with her unique excitement. And that sense of a deep mathematical inevitability in the sound and texture of her lines was well developed quite early. One can see here, too, how exclusively her writing depended on a supercharged system of inner symbols and images, an enclosed cosmic circus. If that could have been projected visually, the substance and patterning of these poems would have made very curious mandalas. As poems, they are always inspired high jinks, but frequently quite a bit more. And even at their weakest they help chart the full acceleration towards her final take-off.

The greater part of these early poems survive in final typed copies; some others have been recovered from magazines, and still others, not in the typescript and not appearing in any magazine, have turned up in letters and elsewhere. Presumably there may be more, still hidden. The chronological order of the work of this period is often impossible to determine, except in its broadest outlines. A date can sometimes be fixed from a letter or from the date of magazine publication, but she occasionally took poems up again—sometimes years later—and reworked them.

From this whole pre-1956 period, I have selected what seem to be the best, some fifty pieces, and these are printed—as nearly as possible in the order of their writing—at the back of the book, as an appendix. Also given there is a complete list, alphabetically by title, of all the pre-1956 poems that survive, with dates where these can be assigned.

The second phase of Sylvia Plath's writing falls between early 1956 and late 1960. Early 1956 presents itself as a watershed, because from later this year come the earliest poems of her first collection, The Colossus. And from this time I worked closely with her and watched the poems being written, so I am reasonably sure that everything is here. Searching over the years, we have failed to unearth any others. Final typescripts exist for all of them. The chronological order, also, is less in doubt here, though the problem does still linger. Her evolution as a poet went rapidly through successive moults of style, as she realized her true matter and voice. Each fresh phase tended to bring out a group of poems bearing a general family likeness, and is usually associated in my memory with a particular time and place. At each move we made, she seemed to shed a style.

So the sequence of the groups of poems through this period is fairly certain. But I am rarely sure now which poem comes before which in any particular group. In among them, the odd poem will pop up that looks like a leftover from long before. Occasionally, she anticipated herself and produced a poem ('Two Lovers and a Beachcomber by the Real Sea', for instance, in the pre-1956 selection, or 'The Stones' from her 1959 'Poem for a Birthday') which now seems to belong quite a bit later. In several cases I can fix poems precisely to a date and place. (She was writing 'Miss Drake Proceeds to Supper' on a parapet over the Seine on 21 June 1956.) Then again, in one or two cases the dates she left on the manuscripts contradict what seem to me very definite memories. So I have nowhere attempted to affix a date where none appears on the manuscript. Fortunately, after 1956 she kept a full record of the dates on which she sent her poems off to magazines, and she usually did this as soon as possible after writing them, which sets one limit to my approximations of order.

The third and final phase of her work, from the editorial point of view, dates from about September 1960. Around that time, she started the habit of dating the final typescript of each poem. On the two or three occasions when she modified a poem later, she dated the revision as well. From early 1962 she began to save all her handwritten drafts (which up to that time she had systematically destroyed as she went along), and provisional final versions among these are usually dated as well. So throughout this period the calendar sequence is correct, and the only occasional doubt concerns the order of composition among poems written on the same day.

I have resisted the temptation to reproduce the drafts of these last poems in variorum completeness. These drafts are arguably an important part of Sylvia Plath's complete works. Some of the handwritten pages are aswarm with startling, beautiful phrases and lines, crowding all over the place, many of them in no way less remarkable than the ones she eventually picked out to make her final poem. But printing them all would have made a huge volume.

A poem 'for two voices', never produced or published, is given in the notes to the poem 'Ouija' (No. 62), where it is relevant. Some cancelled but quite large fragments or sections of poems are also given in the Notes, and the poet's literal rendering of Rilke's 'A Prophet'. The Notes provide brief biographical information for each of the years 1956-1963, and the background on certain poems. A concordance sets out the contents of each of the four published volumes in terms of the chronological numbering adopted in this complete edition.

Thanks and acknowledgements are due to Judith Kroll, who went over the manuscripts and did much to establish many of the final texts in their detail, and to the Lilly Library, Indiana University, Bloomington, for access to the Sylvia Plath Archive of juvenilia.

Conversation Among the Ruins

Through portico of my elegant house you stalk
With your wild furies, disturbing garlands of fruit
And the fabulous lutes and peacocks, rending the net
Of all decorum which holds the whirlwind back.
Now, rich order of walls is fallen; rooks croak
Above the appalling ruin; in bleak light
Of your stormy eye, magic takes flight
Like a daunted witch, quitting castle when real days break.

Fractured pillars frame prospects of rock;
While you stand heroic in coat and tie, I sit
Composed in Grecian tunic and psyche-knot,
Rooted to your black look, the play turned tragic:
With such blight wrought on our bankrupt estate,
What ceremony of words can patch the havoc?

2

Winter Landscape, with Rooks

Water in the millrace, through a sluice of stone, plunges headlong into that black pond
where, absurd and out-of-season, a single swan floats chaste as snow, taunting the clouded mind which hungers to haul the white reflection down.

The austere sun descends above the fen, an orange cyclops-eye, scorning to look longer on this landscape of chagrin;
feathered dark in thought, I stalk like a rook, brooding as the winter night comes on.

1956

Last summer's reeds are all engraved in ice
as is your image in my eye; dry frost glazes the window of my hurt; what solace can be struck from rock to make heart's waste grow green again? Who'd walk in this bleak place?

Pursuit

Dans le fond des forêts votre image me suit.

RACINE

There is a panther stalks me down:
One day I'll have my death of him;
His greed has set the woods aflame,
He prowls more lordly than the sun.
Most soft, most suavely glides that step,
Advancing always at my back;
From gaunt hemlock, rooks croak havoc:
The hunt is on, and sprung the trap.
Flayed by thorns I trek the rocks,
Haggard through the hot white noon.
Along red network of his veins
What fires run, what craving wakes?

Insatiate, he ransacks the land
Condemned by our ancestral fault,
Crying: blood, let blood be spilt;
Meat must glut his mouth's raw wound.
Keen the rending teeth and sweet
The singeing fury of his fur;
His kisses parch, each paw's a briar,
Doom consummates that appetite.
In the wake of this fierce cat,
Kindled like torches for his joy,
Charred and ravened women lie,
Become his starving body's bait.

Now hills hatch menace, spawning shade;
Midnight cloaks the sultry grove;
The black marauder, hauled by love

On fluent haunches, keeps my speed.
 Behind snarled thickets of my eyes
 Lurks the lithe one; in dreams' ambush
 Bright those claws that mar the flesh
 And hungry, hungry, those taut thighs.
 His ardor snares me, lights the trees,
 And I run flaring in my skin;
 What lull, what cool can lap me in
 When burns and brands that yellow gaze?

I hurl my heart to halt his pace,
 To quench his thirst I squander blood;
 He eats, and still his need seeks food,
 Compels a total sacrifice.
 His voice waylays me, spells a trance,
 The gutted forest falls to ash;
 Appalled by secret want, I rush
 From such assault of radiance.
 Entering the tower of my fears,
 I shut my doors on that dark guilt,
 I bolt the door, each door I bolt.
 Blood quickens, gonging in my ears:

The panther's tread is on the stairs,
 Coming up and up the stairs.

Bucolics

Mayday: two came to field in such wise:
 'A daisied mead,' each said to each,
 So were they one; so sought they couch,
 Across barbed stile, through flocked brown cows.

'No pitchforked farmer, please,' she said;
 'May cockcrow guard us safe,' said he;
 By blackthorn thicket, flower spray
 They pitched their coats, come to green bed

1956

Below: a fen where water stood;
Aslant: their hill of stinging nettle;
Then, honor-bound, mute grazing cattle;
Above: leaf-wraithed white air, white cloud.

All afternoon these lovers lay
Until the sun turned pale from warm,
Until sweet wind changed tune, blew harm:
Cruel nettles stung her ankles raw.

Rueful, most vexed, that tender skin
Should accept so fell a wound,
He stamped and cracked stalks to the ground
Which had caused his dear girl pain.

Now he goes from his rightful road
And, under honor, will depart;
While she stands burning, venom-girt,
In wait for sharper smart to fade.

Tale of a Tub

The photographic chamber of the eye records bare painted walls, while an electric light flays the chromium nerves of plumbing raw;
such poverty assaults the ego; caught naked in the merely actual room,
the stranger in the lavatory mirror puts on a public grin, repeats our name
but scrupulously reflects the usual terror.

Just how guilty are we when the ceiling reveals no cracks that can be decoded? when washbowl maintains it has no more holy calling than physical ablution, and the towel dryly disclaims that fierce troll faces lurk
in its explicit folds? or when the window, blind with steam, will not admit the dark which shrouds our prospects in ambiguous shadow?

1956

Twenty years ago, the familiar tub bred an ample batch of omens; but now water faucets spawn no danger; each crab and octopus—scrabbling just beyond the view, waiting for some accidental break in ritual, to strike—is definitely gone;
the authentic sea denies them and will pluck fantastic flesh down to the honest bone.

We take the plunge; under water our limbs waver, faintly green, shuddering away from the genuine color of skin; can our dreams ever blur the intransigent lines which draw the shape that shuts us in? absolute fact intrudes even when the revolted eye is closed; the tub exists behind our back:
its glittering surfaces are blank and true.

Yet always the ridiculous nude flanks urge the fabrication of some cloth to cover such starkness; accuracy must not stalk at large:
each day demands we create our whole world over,
disguising the constant horror in a coat of many-colored fictions; we mask our past in the green of eden, pretend future's shining fruit can sprout from the navel of this present waste.

In this particular tub, two knees jut up like icebergs, while minute brown hairs rise on arms and legs in a fringe of kelp; green soap navigates the tidal slosh of seas breaking on legendary beaches; in faith
we shall board our imagined ship and wildly sail among sacred islands of the mad till death shatters the fabulous stars and makes us real.

Southern Sunrise

Color of lemon, mango, peach,
These storybook villas
Still dream behind
Shutters, their balconies
Fine as hand-
Made lace, or a leaf-and-flower pen-sketch.

Tilting with the winds,
On arrowy stems,
Pineapple-barked,
A green crescent of palms
Sends up its forked
Firework of fronds.

A quartz-clear dawn
Inch by bright inch
Gilds all our Avenue,
And out of the blue drench
Of Angels' Bay
Rises the round red watermelon sun.

7

Channel Crossing

On storm-struck deck, wind sirens caterwaul;
With each tilt, shock and shudder, our blunt ship
Cleaves forward into fury; dark as anger,
Waves wallop, assaulting the stubborn hull.
Flayed by spray, we take the challenge up,
Grip the rail, squint ahead, and wonder how much longer

Such force can last; but beyond, the neutral view
Shows, rank on rank, the hungry seas advancing.
Below, rocked havoc-sick, voyagers lie
Retching in bright orange basins; a refugee Sprawls, hunched in black, among baggage, wincing
Under the strict mask of his agony.

Far from the sweet stench of that perilous air
 In which our comrades are betrayed, we freeze
 And marvel at the smashing nonchalance
 Of nature: what better way to test taut fiber
 Than against this onslaught, these casual blasts of ice
 That wrestle with us like angels; the mere chance

Of making harbor through this racketing flux
 Taunts us to valor. Blue sailors sang that our journey
 Would be full of sun, white gulls, and water drenched
 With radiance, peacock-colored; instead, bleak rocks
 Jutted early to mark our going, while sky
 Curded over with clouds and chalk cliffs blanched

In sullen light of the inauspicious day.
 Now, free, by hazard's quirk, from the common ill
 Knocking our brothers down, we strike a stance
 Most mock-heroic, to cloak our waking awe
 At this rare rumpus which no man can control:
 Meek and proud both fall; stark violence

Lays all walls waste; private estates are torn,
 Ransacked in the public eye. We forsake
 Our lone luck now, compelled by bond, by blood,
 To keep some unsaid pact; perhaps concern
 Is helpless here, quite extra, yet we must make
 The gesture, bend and hold the prone man's head.

And so we sail toward cities, streets and homes
 Of other men, where statues celebrate
 Brave acts played out in peace, in war; all dangers
 End: green shores appear; we assume our names,
 Our luggage, as docks halt our brief epic; no debt
 Survives arrival; we walk the plank with strangers.

Prospect

Among orange-tile rooftops and chimney pots
the fen fog slips,
gray as rats,

while on spotted branch of the sycamore
two black rooks hunch and darkly glare,

watching for night,
with absinthe eye
cocked on the lone, late, passer-by.

The Queen's Complaint

In ruck and quibble of courtfolk
This giant hulked, I tell you, on her scene
With hands like derricks,
Looks fierce and black as rooks;
Why, all the windows broke when he stalked in.

Her dainty acres he ramped through
And used her gentle doves with manners rude;
I do not know
What fury urged him slay
Her antelope who meant him naught but good.

She spoke most chiding in his ear
Till he some pity took upon her crying;
Of rich attire
He made her shoulders bare
And solaced her, but quit her at cock's crowing.

1956

A hundred heralds she sent out
To summon in her slight all doughty men
Whose force might fit
Shape of her sleep, her thought—
None of that greenhorn lot matched her bright crown.

So she is come to this rare pass
Whereby she treks in blood through sun and squall
And sings you thus:
'How sad, alas, it is
To see my people shrunk so small, so small.'

10

Ode for Ted

From under crunch of my man's boot
green oat-sprouts jut;
he names a lapwing, starts rabbits in a rout
legging it most nimble
to sprigged hedge of bramble, stalks red fox, shrewd stoat.

Loam-humps, he says, moles shunt up from delved worm-haunt;
blue fur, moles have; hefting chalk-hulled flint
he with rock splits open knobbed quartz; flayed colors ripen rich, brown, sudden in sunglint.

For his least look, scant acres yield:
each finger-furrowed field
heaves forth stalk, leaf, fruit-nubbed emerald;
bright grain sprung so rarely he hauls to his will early;
at his hand's staunch hest, birds build.

Ringdoves roost well within his wood,
shirr songs to suit which mood
he saunters in; how but most glad 1956 could be this adam's woman when all earth his words do summon leaps to laud such man's blood!

Firesong

Born green we were
to this flawed garden,
but in speckled thickets, warted as a toad,
spitefully skulks our warden,
fixing his snare
which hauls down buck, cock, trout, till all most fair is tricked to falter in spilt blood.

Now our whole task's to hack some angel-shape worth wearing from his crabbed midden where all's wrought so awry that no straight inquiring could unlock shrewd catch silting our each bright act back to unmade mud cloaked by sour sky.

Sweet salts warped stem of weeds we tackle towards way's rank ending;
scorched by red sun
we heft globed flint, racked in veins' barbed bindings;
brave love, dream
not of staunching such strict flame, but come, lean to my wound; burn on, burn on.

12

Song for a Summer's Day

Through fen and farmland walking
With my own country love
I saw slow flocked cows move

1956

White hulks on their day's cruising;
Sweet grass sprang for their grazing.

The air was bright for looking:
Most far in blue, aloft,
Clouds steered a burnished drift;
Larks' nip and tuck arising
Came in for my love's praising.

Sheen of the noon sun striking
Took my heart as if
It were a green-tipped leaf
Kindled by my love's pleasing
Into an ardent blazing.

And so, together, talking,
Through Sunday's honey-air
We walked (and still walk there—
Out of the sun's bruising)
Till the night mists came rising.

13

Two Sisters of Persephone

Two girls there are: within the house
One sits; the other, without.
Daylong a duet of shade and light
Plays between these.

In her dark wainscoted room
The first works problems on
A mathematical machine.
Dry ticks mark time

As she calculates each sum.
At this barren enterprise
Rat-shrewd go her squint eyes,
Root-pale her meager frame.

1956

Bronzed as earth, the second lies,
Hearing ticks blown gold
Like pollen on bright air. Lulled
Near a bed of poppies,

She sees how their red silk flare
Of petaled blood
Burns open to sun's blade.
On that green altar

Freely become sun's bride, the latter
Grows quick with seed.
Grass-couched in her labor's pride,
She bears a king. Turned bitter

And sallow as any lemon,
The other, wry virgin to the last,
Goes graveward with flesh laid waste,
Worm-husbanded, yet no woman.

Vanity Fair

Through frost-thick weather
This witch sidles, fingers crooked, as if Caught in a hazardous medium that might Merely by its continuing Attach her to heaven.

At eye's envious corner
Crow's-feet copy veining on stained leaf;
Cold squint steals sky's color; while bruit
Of bells calls holy ones, her tongue
Backtalks at the raven

Cleaving furred air
Over her skull's midden; no knife
Rivals her whetted look, divining what conceit
Waylays simple girls, church-going,
And what heart's oven

1956

Craves most to cook batter
Rich in strayings with every amorous oaf,
Ready, for a trinket,
To squander owl-hours on bracken bedding,
Flesh unshriven.

Against virgin prayer
This sorceress sets mirrors enough
To distract beauty's thought;
Lovesick at first fond song,
Each vain girl's driven

To believe beyond heart's flare
No fire is, nor in any book proof
Sun hoists soul up after lids fall shut;
So she wills all to the black king.
The worst sloven

Vies with best queen over
Right to blaze as satan's wife;
Housed in earth, those million brides shriek out.
Some burn short, some long,
Staked in pride's coven.

15

Strumpet Song

With white frost gone
And all green dreams not worth much,
After a lean day's work
Time comes round for that foul slut:
Mere bruit of her takes our street
Until every man,
Red, pale or dark,
Veers to her slouch.

Mark, I cry, that mouth
Made to do violence on,
That seamed face
Askew with blotch, dint, scar

1956

Struck by each dour year.
Walks there not some such one man
As can spare breath
To patch with brand of love this rank grimace
Which out from black tarn, ditch and cup
Into my most chaste own eyes
Looks up.

16

Tinker Jack and the Tidy Wives

'Come lady, bring that pot
Gone black of polish
And whatever pan this mending master
Should trim back to shape.
I'll correct each mar
On silver dish,
And shine that kettle of copper
At your fireside
Bright as blood.

'Come lady, bring that face
Fallen from luster.
Time's soot in bleared eye
Can be made to glister
For small charge.
No form's gone so awry,
Crook-back or bandy-leg,
But Tinker Jack can forge
Beauty from hag.

'Whatever scath
Fierce fire's wrought
Jack will touch up
And fit for use.
What scar's been knocked
Into cracked heart
Jack shall repair.

1956

'And if there be
Young wives still blithe,
Still fair,
Whose labor's not yet smoked
Their fine skin sere,
From their white heat
Before he part
Let Jack catch fire.'

17

Faun

Haunched like a faun, he hooded
From grove of moon-glint and fen-frost
Until all owls in the twigged forest
Flapped black to look and brood
On the call this man made.

No sound but a drunken coot
Lurching home along river bank.
Stars hung water-sunk, so a rank
Of double star-eyes lit
Boughs where those owls sat.

An arena of yellow eyes
Watched the changing shape he cut,
Saw hoof harden from foot, saw sprout
Goat-horns. Marked how god rose
And galloped woodward in that guise.

18

Street Song

By a mad miracle I go intact
Among the common rout
Thronging sidewalk, street,
And bickering shops;
Nobody blinks a lid, gapes,
Or cries that this raw flesh

1956

Reeks of the butcher's cleaver,
Its heart and guts hung hooked
And bloodied as a cow's split frame
Parceled out by white-jacketed assassins.

Oh no, for I strut it clever
As a greenly escaped idiot,
Buying wine, bread,
Yellow-casqued chrysanthemums—
Arming myself with the most reasonable items
To ward off, at all cost, suspicions
Roused by thorned hands, feet, head,
And that great wound
Squandering red
From the flayed side.

Even as my each mangled nerve-end
Trills its hurt out
Above pitch of pedestrian ear,
So, perhaps I, knelled dumb by your absence,
Alone can hear
Sun's parched scream,
Every downfall and crash
Of gutted star,
And, more daft than any goose,
This cracked world's incessant gabble and hiss.

19

Letter to a Purist

That grandiose colossus who Stood astride
The envious assaults of sea (Essaying, wave by wave,
Tide by tide,
To undo him, perpetually),
Has nothing on you,
O my love,

O my great idiot, who
 With one foot
 Caught (as it were) in the muck-trap
 Of skin and bone,
 Dithers with the other way out
 In preposterous provinces of the madcap
 Cloud-cuckoo,
 Agawp at the impeccable moon.

Soliloquy of the Solipsist

I?
 I walk alone;
 The midnight street
 Spins itself from under my feet;
 When my eyes shut
 These dreaming houses all snuff out;
 Through a whim of mine
 Over gables the moon's celestial onion
 Hangs high.

I
 Make houses shrink
 And trees diminish
 By going far; my look's leash
 Dangles the puppet-people
 Who, unaware how they dwindle,
 Laugh, kiss, get drunk,
 Nor guess that if I choose to blink
 They die.

I
 When in good humor,
 Give grass its green
 Blazon sky blue, and endow the sun
 With gold;
 Yet, in my wintriest moods, I hold
 Absolute power

1956

To boycott color and forbid any flower
To be.

I
Know you appear
Vivid at my side,
Denying you sprang out of my head,
Claiming you feel
Love fiery enough to prove flesh real,
Though it's quite clear
All your beauty, all your wit, is a gift, my dear,
From me.

Dialogue Between Ghost and Priest

In the rectory garden on his evening walk Paced brisk Father Shawn. A cold day, a sodden one it was In black November. After a sliding rain
Dew stood in chill sweat on each stalk,
Each thorn; spiring from wet earth, a blue haze
Hung caught in dark-webbed branches like a fabulous heron.

Hauled sudden from solitude,
Hair prickling on his head,
Father Shawn perceived a ghost
Shaping itself from that mist.

'How now,' Father Shawn crisply addressed the ghost
Wavering there, gauze-edged, smelling of woodsmoke,
'What manner of business are you on?
From your blue pallor, I'd say you inhabited the frozen waste
Of hell, and not the fiery part. Yet to judge by that dazzled look,
That noble mien, perhaps you've late quitted heaven?'

In voice furred with frost,
Ghost said to priest:
'Neither of those countries do I frequent:
Earth is my haunt.'

'Come, come,' Father Shawn gave an impatient shrug,
 'I don't ask you to spin some ridiculous fable
 Of gilded harps or gnawing fire: simply tell
 After your life's end, what just epilogue
 God ordained to follow up your days. Is it such trouble
 To satisfy the questions of a curious old fool?'

'In life, love gnawed my skin
 To this white bone;
 What love did then, love does now:
 Gnaws me through.'

'What love,' asked Father Shawn, 'but too great love
 Of flawed earth-flesh could cause this sorry pass?
 Some damned condition you are in:
 Thinking never to have left the world, you grieve
 As though alive, shriveling in torment thus
 To atone as shade for sin that lured blind man.'

'The day of doom
 Is not yet come.
 Until that time
 A crock of dust is my dear home.'

'Fond phantom,' cried shocked Father Shawn,
 'Can there be such stubbornness—
 A soul grown feverish, clutching its dead body-tree
 Like a last storm-crossed leaf? Best get you gone
 To judgment in a higher court of grace.
 Repent, depart, before God's trump-crack splits the sky.'

From that pale mist
 Ghost swore to priest:
 'There sits no higher court
 Than man's red heart.'

The Glutton

He, hunger-stung, hard to slake,
So fitted is for my black luck
(With heat such as no man could have
And yet keep kind)
That all merit's in being meat
Seasoned how he'd most approve;
Blood's broth,
Filched by his hand,
Choice wassail makes, cooked hot,
Cupped quick to mouth;
Though prime parts cram each rich meal,
He'll not spare
Nor scant his want until Sacked larder's gone bone-bare.

23

Monologue at 3 a.m.

Better that every fiber crack and fury make head, blood drenching vivid couch, carpet, floor and the snake-figured almanac vouching you are a million green counties from here, than to sit mute, twitching so under prickling stars, with stare, with curse

blackening the time
goodbyes were said, trains let go,
and I, great magnanimous fool, thus wrenched from my one kingdom.

Miss Drake Proceeds to Supper

No novice
 In those elaborate rituals
 Which allay the malice
 Of knotted table and crooked chair,
 The new woman in the ward
 Wears purple, steps carefully
 Among her secret combinations of eggshells
 And breakable hummingbirds,
 Footing sallow as a mouse
 Between the cabbage-roses
 Which are slowly opening their furred petals
 To devour and drag her down
 Into the carpet's design.

With bird-quick eye cocked askew
 She can see in the nick of time
 How perilous needles grain the floorboards
 And outwit their brambled plan;
 Now through her ambushed air,
 Adazzle with bright shards
 Of broken glass,
 She edges with wary breath,
 Fending off jag and tooth,
 Until, turning sideways,
 She lifts one webbed foot after the other
 Into the still, sultry weather
 Of the patients' dining room.

Recantation

'Tea leaves I've given up,
 And that crooked line
 On the queen's palm
 Is no more my concern.
 On my black pilgrimage
 This moon-pocked crystal ball
 Will break before it help;

1956

Rather than croak out
What's to come,
My darling ravens are flown.

'Forswear those freezing tricks of sight
And all else I've taught
Against the flower in the blood:
Not wealth nor wisdom stands
Above the simple vein,
The straight mouth.
Go to your greenhorn youth
Before time ends
And do good
With your white hands.'

26

The Shrike

When night comes black
Such royal dreams beckon this man
As lift him apart
From his earth-wife's side
To wing, sleep-feathered,
The singular air,
While she, envious bride,
Cannot follow after, but lies
With her blank brown eyes starved wide,
Twisting curses in the tangled sheet
With taloned fingers,
Shaking in her skull's cage
The stuffed shape of her flown mate
Escaped among moon-plumaged strangers;
So hungered, she must wait in rage
Until bird-racketing dawn
When her shrike-face
Leans to peck open those locked lids, to eat
Crowns, palace, all
That nightlong stole her male,
And with red beak
Spike and suck out
Last blood-drop of that truant heart.

Alicante Lullaby

In Alicante they bowl the barrels
 Bumblingly over the nubs of the cobbles
 Past the yellow-paella eateries,
 Below the ramshackle back-alley balconies,
 While the cocks and hens
 In the roofgardens
 Scuttle repose with crowns and cackles.

Kumquat-colored trolleys ding as they trundle
 Passengers under an indigo fizzle
 Needling spumily down from the wires:
 Alongside the sibilant harbor the lovers
 Hear loudspeakers boom
 From each neon-lit palm
 Rumbas and sambas no ear-flaps can muffle.

O Cacophony, goddess of jazz and of quarrels,
 Crack-throated mistress of bagpipes and cymbals,
 Let be your con brios, your capricciosos,
Crescendos, cadenzas, prestos and prestissimos,
 My head on the pillow
 (Piano, pianissimo)
 Lullayed by susurrous lyres and viols.

Dream with Clam-Diggers

This dream budded bright with leaves around the edges,
 Its clear air winnowed by angels; she was come Back to her early sea-town home
 Scathed, stained after tedious pilgrimages.

Barefoot, she stood, in shock of that returning,
 Beside a neighbor's house
 With shingles burnished as glass,
 Blinds lowered on that hot morning.

1956

No change met her : garden terrace, all summer
Tanged by melting tar,
Sloped seaward to plunge in blue; fed by white fire,
The whole scene flared welcome to this roamer.

High against heaven, gulls went wheeling soundless
Over tidal-flats where three children played
Silent and shining on a green rock bedded in mud,
Their fabulous heyday endless.

With green rock gliding, a delicate schooner
Decked forth in cockle-shells,
They sailed till tide foamed round their ankles
And the fair ship sank, its crew knelled home for dinner.

Plucked back thus sudden to that far innocence,
She, in her shabby travel garb, began
Walking eager toward water, when there, one by one,
Clam-diggers rose up out of dark slime at her offense.

Grim as gargoyles from years spent squatting at sea's border
In wait amid snarled weed and wrack of wave
To trap this wayward girl at her first move of love,
Now with stake and pitchfork they advance, flint eyes fixed on murder.

29

Wreath for a Bridal

What though green leaves only witness
Such pact as is made once only; what matter
That owl voice sole 'yes', while cows utter Low moos of approve; let sun surpliced in brightness
Stand stock still to laud these mated ones
Whose stark act all coming double luck joins.

Couched daylong in cloisters of stinging nettle
They lie, cut-grass assaulting each separate sense
With savor; coupled so, pure paragons of constance,
This pair seek single state from that dual battle.
Now speak some sacrament to parry scruple
For wedlock wrought within love's proper chapel.

Call here with flying colors all watchful birds
 To people the twigged aisles; lead babel tongues
 Of animals to choir: 'Look what thresh of wings
 Wields guard of honor over these!' Starred with words
 Let night bless that luck-rooted mead of clover
 Where, bedded like angels, two burn one in fever.

From this holy day on, all pollen blown
 Shall strew broadcast so rare a seed on wind
 That every breath, thus teeming, set the land
 Sprouting fruit, flowers, children most fair in legion
 To slay spawn of dragon's teeth: speaking this promise,
 Let flesh be knit, and each step hence go famous.

Epitaph for Fire and Flower

You might as well haul up
 This wave's green peak on wire
 To prevent fall, or anchor the fluent air
 In quartz, as crack your skull to keep
 These two most perishable lovers from the touch
 That will kindle angels' envy, scorch and drop
 Their fond hearts charred as any match.

Seek no stony camera-eye to fix
 The passing dazzle of each face
 In black and white, or put on ice
 Mouth's instant flare for future looks;
 Stars shoot their petals, and suns run to seed,
 However you may sweat to hold such darling wrecks
 Hived like honey in your head.

Now in the crux of their vows hang your ear,
 Still as a shell: hear what an age of glass
 These lovers prophesy to lock embrace
 Secure in museum diamond for the stare
 Of astounded generations; they wrestle
 To conquer cinder's kingdom in the stroke of an hour
 And hoard faith safe in a fossil.

1956

But though they'd rivet sinews in rock
And have every weathercock kiss hang fire
As if to outflame a phoenix, the moment's spur
Drives nimble blood too quick
For a wish to tether: they ride nightlong
In their heartbeats' blazing wake until red cock
Plucks bare that comet's flowering.

Dawn snuffs out star's spent wick,
Even as love's dear fools cry evergreen,
And a languor of wax congeals the vein
No matter how fiercely lit; staunch contracts break
And recoil in the altering light: the radiant limb
Blows ash in each lover's eye; the ardent look Blackens flesh to bone and devours them.

Fiesta Melons

In Benidorm there are melons,
Whole donkey-carts full

Of innumerable melons,
Ovals and balls,

Bright green and thumpable
Laced over with stripes

Of turtle-dark green.
Choose an egg-shape, a world-shape,

Bowl one homeward to taste
In the whitehot noon:

Cream-smooth honeydews,
Pink-pulped whoppers,

Bump-rinded cantaloupes
With orange cores.

1956

Each wedge wears a studding
Of blanched seeds or black seeds

To strew like confetti
Under the feet of

This market of melon-eating
Fiesta-goers.

32

The Goring

Arena dust rusted by four bulls' blood to a dull redness,
The afternoon at a bad end under the crowd's truculence,
The ritual death each time botched among dropped capes, ill-judged stabs,

The strongest will seemed a will toward ceremony. Obese, dark-
Faced in his rich yellows, tassels, pompons, braid, the picador

Rode out against the fifth bull to brace his pike and slowly bear
Down deep into the bent bull-neck. Cumbersome routine, not artwork.
Instinct for art began with the bull's horn lofting in the mob's
Hush a lumped man-shape. The whole act formal, fluent as a dance.
Blood faultlessly broached redeemed the sullied air, the earth's grossness.

33

The Beggars

Nightfall, cold eye—neither disheartens
These goatish tragedians who Hawk misfortune like figs and chickens

And, plaintiff against each day, decry
Nature's partial, haphazard thumb.
Under white wall and Moorish window

Grief's honest grimace, debased by time,
Caricatures itself and thrives
On the coins of pity. At random

1956

A beggar stops among eggs and loaves,
Props a leg-stump upon a crutch,
Jiggles his tin cup at the goodwives.

By lack and loss these beggars encroach
On spirits tenderer than theirs,
Suffering-toughened beyond the fetch

Of finest conscience.

Nightfall obscures

The bay's sheer, extravagant blue,
White house and almond grove. The beggars

Outlast their vilest star, wryly
And with a perfidious verve
Baffle the dark, the pitying eye.

Spider

Anansi, black busybody of the folktales,
You scuttle out on impulse
Blunt in self-interest
As a sledge hammer, as a man's bunched fist,
Yet of devils the cleverest
To get your carousals told:
You spun the cosmic web: you squint from center field.

Last summer I came upon your Spanish cousin,
Notable robber baron,
Behind a goatherd's hut:
Near his small stonehenge above the ants' route,
One-third ant-size, a leggy spot,
He tripped an ant with a rope
Scarcely visible. About and about the slope

Of his redoubt he ran his nimble filament,
Each time round winding that ant
Tighter to the cocoon
Already veiling the gray spool of stone

1956

From which coils, caught ants waved legs in Torpid warning, or lay still
And suffered their livelier fellows to struggle.

Then briskly scaled his altar tiered with tethered ants,
Nodding in a somnolence
Appalling to witness,
To the barbarous outlook, from there chose
His next martyr to the gross cause
Of concupiscence. Once more
With black alacrity bound round his prisoner.

The ants—a file of comers, a file of goers—
Persevered on a set course
No scruple could disrupt,
Obeying orders of instinct till swept Off-stage and infamously wrapped
Up by a spry black deus
Ex machina. Nor did they seem deterred by this.

35

Spinster

Now this particular girl
During a ceremonious April walk
With her latest suitor
Found herself, of a sudden, intolerably struck
By the birds' irregular babel
And the leaves' litter.

By this tumult afflicted, she Observed her lover's gestures unbalance the air,
His gait stray uneven
Through a rank wilderness of fern and flower.
She judged petals in disarray,
The whole season, sloven.

How she longed for winter then!—
Scrupulously austere in its order
Of white and black
Ice and rock, each sentiment within border,

1956

And heart's frosty discipline
Exact as a snowflake.

But here—a burgeoning
Unruly enough to pitch her five queenly wits
Into vulgar motley—
A treason not to be borne. Let idiots
Reel giddy in bedlam spring:
She withdrew neatly.

And round her house she set
Such a barricade of barb and check
Against mutinous weather
As no mere insurgent man could hope to break
With curse, fist, threat
Or love, either.

36

Rhyme

I've got a stubborn goose whose gut's
Honeycombed with golden eggs,
Yet won't lay one.
She, addled in her goose-wit, struts
The barnyard like those taloned hags
Who ogle men

And crimp their wrinkles in a grin,
Jangling their great money bags.
While I eat grits
She fattens on the finest grain.
Now, as I hone my knife, she begs Pardon, and that's

So humbly done, I'd turn this keen
Steel on myself before profit
By such a rogue's
Act, but—how those feathers shine!

Exit from a smoking slit
Her ruby dregs.

Departure

The figs on the fig tree in the yard are green;
 Green, also, the grapes on the green vine
 Shading the brickred porch tiles.
 The money's run out.

How nature, sensing this, compounds her bitters.
 Ungifted, ungrieved, our leavetaking.
 The sun shines on unripe corn.
 Cats play in the stalks.

Retrospect shall not soften such penury —
 Sun's brass, the moon's steely patinas,
 The leaden slag of the world —
 But always expose

The scraggy rock spit shielding the town's blue bay
 Against which the brunt of outer sea
 Beats, is brutal endlessly.
 Gull-fouled, a stone hut

Bares its low lintel to corroding weathers:
 Across the jut of ochreous rock
 Goats shamble, morose, rank-haired,
 To lick the sea-salt.

Maudlin

Mud-mattressed under the sign of the hag
 In a clench of blood, the sleep-talking virgin
 Gibbets with her curse the moon's man,
 Faggot-bearing Jack in his crackless egg:

Hatched with a claret hogshead to swig
 He kings it, navel-knit to no groan,
 But at the price of a pin-stitched skin
 Fish-tailed girls purchase each white leg.

Resolve

Day of mist : day of tarnish with hands unserviceable, I wait for the milk van

the one-eared cat laps its gray paw

and the coal fire burns outside, the little hedge leaves are become quite yellow a milk-film blurs

the empty bottles on the windowsill

no glory descends

two water drops poise
on the arched green stem of my neighbor's rose bush

o bent bow of thorns

the cat unsheathes its claws
the world turns

today
today I will not disenchant my twelve black-gowned examiners or bunch my fist
in the wind's sneer.

Landowners

From my rented attic with no earth
 To call my own except the air-motes,
 I malign the leaden perspective
 Of identical gray brick houses,
 Orange roof-tiles, orange chimney pots,
 And see that first house, as if between Mirrors, engendering a spectral
 Corridor of inane replicas,
 Flimsily peopled.

But landowners
 Own their cabbage roots, a space of stars,
 Indigenous peace. Such substance makes
 My eyeful of reflections a ghost's
 Eyeful, which, envious, would define
 Death as striking root on one land-tract;
 Life, its own vaporous wayfarings.

Ella Mason and Her Eleven Cats

Old Ella Mason keeps cats, eleven at last count,
 In her ramshackle house off Somerset Terrace;
 People make queries
 On seeing our neighbor's cat-haunt,
 Saying: 'Something's addled in a woman who accommodates
 That many cats.'

Rum and red-faced as a water-melon, her voice
 Long gone to wheeze and seed, Ella Mason
 For no good reason
 Plays hostess to Tabby, Tom and increase,
 With cream and chicken-gut feasting the palates
 Of finical cats.

Village stories go that in olden days
 Ella flounced about, minx-thin and haughty,
 A fashionable beauty,

1956

Slaying the dandies with her emerald eyes;
Now, run to fat, she's a spinster whose door shuts
On all but cats.

Once we children sneaked over to spy Miss Mason
Napping in her kitchen paved with saucers.
On antimacassars
Table-top, cupboard shelf, cats lounged brazen,
One gruff-timbred purr rolling from furred throats:
Such stentorian cats!

With poke and giggle, ready to skedaddle,
We peered agog through the cobwebbed door
Straight into yellow glare
Of guardian cats crouched round their idol,
While Ella drowsed whiskered with sleek face, sly wits:
Sphinx-queen of cats.

'Look! there she goes, Cat-Lady Mason!'
We snickered as she shambled down Somerset Terrace
To market for her dearies,
More mammoth and blowsy with every season;
'Miss Ella's got loony from keeping in cahoots
With eleven cats.'

But now turned kinder with time, we mark Miss Mason
Blinking green-eyed and solitary
At girls who marry —
Demure ones, lithe ones, needing no lesson
That vain jades sulk single down bridal nights,
Accurst as wild-cats.

Crystal Gazer

Gerd sits spindle-shanked in her dark tent,
Lean face gone tawn with seasons,
Skin worn down to the knucklebones
At her tough trade; without time's taint
The burnished ball hangs fire in her hands, a lens
Fusing time's three horizons.

Two enter to tap her sight, a green pair
 Fresh leaved out in vows: 'Come tell
 How we shall do together,
 Well or ill.' Gerd slants a look at each: most dear,
 Each to the other; fit fiber for stern weather.
 Slowly she spins the ball:

'I see two stalwart apple trees
 Coupled by branches intertwined
 And, springing all about,
 Staunch saplings; to this house, thriving days
 Will bring crop's increase, and harvest fruit
 Follow on kind wind.'

'No hardship then?' he asks. 'We'll take
 Whatever trial's to come, so say true.'
 His bride echoes his word. At that,
 Gerd whirls the ball ablaze: 'Rough storm,' she grants, 'may wreak
 Some havoc on tender limb, and yet
 Strengthen that orchard thereby.'

Their small price paid, these wedded ones
 Walk forth into sun-moneyed air, quickened
 To savor their span of flourishing.
 Aloof, squatting mummy-wise, Gerd scans
 That clairvoyant quartz which once, at her own wishing,
 Exacted her first simple sight for this strict second.

Then, a free-gadding hoyden, Gerd had craved
 To govern more sight than given to a woman
 By wits alone: to foresee her lover's faith
 And their future lot, she braved
 Church curse to ken that crooked oath
 Whereby one hires a demon.

A flash like doomcrack rent night's black:
 God's work stood anchored in that glare
 Focusing all time's day-suns in one
 So beggar Gerd might aim her look
 At gorgon-prospects with power to strike to stone
 Hearts of those who pierced time's core.

1956

What Gerd saw then engraved her mind
Plague-pitted as the moon: each bud
Shriveling to cinders at its source,
Each love blazing blind to its gutted end—
And, fixed in the crystal center, grinning fierce:
Earth's ever-green death's head.

43

November Graveyard

The scene stands stubborn: skinflint trees
Hoard last year's leaves, won't mourn, wear sackcloth, or turn
To elegiac dryads, and dour grass
Guards the hard-hearted emerald of its grassiness
However the grandiloquent mind may scorn
Such poverty. No dead men's cries

Flower forget-me-nots between the stones
Paving this grave ground. Here's honest rot
To unpick the heart, pare bone
Free of the fictive vein. When one stark skeleton
Bulks real, all saints' tongues fall quiet:
Flies watch no resurrections in the sun.

At the essential landscape stare, stare
Till your eyes foist a vision dazzling on the wind:
Whatever lost ghosts flare,
Damned, howling in their shrouds across the moor
Rave on the leash of the starving mind
Which peoples the bare room, the blank, untenanted air.

44

Black Rook in Rainy Weather

On the stiff twig up there
Hunches a wet black rook
Arranging and rearranging its feathers in the rain.
I do not expect a miracle
Or an accident

To set the sight on fire
 In my eye, nor seek
 Any more in the desultory weather some design,
 But let spotted leaves fall as they fall,
 Without ceremony, or portent.

Although, I admit, I desire,
 Occasionally, some backtalk
 From the mute sky, I can't honestly complain:
 A certain minor light may still
 Lean incandescent

Out of kitchen table or chair
 As if a celestial burning took Possession of the most obtuse objects now and then—
 Thus hallowing an interval
 Otherwise inconsequent

By bestowing largesse, honor,
 One might say love. At any rate, I now walk Wary (for it could happen
 Even in this dull, ruinous landscape); skeptical,
 Yet politic; ignorant

Of whatever angel may choose to flare
 Suddenly at my elbow. I only know that a rook
 Ordering its black feathers can so shine
 As to seize my senses, haul
 My eyelids up, and grant

A brief respite from fear
 Of total neutrality. With luck,
 Trekking stubborn through this season
 Of fatigue, I shall Patch together a content

Of sorts. Miracles occur,
 If you care to call those spasmodic
 Tricks of radiance miracles. The wait's begun again,
 The long wait for the angel,
 For that rare, random descent.

The Snowman on the Moor

Stalemated their armies stood, with tottering banners:
She flung from a room
Still ringing with bruit of insults and dishonors

And in fury left him
Glowing at the coal-fire: 'Come find me'—her last taunt.
He did not come

But sat on, guarding his grim battlement.
By the doorstep
Her winter-beheaded daisies, marrowless, gaunt,

Warned her to keep
Indoors with politic goodwill, not haste
Into a landscape

Of stark wind-harrowed hills and weltering mist;
But from the house
She stalked intractable as a driven ghost

Across moor snows
Pocked by rook-claw and rabbit-track: she must yet win
Him to his knees—

Let him send police and hounds to bring her in.
Nursing her rage
Through bare whistling heather, over stiles of black stone,

To the world's white edge
 She came, and called hell to subdue an unruly man
 And join her siege.

It was no fire-blurting fork-tailed demon
 Volcanoed hot
 From marble snow-heap of moor to ride that woman

With spur and knout
 Down from pride's size: instead, a grisly-thewed,
 Austere, corpse-white

Giant heaved into the distance, stone-hatcheted,
 Sky-high, and snow
 Floured his whirling beard, and at his tread

Ambushed birds by Dozens dropped dead in the hedges: o she felt
 No love in his eye,

Worse—saw dangling from that spike-studded belt
 Ladies' sheaved skulls:
 Mournfully the dry tongues clacked their guilt:

'Our wit made fools
 Of kings, unmanned kings' sons: our masteries
 Amused court halls:

For that brag, we barnacle these iron thighs.'
 Throned in the thick
 Of a blizzard, the giant roared up with his chittering trophies.

From brunt of axe-crack
 She shied sideways: a white fizz! and the giant, pursuing,
 Crumbled to smoke.

Humbled then, and crying,
 The girl bent homeward, brimful of gentle talk
 And mild obeying.

Mayflower

Throughout black winter the red haws withstood
 Assault of snow-flawed winds from the dour skies
 And, bright as blood-drops, proved no brave branch dies
 If root's firm-fixed and resolution good.
 Now, as green sap ascends the steepled wood,
 Each hedge with such white bloom astounds our eyes
 As sprang from Joseph's rod, and testifies
 How best beauty's born of hardihood.

So when staunch island stock chose forfeiture
 Of the homeland hearth to plough their pilgrim way
 Across Atlantic furrows, dark, unsure—
 Remembering the white, triumphant spray
 On hawthorn boughs, with goodwill to endure
 They named their ship after the flower of May.

Sow

God knows how our neighbor managed to breed
 His great sow:
 Whatever his shrewd secret, he kept it hid

In the same way
 He kept the sow—impounded from public stare,
 Prize ribbon and pig show.

But one dusk our questions commended us to a tour
 Through his lantern-lit
 Maze of barns to the lintel of the sunk sty door

To gape at it:
 This was no rose-and-larkspurred china suckling
 With a penny slot

For thrifty children, nor dolt pig ripe for heckling,
 About to be
 Glorified for prime flesh and golden crackling

In a parsley halo;
 Nor even one of the common barnyard sows,
 Mire-smirched, blowzy,

Maunching thistle and knotweed on her snout-cruise—
 Bloat tun of milk
 On the move, hedged by a litter of feat-foot ninnies

Shrilling her hulk
 To halt for a swig at the pink teats. No. This vast Brobdingnag bulk

Of a sow lounged belly-bedded on that black compost,
 Fat-ruttid eyes
 Dream-filmed. What a vision of ancient hoghood must

Thus wholly engross
 The great grandam!—our marvel blazoned a knight,
 Helmed, in cuirass,

Unhorsed and shredded in the grove of combat
 By a grisly-bristled
 Boar, fabulous enough to straddle that sow's heat.

But our farmer whistled,
 Then, with a jocular fist thwacked the barrel nape,
 And the green-copse-castled

Pig hove, letting legend like dried mud drop,
 Slowly, grunt
 On grunt, up in the flickering light to shape

A monument
 Prodigious in gluttonies as that hog whose want
 Made lean Lent

Of kitchen slops and, stomaching no constraint,
 Proceeded to swill
 The seven troughed seas and every earthquaking continent.

The Everlasting Monday

*Thou shalt have an everlasting
Monday and stand in the moon.*

The moon's man stands in his shell,
Bent under a bundle
Of sticks. The light falls chalk and cold
Upon our bedspread.
His teeth are chattering among the leprous
Peaks and craters of those extinct volcanoes.

He also against black frost
Would pick sticks, would not rest
Until his own lit room outshone
Sunday's ghost of sun;
Now works his hell of Mondays in the moon's ball,
Fireless, seven chill seas chained to his ankle.

49

Hardcastle Crag

Flintlike, her feet struck
Such a racket of echoes from the steely street,
Tacking in moon-blued crooks from the black
Stone-built town, that she heard the quick air ignite
Its tinder and shake

A firework of echoes from wall
To wall of the dark, dwarfed cottages.
But the echoes died at her back as the walls
Gave way to fields and the incessant seethe of grasses
Riding in the full

Of the moon, manes to the wind,
Tireless, tied, as a moon-bound sea
Moves on its root. Though a mist-wraith wound
Up from the fissured valley and hung shoulder-high Ahead, it fattened

To no family-featured ghost,
 Nor did any word body with a name
 The blank mood she walked in. Once past
 The dream-peopled village, her eyes entertained no dream,
 And the sandman's dust

Lost lustre under her footsoles.
 The long wind, paring her person down
 To a pinch of flame, blew its burdened whistle
 In the whorl of her ear, and like a scooped-out pumpkin crown
 Her head cupped the babel.

All the night gave her, in return
 For the paltry gift of her bulk and the beat
 Of her heart, was the humped indifferent iron
 Of its hills, and its pastures bordered by black stone set
 On black stone. Barns

Guarded broods and litters
 Behind shut doors; the dairy herds
 Knelt in the meadow mute as boulders;
 Sheep drowsed stoneward in their tussocks of wool, and birds,
 Twig-sleeping, wore

Granite ruffs, their shadows
 The guise of leaves. The whole landscape
 Loomed absolute as the antique world was Once, in its earliest sway of lymph and sap,
 Unaltered by eyes,

Enough to snuff the quick
 Of her small heat out, but before the weight
 Of stones and hills of stones could break
 Her down to mere quartz grit in that stony light
 She turned back.

The Thin People

They are always with us, the thin people
Meager of dimension as the gray people

On a movie-screen. They Are unreal, we say:

It was only in a movie, it was only
In a war making evil headlines when we

Were small that they famished and Grew so lean and would not round

Out their stalky limbs again though peace
Plumped the bellies of the mice

Under the meanest table.
It was during the long hunger-battle

They found their talent to persevere
In thinness, to come, later,

Into our bad dreams, their menace
Not guns, not abuses,

But a thin silence.
Wrapped in flea-ridden donkey skins,

Empty of complaint, forever
Drinking vinegar from tin cups: they wore

The insufferable nimbus of the lot-drawn
Scapegoat. But so thin,

So weedy a race could not remain in dreams,
Could not remain outlandish victims

In the contracted country of the head
Any more than the old woman in her mud hut could 1957

Keep from cutting fat meat
Out of the side of the generous moon when it

Set foot nightly in her yard
Until her knife had pared

The moon to a rind of little light.
Now the thin people do not obliterate

Themselves as the dawn
Grayness blues, reddens, and the outline

Of the world comes clear and fills with color.
They persist in the sunlit room: the wallpaper

Frieze of cabbage-roses and cornflowers pales
Under their thin-lipped smiles,

Their withering kingship.
How they prop each other up!

We own no wildernesses rich and deep enough
For stronghold against their stiff

Battalions. See, how the tree boles flatten
And lose their good browns

If the thin people simply stand in the forest,
Making the world go thin as a wasp's nest

And grayer; not even moving their bones.

51

On the Difficulty of Conjuring Up a Dryad

Ravening through the persistent bric-à-brac
Of blunt pencils, rose-sprigged coffee cup,
Postage stamps, stacked books' clamor and yawp,

Neighborhood cockcrow—all nature's prodigal backtalk,
 The vaunting mind
 Snubs impromptu spiels of wind
 And wrestles to impose
 Its own order on what is.

'With my fantasy alone,' brags the importunate head,
 Arrogant among rook-tongued spaces,
 Sheep greens, finned falls, 'I shall compose a crisis
 To stun sky black out, drive gibbering mad
 Trout, cock, ram,
 That bulk so calm
 On my jealous stare,
 Self-sufficient as they are.'

But no hocus-pocus of green angels
 Damasks with dazzle the threadbare eye;
 'My trouble, doctor, is: I see a tree,
 And that damn scrupulous tree won't practice wiles
 To beguile sight:
 E.g., by cant of light
 Concoct a Daphne;
 My tree stays tree.

'However I wrench obstinate bark and trunk
 To my sweet will, no luminous shape
 Steps out radiant in limb, eye, lip,
 To hoodwink the honest earth which pointblank
 Spurns such fiction
 As nymphs; cold vision
 Will have no counterfeit
 Palmed off on it.

'No doubt now in dream-propriety fall some moon-eyed,
 Star-lucky sleight-of-hand man watches
 My jilting lady squander coin, gold leaf stock ditches,
 And the opulent air go studded with seed,
 While this beggared brain
 Hatches no fortune,
 But from leaf, from grass,
 Thieves what it has.'

On the Plethora of Dryads

Hearing a white saint rave
 About a quintessential beauty
 Visible only to the paragon heart,
 I tried my sight on an apple-tree
 That for eccentric knob and wart
 Had all my love.

Without meat or drink I sat
 Starving my fantasy down
 To discover that metaphysical Tree which hid
 From my worldling look its brilliant vein
 Far deeper in gross wood
 Than axe could cut.

But before I might blind sense
 To see with the spotless soul,
 Each particular quirk so ravished me
 Every pock and stain bulked more beautiful
 Than flesh of any body
 Flawed by love's prints.

Battle however I would
 To break through that patchwork
 Of leaves' bicker and whisk in babel tongues,
 Streak and mottle of tawn bark,
 No visionary lightnings
 Pierced my dense lid.

Instead, a wanton fit
 Dragged each dazzled sense apart
 Surfeiting eye, ear, taste, touch, smell;
 Now, snared by this miraculous art,
 I ride earth's burning carrousel
 Day in, day out,

And such grit corrupts my eyes
 I must watch sluttish dryads twitch

Their multifarious silks in the holy grove
 Until no chaste tree but suffers blotch
 Under flux of those seductive
 Reds, greens, blues.

The Other Two

All summer we moved in a villa brimful of echoes,
 Cool as the pearled interior of a conch.
 Bells, hooves, of the high-stepping black goats woke us.
 Around our bed the baronial furniture
 Foundered through levels of light seagreen and strange.
 Not one leaf wrinkled in the clearing air.
 We dreamed how we were perfect, and we were.

Against bare, whitewashed walls, the furniture
 Anchored itself, griffin-legged and darkly grained.
 Two of us in a place meant for ten more—
 Our footsteps multiplied in the shadowy chambers,
 Our voices fathomed a profounder sound:
 The walnut banquet table, the twelve chairs
 Mirrored the intricate gestures of two others.

Heavy as statuary, shapes not ours
 Performed a dumbshow in the polished wood,
 That cabinet without windows or doors:
 He lifts an arm to bring her close, but she Shies from his touch: his is an iron mood.
 Seeing her freeze, he turns his face away.
 They poise and grieve as in some old tragedy.

Moon-blached and implacable, he and she
 Would not be eased, released. Our each example
 Of tenderness dove through their purgatory
 Like a planet, a stone, swallowed in a great darkness,
 Leaving no sparky track, setting up no ripple.
 Nightly we left them in their desert place.
 Lights out, they dogged us, sleepless and envious:

We dreamed their arguments, their stricken voices.
 We might embrace, but those two never did,
 Come, so unlike us, to a stiff impasse,
 Burdened in such a way we seemed the lighter —
 Ourselves the haunters, and they, flesh and blood;
 As if, above love's ruinage, we were
 The heaven those two dreamed of, in despair.

The Lady and the Earthenware Head

Fired in sanguine clay, the model head
 Fit nowhere: brickdust-complected, eye under a dense lid,
 On the long bookshelf it stood
 Stolidly propping thick volumes of prose: spite-set Ape of her look. Best rid Hearthstone at once of the outrageous head;
 Still, she felt loath to junk it.

No place, it seemed, for the effigy to fare
 Free from all molesting. Rough boys,
 Spying a pate to spare
 Glowering sullen and pompous from an ash-heap,
 Might well seize this prize,
 Maltreat the hostage head in shocking wise,
 And waken the sly nerve up

That knits to each original its coarse copy. A dark tarn
 She thought of then, thick-silted, with weeds obscured,
 To serve her exacting turn:
 But out of the watery aspic, laureled by fins,
 The simulacrum leered,
 Lewdly beckoning, and her courage wavered:
 She blenched, as one who drowns,

And resolved more ceremoniously to lodge
 The mimic head—in a crotched willow, green-
 Vaulted by foliage:
 Let bell-tongued birds descant in blackest feather
 On the rendering, grain by grain,

Of that uncouth shape to simple sod again
Through drear and dulcet weather.

Yet, shrined on her shelf, the grisly visage endured,
Despite her wrung hands, her tears, her praying: Vanish!
Steadfast and evil-starred,
It ogled through rock-fault, wind-flaw and fisted wave—
An antique hag-head, too tough for knife to finish,
Refusing to diminish
By one jot its basilisk-look of love.

All the Dead Dears

In the Archaeological Museum in Cambridge is a stone coffin of the fourth century A.D. containing the skeletons of a woman, a mouse and a shrew. The ankle-bone of the woman has been slightly gnawn.

Rigged poker-stiff on her back
With a granite grin
This antique museum-cased lady
Lies, companioned by the gimcrack
Relics of a mouse and a shrew
That battened for a day on her ankle-bone.

These three, unmasked now, bear
Dry witness
To the gross eating game
We'd wink at if we didn't hear
Stars grinding, crumb by crumb,
Our own grist down to its bony face.

How they grip us through thin and thick,
These barnacle dead!
This lady here's no kin
Of mine, yet kin she is: she'll suck
Blood and whistle my marrow clean
To prove it. As I think now of her head,

From the mercury-backed glass
Mother, grandmother, greatgrandmother
Reach hag hands to haul me in,

And an image looms under the fishpond surface
 Where the daft father went down
 With orange duck-feet winnowing his hair —

All the long gone darlings: they Get back, though, soon,
 Soon: be it by wakes, weddings,
 Childbirths or a family barbecue:
 Any touch, taste, tang's
 Fit for those outlaws to ride home on,

And to sanctuary: usurping the armchair
 Between tick
 And tack of the clock, until we go,
 Each skulled-and-crossboned Gulliver
 Riddled with ghosts, to lie
 Deadlocked with them, taking root as cradles rock.

56

Natural History

That lofty monarch, Monarch Mind,
 Blue-blooded in coarse country reigned;
 Though he bedded in ermine, gorged on roast,
 Pure Philosophy his love engrossed:
 While subjects hungered, empty-pursed,
 With stars, with angels, he conversed

Till, sick of their ruler's godling airs,
 In one body those earthborn commoners
 Rose up and put royal nerves to the rack:
 King Egg-Head saw his domain crack,
 His crown usurped by the low brow
 Of the base, barbarous Prince Ow.

57

Two Views of Withens

Above whorled, spindling gorse,
 Sheepfoot-flattened grasses,
 Stone wall and ridgepole rise

1957

Prow-like through blurs
Of fog in that hinterland few Hikers get to:

Home of uncatchable
Sage hen and spry rabbit,
Where second wind, hip boot
Help over hill
And hill, and through peaty water.
I found bare moor,

A colorless weather,
And the House of Eros
Low-lintelled, no palace;
You, luckier,
Report white pillars, a blue sky,
The ghosts, kindly.

58

The Great Carbuncle

We came over the moor-top
Through air streaming and green-lit,
Stone farms foundering in it,
Valleys of grass altering
In a light neither of dawn

Nor nightfall, our hands, faces
Lucent as porcelain, the earth's
Claim and weight gone out of them.
Some such transfiguring moved
The eight pilgrims towards its source—

Toward that great jewel: shown often,
Never given; hidden, yet
Simultaneously seen
On moor-top, at sea-bottom,
Knowable only by light

Other than noon, than moon, stars—
The once-known way becoming 1957

Wholly other, and ourselves
Estranged, changed, suspended where Angels are rumored, clearly

Floating, among the floating
Tables and chairs. Gravity's
Lost in the lift and drift of
An easier element
Than earth, and there is nothing

So fine we cannot do it.
But nearing means distancing:
At the common homecoming
Light withdraws. Chairs, tables drop
Down: the body weighs like stone.

Words for a Nursery

Rosebud, knot of worms,
Heir of the first five
Shapers, I open:
Five moony crescents
For eyes to light me
Toward what I can grab,
Milk-spout, big finger
So many ladders
Giving a leg up
To these limber hooks.

I learn, good circus
Dog that I am, how
To move, serve, steer food,
Index the arrow,
Thumbhead, blunt helper,
My master's fetcher,
Whipper of itches,
No pocket dozer,
I shut on the key
Of this blue-green toy.

1957

Five-antlered, branching
Touchy antenna,
I nose out the lay
Of thistle and silk,
Cold pole and hot plate.
Old historian,
My page this desert
Crossed by three causeways,
Leathery, treeless,
With five whorled landspits.

Brown-backed, white-bellied
As a flatfish, I
Swim the Sea of Do,
The left my lackey,
My backward image.
Penbearer, scrubnurse,
The captain's batman,
By heart here I hold
Coin, button, trigger
And his love's body.

Ill-served he'll be when
Age manhandles me
(A crab to nap on Chairarms and tables,
Five wickless candles
To wag at the dark)
And worse-served when death
Makes off with this rose,
Five worms in a box
To feed the thin crows.

The Disquieting Muses

Mother, mother, what illbred aunt
Or what disfigured and unsightly
Cousin did you so unwisely keep Unasked to my christening, that she Sent these ladies in her stead

1957

With heads like darning-eggs to nod
And nod and nod at foot and head
And at the left side of my crib?

Mother, who made to order stories
Of Mixie Blackshort the heroic bear,
Mother, whose witches always, always
Got baked into gingerbread, I wonder
Whether you saw them, whether you said
Words to rid me of those three ladies
Nodding by night around my bed,
Mouthless, eyeless, with stitched bald head.

In the hurricane, when father's twelve
Study windows bellied in Like bubbles about to break, you fed
My brother and me cookies and Ovaltine
And helped the two of us to choir:
'Thor is angry: boom boom boom!
Thor is angry: we don't care!'
But those ladies broke the panes.

When on tiptoe the schoolgirls danced,
Blinking flashlights like fireflies
And singing the glowworm song, I could
Not lift a foot in the twinkle-dress
But, heavy-footed, stood aside
In the shadow cast by my dismal-headed
Godmothers, and you cried and cried:
And the shadow stretched, the lights went out.

Mother, you sent me to piano lessons
And praised my arabesques and trills
Although each teacher found my touch
Oddly wooden in spite of scales
And the hours of practicing, my ear
Tone-deaf and yes, unteachable.
I learned, I learned, I learned elsewhere,
From muses unhired by you, dear mother.

I woke one day to see you, mother,
Floating above me in bluest air

1957

On a green balloon bright with a million
Flowers and bluebirds that never were Never, never, found anywhere.
But the little planet bobbed away
Like a soap-bubble as you called: Come here!
And I faced my traveling companions.

Day now, night now, at head, side, feet,
They stand their vigil in gowns of stone,
Faces blank as the day I was born,
Their shadows long in the setting sun
That never brightens or goes down.
And this is the kingdom you bore me to,
Mother, mother. But no frown of mine
Will betray the company I keep.

61

Night Shift

It was not a heart, beating,
That muted boom, that clangor
Far off, not blood in the ears
Drumming up any fever

To impose on the evening.
The noise came from outside:
A metal detonating
Native, evidently, to

These stilled suburbs: nobody
Startled at it, though the sound
Shook the ground with its pounding.
It took root at my coming

Till the thudding source, exposed,
Confounded inept guesswork:
Framed in windows of Main Street's
Silver factory, immense

Hammers hoisted, wheels turning,
Stalled, let fall their vertical

Tonnage of metal and wood;
 Stunned the marrow. Men in white

Undershirts circled, tending
 Without stop those greased machines,
 Tending, without stop, the blunt
 Indefatigable fact.

Ouija

It is a chilly god, a god of shades,
 Rises to the glass from his black fathoms.
 At the window, those unborn, those undone
 Assemble with the frail paleness of moths,
 An envious phosphorescence in their wings.
 Vermilions, bronzes, colors of the sun
 In the coal fire will not wholly console them.
 Imagine their deep hunger, deep as the dark
 For the blood-heat that would ruddle or reclaim.
 The glass mouth sucks blood-heat from my forefinger.
 The old god dribbles, in return, his words.

The old god, too, writes aureate poetry
 In tarnished modes, maundering among the wastes,
 Fair chronicler of every foul declension.
 Age, and ages of prose, have uncoiled
 His talking whirlwind, abated his excessive temper
 When words, like locusts, drummed the darkening air
 And left the cobs to rattle, bitten clean.
 Skies once wearing a blue, divine hauteur
 Ravel above us, mistily descend,
 Thickening with motes, to a marriage with the mire.

He hymns the rotten queen with saffron hair
 Who has saltier aphrodisiacs
 Than virgins' tears. That bawdy queen of death,
 Her wormy couriers are at his bones.
 Still he hymns juice of her, hot nectarine.
 I see him, horny-skinned and tough, construe
 What flinty pebbles the ploughblade upturns
 As ponderable tokens of her love.

He, godly, doddering, spells
 No succinct Gabriel from the letters here
 But floridly, his amorous nostalgias.

63

On the Decline of Oracles

My father kept a vaulted conch
 By two bronze bookends of ships in sail,
 And as I listened its cold teeth seethed
 With voices of that ambiguous sea
 Old Böcklin missed, who held a shell
 To hear the sea he could not hear.
 What the seashell spoke to his inner ear
 He knew, but no peasants know.

My father died, and when he died
 He willed his books and shell away.
 The books burned up, sea took the shell,
 But I, I keep the voices he Set in my ear, and in my eye
 The sight of those blue, unseen waves
 For which the ghost of Böcklin grieves.
 The peasants feast and multiply.

Eclipsing the spitted ox I see
 Neither brazen swan nor burning star,
 Heraldry of a starker age,
 But three men entering the yard,
 And those men coming up the stair.
 Profitless, their gossiping images
 Invade the cloistral eye like pages
 From a gross comic strip, and toward

The happening of this happening
 The earth turns now. In half an hour
 I shall go down the shabby stair and meet,
 Coming up, those three. Worth
 Less than present, past—this future.
 Worthless such vision to eyes gone dull
 That once descried Troy's towers fall,
 Saw evil break out of the north.

Snakecharmer

As the gods began one world, and man another,
 So the snakecharmer begins a snaky sphere
 With moon-eye, mouth-pipe. He pipes. Pipes green. Pipes water.

Pipes water green until green waters waver
 With reedy lengths and necks and undulatings.
 And as his notes twine green, the green river

Shapes its images around his songs.
 He pipes a place to stand on, but no rocks,
 No floor: a wave of flickering grass tongues

Supports his foot. He pipes a world of snakes,
 Of sways and coilings, from the snake-rooted bottom
 Of his mind. And now nothing but snakes

Is visible. The snake-scales have become Leaf, become eyelid; snake-bodies, bough, breast
 Of tree and human. And he within this snakesdom

Rules the writhings which make manifest
 His snakehood and his might with pliant tunes
 From his thin pipe. Out of this green nest

As out of Eden's navel twist the lines
 Of snaky generations: let there be snakes!
 And snakes there were, are, will be—till yawns

Consume this piper and he tires of music
 And pipes the world back to the simple fabric
 Of snake-warp, snake-weft. Pipes the cloth of snakes

To a melting of green waters, till no snake
 Shows its head, and those green waters back to Water, to green, to nothing like a snake.
 Puts up his pipe, and lids his moony eye.

A Lesson in Vengeance

In the dour ages
Of drafty cells and draftier castles,
Of dragons breathing without the frame of fables,
Saint and king unfisted obstruction's knuckles
By no miracle or majestic means,

But by such abuses
As smack of spite and the overscrupulous
Twisting of thumbscrews: one soul tied in sinews,
One white horse drowned, and all the unconquered pinnacles
Of God's city and Babylon's

Must wait, while here Suso's
Hand hones his tacks and needles,
Scourging to sores his own red sluices
For the relish of heaven, relentless, dousing with prickles
Of horsehair and lice his horny loins;

While there irate Cyrus
Squanders a summer and the brawn of his heroes
To rebuke the horse-swallowing River Gyndes:
He split it into three hundred and sixty trickles
A girl could wade without wetting her shins.

Still, latter-day sages,
Smiling at this behavior, subjugating their enemies
Neatly, nicely, by disbelief or bridges,
Never grip, as their grandsires did, that devil who chuckles
From grain of the marrow and the river-bed grains.

Virgin in a Tree

How this tart fable instructs
And mocks! Here's the parody of that moral mousetrap
Set in the proverbs stitched on samplers
Approving chased girls who get them to a tree
And put on bark's nun-black

Habit which deflects
All amorous arrows. For to sheathe the virgin shape
In a scabbard of wood baffles pursuers,
Whether goat-thighed or god-haloed. Ever since that first Daphne
Switched her incomparable back

For a bay-tree hide, respect's
Twined to her hard limbs like ivy: the puritan lip
Cries: 'Celebrate Syrinx whose demurs
Won her the frog-colored skin, pale pith and watery Bed of a reed. Look:

Pine-needle armor protects
Pity's from Pan's assault! And though age drop
Their leafy crowns, their fame soars,
Eclipsing Eva, Cleo and Helen of Troy:
For which of those would speak

For a fashion that constricts
White bodies in a wooden girdle, root to top
Unfaced, unformed, the nipple-flowers
Shrouded to suckle darkness? Only they
Who keep cool and holy make

A sanctum to attract
 Green virgins, consecrating limb and lip
 To chastity's service: like prophets, like preachers,
 They descant on the serene and seraphic beauty
 Of virgins for virginity's sake.'

Be certain some such pact's
 Been struck to keep all glory in the grip
 Of ugly spinsters and barren sirs
 As you etch on the inner window of your eye
 This virgin on her rack:

She, ripe and unplucked, 's
 Lain played too long in the tortuous boughs: overripe
 Now, dour-faced, her fingers
 Stiff as twigs, her body woodenly
 Askew, she'll ache and wake

Though doomsday bud. Neglect's
 Given her lips that lemon-tasting droop:
 Untongued, all beauty's bright juice sours.
 Tree-twist will ape this gross anatomy
 Till irony's bough break.

Perseus

The Triumph of Wit Over Suffering

Head alone shows you in the prodigious act
 Of digesting what centuries alone digest:
 The mammoth, lumbering statuary of sorrow,
 Indissoluble enough to riddle the guts
 Of a whale with holes and holes, and bleed him white
 Into salt seas. Hercules had a simple time,
 Rinsing those stables: a baby's tears would do it.
 But who'd volunteer to gulp the Laocoön,
 The Dying Gaul and those innumerable pietàs
 Festering on the dim walls of Europe's chapels, Museums and sepulchers? You.

You

Who borrowed feathers for your feet, not lead,
 Not nails, and a mirror to keep the snaky head
 In safe perspective, could outface the gorgon-grimace
 Of human agony: a look to numb
 Limbs: not a basilisk-blink, nor a double whammy,
 But all the accumulated last grunts, groans,
 Cries and heroic couplets concluding the million
 Enacted tragedies on these blood-soaked boards,
 And every private twinge a hissing asp
 To petrify your eyes, and every village
 Catastrophe a writhing length of cobra,
 And the decline of empires the thick coil of a vast Anaconda.

Imagine: the world

Fisted to a foetus head, ravined, seamed
 With suffering from conception upwards, and there
 You have it in hand. Grit in the eye or a sore
 Thumb can make anyone wince, but the whole globe
 Expressive of grief turns gods, like kings, to rocks.
 Those rocks, cleft and worn, themselves then grow
 Ponderous and extend despair on earth's Dark face.

So might rigor mortis come to stiffen

All creation, were it not for a bigger belly
 Still than swallows joy.

You enter now,

Armed with feathers to tickle as well as fly,
 And a fun-house mirror that turns the tragic muse
 To the beheaded head of a sullen doll, one braid,
 A bedraggled snake, hanging limp as the absurd mouth
 Hangs in its lugubrious pout. Where are
 The classic limbs of stubborn Antigone?
 The red, royal robes of Phèdre? The tear-dazzled
 Sorrows of Malfi's gentle duchess?

Gone

In the deep convulsion gripping your face, muscles
 And sinews bunched, victorious, as the cosmic
 Laugh does away with the unstitching, plaguey wounds
 Of an eternal sufferer.

1958

To you

Perseus, the palm, and may you poise
And repose until time stop, the celestial balance
Which weighs our madness with our sanity.

Battle-Scene

From the Comic Operatic Fantasy The Seafarer

It beguiles—
This little Odyssey
In pink and lavender
Over a surface of gently-
Graded turquoise tiles
That represent a sea
With chequered waves and gaily
Bear up the seafarer,
Gaily, gaily,
In his pink plume and armor.

A lantern-frail
Gondola of paper
Ferries the fishpond Sindbad
Who poises his pastel spear
Toward three pinky-purple
Monsters which uprear
Off the ocean-floor
With fanged and dreadful head.
Beware, beware
The whale, the shark, the squid.

But fins and scales
Of each scrolled sea-beast
Troll no slime, no weed.
They are polished for the joust,
They gleam like easter eggshells,
Rose and amethyst.
Ahab, fulfill your boast:
Bring home each storied head.
One thrust, one thrust,
One thrust: and they are sped.

So fables go.
 And so all children sing
 Their bathtub battles deep,
 Hazardous and long,
 But oh, sage grownups know
 Sea-dragon for sofa, fang
 For pasteboard, and siren-song
 For fever in a sleep.
 Laughing, laughing
 Of graybeards wakes us up.

Yadwigha, on a Red Couch, Among Lilies

A Sestina for the Douanier

Yadwigha, the literalists once wondered how you
 Came to be lying on this baroque couch
 Upholstered in red velvet, under the eye
 Of uncaged tigers and a tropical moon,
 Set in an intricate wilderness of green
 Heart-shaped leaves, like catalpa leaves, and lilies

Of monstrous size, like no well-bred lilies.
 It seems the consistent critics wanted you
 To choose between your world of jungle green
 And the fashionable monde of the red couch
 With its prim bric-à-brac, without a moon
 To turn you luminous, without the eye

Of tigers to be stilled by your dark eye
 And body whiter than its frill of lilies:
 They'd have had yellow silk screening the moon,
 Leaves and lilies flattened to paper behind you
 Or, at most, to a mille-fleurs tapestry. But the couch
 Stood stubborn in its jungle: red against green,

Red against fifty variants of green,
 The couch glared out at the prosaic eye.

1958

So Rousseau, to explain why the red couch
Persisted in the picture with the lilies,
Tigers, snakes, and the snakecharmer and you,
And birds of paradise, and the round moon,

Described how you fell dreaming at full of moon
On a red velvet couch within your green-
Tessellated boudoir. Hearing flutes, you
Dreamed yourself away in the moon's eye
To a beryl jungle, and dreamed that bright moon-lilies
Nodded their petaled heads around your couch.

And that, Rousseau told the critics, was why the couch
Accompanied you. So they nodded at the couch with the moon
And the snakecharmer's song and the gigantic lilies,
Marvelingly numbered the many shades of green.
But to a friend, in private, Rousseau confessed his eye
So possessed by the glowing red of the couch which you,

Yadwigha, pose on, that he put you on the couch
To feed his eye with red: such red! under the moon,
In the midst of all that green and those great lilies!

A Winter's Tale

On Boston Common a red star
Gleams, wired to a tall Ulmus
Americana. Magi near
The domed State House.

Old Joseph holds an alpenstock.
Two waxen oxen flank the Child.
A black sheep leads the shepherds' flock.
Mary looks mild.

Angels—more feminine and douce
Than models from Bonwit's or Jay's, 1958

Haloes lustrous as Sirius—
Gilt trumpets raise.

By S. S. Pierce, by S. S. Pierce,
The red-nosed, blue-caped women ring
For money. Lord, the crowds are fierce!
There's caroling

On Winter Street, on Temple Place.
Poodles are baking cookies in Filene's show windows. Grant us grace,
Donner, Blitzen,

And all you Santa's deer who browse
By leave of the Park Commission
On grass that once fed Boston cows.
In unison

On Pinckney, Mount Vernon, Chestnut,
The wreathed doors open to the crowd.
Noel! Noel! No mouth is shut.
Off key and loud

The populace sings toward the sill
Of windows with odd violet panes.
O Little City on a Hill!
The cordial strains

Of bellringers and singers rouse
Frost-bitten pigeons, eddy forth
From Charles Street to the Custom House,
From South Station to North.

Here in this valley of discreet academies
We have not mountains, but mounts, truncated hillocks
To the Adirondacks, to northern Monadnock,
Themselves mere rocky hillocks to an Everest.

Still, they're our best mustering of height: by Comparison with the sunken silver-grizzled
 Back of the Connecticut, the river-level
 Flats of Hadley farms, they're lofty enough
 Elevations to be called something more than hills.
 Green, wholly green, they stand their knobby spine
 Against our sky: they are what we look southward to
 Up Pleasant Street at Main. Poising their shapes
 Between the snuff and red tar-paper apartments,
 They mound a summer coolness in our view.

To people who live in the bottom of valleys
 A rise in the landscape, hummock or hogback, looks
 To be meant for climbing. A peculiar logic
 In going up for the coming down if the post
 We start at's the same post we finish by,
 But it's the clear conversion at the top can hold
 Us to the oblique road, in spite of a fitful
 Wish for even ground, and it's the last cliff
 Ledge will dislodge our cramped concept of space, unwall
 Horizons beyond vision, spill vision
 After the horizons, stretching the narrowed eye
 To full capacity. We climb in hopes
 Of such seeing up the leaf-shuttered escarpments,
 Blinded by green, under a green-grained sky

Into the blue. Tops define themselves as places
 Where nothing higher's to be looked to. Downward looks Follow the black arrow-backs of swifts on their track
 Of the air eddies' loop and arc though air's at rest
 To us, since we see no leaf edge stir high
 Here on a mount overlaid with leaves. The paint-peeled Hundred-year-old hotel sustains its ramshackle
 Four-way veranda, view-keeping above
 The fallen timbers of its once remarkable
 Funicular railway, witness to gone
 Time, and to graces gone with the time. A state view-
 Keeper collects half-dollars for the slopes
 Of state scenery, sells soda, shows off viewpoints.
 A ruddy skylight paints the gray oxbow

And paints the river's pale circumfluent stillness
 As roses broach their carmine in a mirror. Flux
 Of the desultory currents—all that unique
 Stipple of shifting wave-tips is ironed out, lost
 In the simplified orderings of sky-
 Lorded perspectives. Maplike, the far fields are ruled
 By correct green lines and no seedy free-for-all
 Of asparagus heads. Cars run their suave
 Colored beads on the strung roads, and the people stroll
 Straightforwardly across the springing green.
 All's peace and discipline down there. Till lately we Lived under the shadow of hot rooftops
 And never saw how coolly we might move. For once
 A high hush quietens the crickets' cry.

Memoirs of a Spinach-Picker

They called the place Lookout Farm.

Back then, the sun

Didn't go down in such a hurry. How it
 Lit things, that lamp of the Possible!

Wet yet

Lay over the leaves like a clear cellophane,
 A pane of dragonfly wing, when they left me
 With a hundred bushel baskets on the edge
 Of the spinach patch.

Bunch after bunch of green

Upstanding spinach-tips wedged in a circle—
 Layer on layer, and you had a basket
 Irreproachable as any lettuce head,
 Pure leafage. A hundred baskets by day's end.

Sun and sky mirrored the green of the spinach.
 In the tin pail shaded by yellow paper
 Well-water kept cool at the start of the rows.
 The water had an iron taste, and the air,
 Even, a tang of metal.

Day in, day out,

I bent over the plants in my leather-kneed

1958

Dungarees, proud as a lady in a sea
Of prize roses, culling the fullest florets;
My world pyramided with laden baskets.

I'd only to set one foot in wilderness—
A whole sea of spinach-heads leaned to my hand.

The Ghost's Leavetaking

Enter the chilly no-man's land of about
Five o'clock in the morning, the no-color void
Where the waking head rubbishes out the draggled lot
Of sulfurous dreamscapes and obscure lunar conundrums
Which seemed, when dreamed, to mean so profoundly much,

Gets ready to face the ready-made creation
Of chairs and bureaus and sleep-twisted sheets.
This is the kingdom of the fading apparition,
The oracular ghost who dwindles on pin-legs
To a knot of laundry, with a classic bunch of sheets

Upraised, as a hand, emblematic of farewell.
At this joint between two worlds and two entirely
Incompatible modes of time, the raw material
Of our meat-and-potato thoughts assumes the nimbus
Of ambrosial revelation. And so departs.

Chair and bureau are the hieroglyphs
Of some godly utterance wakened heads ignore:
So these posed sheets, before they thin to nothing,
Speak in sign language of a lost otherworld,
A world we lose by merely waking up.

Trailing its telltale tatters only at the outermost
Fringe of mundane vision, this ghost goes
Hand aloft, goodbye, goodbye, not down
Into the rocky gizzard of the earth,
But toward a region where our thick atmosphere

Diminishes, and God knows what is there.
 A point of exclamation marks that sky
 In ringing orange like a stellar carrot.
 Its round period, displaced and green,
 Suspends beside it the first point, the starting Point of Eden, next the new moon's curve.

 Go, ghost of our mother and father, ghost of us,
 And ghost of our dreams' children, in those sheets
 Which signify our origin and end,
 To the cloud-cuckoo land of color wheels

And pristine alphabets and cows that moo
 And moo as they jump over moons as new
 As that crisp cusp towards which you voyage now.
 Hail and farewell. Hello, goodbye. O keeper
 Of the profane grail, the dreaming skull.

Sculptor

For Leonard Baskin

To his house the bodiless
 Come to barter endlessly
 Vision, wisdom, for bodies
 Palpable as his, and weighty.

Hands moving move priestlier
 Than priest's hands, invoke no vain
 Images of light and air
 But sure stations in bronze, wood, stone.

Obdurate, in dense-grained wood,
 A bald angel blocks and shapes
 The flimsy light; arms folded
 Watches his cumbrous world eclipse

Inane worlds of wind and cloud.
 Bronze dead dominate the floor,

1958

Resistive, ruddy-bodied,
Dwarfing us. Our bodies flicker

Toward extinction in those eyes
Which, without him, were beggared
Of place, time, and their bodies.
Emulous spirits make discord,

Try entry, enter nightmares
Until his chisel bequeaths
Them life livelier than ours,
A solider repose than death's.

75

Full Fathom Five

Old man, you surface seldom.
Then you come in with the tide's coming
When seas wash cold, foam-

Capped: white hair, white beard, far-flung,
A dragnet, rising, falling, as waves
Crest and trough. Miles long

Extend the radial sheaves
Of your spread hair, in which wrinkling skeins
Knotted, caught, survives

The old myth of origins Unimaginable. You float near
As keeled ice-mountains

Of the north, to be steered clear
Of, not fathomed. All obscurity
Starts with a danger:

Your dangers are many. I Cannot look much but your form suffers
Some strange injury

1958

And seems to die: so vapors
Ravel to clearness on the dawn sea.
The muddy rumors

Of your burial move me
To half-believe: your reappearance
Proves rumors shallow,

For the archaic trenched lines
Of your grained face shed time in runnels:
Ages beat like rains

On the unbeaten channels
Of the ocean. Such sage humor and Durance are whirlpools

To make away with the ground-
Work of the earth and the sky's ridgepole.
Waist down, you may wind

One labyrinthine tangle
To root deep among knuckles, shinbones,
Skulls. Inscrutable,

Below shoulders not once
Seen by any man who kept his head,
You defy questions;

You defy other godhood.
I walk dry on your kingdom's border
Exiled to no good.

Your shelled bed I remember.
Father, this thick air is murderous.
I would breathe water.

1958

Lorelei

It is no night to drown in:
A full moon, river lapsing
Black beneath bland mirror-sheen,

The blue water-mists dropping
Scrim after scrim like fishnets
Though fishermen are sleeping,

The massive castle turrets
Doubling themselves in a glass
All stillness. Yet these shapes float

Up toward me, troubling the face
Of quiet. From the nadir
They rise, their limbs ponderous

With richness, hair heavier
Than sculpted marble. They sing
Of a world more full and clear

Than can be. Sisters, your song
Bears a burden too weighty
For the whorled ear's listening

Here, in a well-steered country,
Under a balanced ruler.
Deranging by harmony

Beyond the mundane order,
Your voices lay siege. You lodge
On the pitched reefs of nightmare,

Promising sure harborage;
By day, descant from borders
Of hebetude, from the ledge

Also of high windows. Worse
Even than your maddening
Song, your silence. At the source 1958

Of your ice-hearted calling —
Drunkenness of the great depths.
O river, I see drifting

Deep in your flux of silver
Those great goddesses of peace.
Stone, stone, ferry me down there.

77

Mussel Hunter at Rock Harbor

I came before the water-
Colorists came to get the Good of the Cape light that scours
Sand grit to sided crystal
And buffs and sleeks the blunt hulls
Of the three fishing smacks beached
On the bank of the river's

Backtracking tail. I'd come for Free fish-bait: the blue mussels
Clumped like bulbs at the grass-root
Margin of the tidal pools.
Dawn tide stood dead low. I smelt
Mud stench, shell guts, gulls' leavings;
Heard a queer crusty scrabble

Cease, and I neared the silenced
Edge of a cratered pool-bed
The mussels hung dull blue and Conspicuous, yet it seemed
A sly world's hinges had swung Shut against me. All held still.
Though I counted scant seconds,

Enough ages lapsed to win
Confidence of safe-conduct

1958

In the wary otherworld
Eyeing me. Grass put forth claws;
Small mud knobs, nudged from under,
Displaced their domes as tiny
Knights might doff their casques. The crabs

Inched from their pigmy burrows
And from the trench-dug mud, all
Camouflaged in mottled mail
Of browns and greens. Each wore one Claw swollen to a shield large
As itself—no fiddler's arm
Grown Gargantuan by trade,

But grown grimly, and grimly
Borne, for a use beyond my Guessing of it. Sibillant
Mass-motived hordes, they sidled
Out in a converging stream
Toward the pool-mouth, perhaps to Meet the thin and sluggish thread

Of sea retracing its tide-
Way up the river-basin.
Or to avoid me. They moved
Obliquely with a dry-wet
Sound, with a glittery wisp
And trickle. Could they feel mud
Pleasurable under claws

As I could between bare toes?
That question ended it—I
Stood shut out, for once, for all,
Puzzling the passage of their Absolutely alien
Order as I might puzzle
At the clear tail of Halley's

Comet coolly giving my Orbit the go-by, made known
By a family name it

1958

Knew nothing of. So the crabs
Went about their business, which Wasn't fiddling, and I filled
A big handkerchief with blue

Mussels. From what the crabs saw,
If they could see, I was one
Two-legged mussel-picker.
High on the airy thatching
Of the dense grasses I found
The husk of a fiddler-crab,
Intact, strangely strayed above

His world of mud—green color
And innards bleached and blown off
Somewhere by much sun and wind;
There was no telling if he'd Died recluse or suicide
Or headstrong Columbus crab.
The crab-face, etched and set there,

Grimaced as skulls grimace: it
Had an Oriental look,
A samurai death mask done
On a tiger tooth, less for Art's sake than God's. Far from sea—
Where red-freckled crab-backs, claws
And whole crabs, dead, their soggy

Bellies pallid and upturned,
Perform their shambling waltzes
On the waves' dissolving turn
And return, losing themselves
Bit by bit to their friendly
Element—this relic saved
Face, to face the bald-faced sun.

Moonrise

Grub-white mulberries redden among leaves.
 I'll go out and sit in white like they do,
 Doing nothing. July's juice rounds their nubs.

This park is fleshed with idiot petals.
 White catalpa flowers tower, topple,
 Cast a round white shadow in their dying.

A pigeon rudders down. Its fan-tail's white.
 Vocation enough: opening, shutting
 White petals, white fan-tails, ten white fingers.

Enough for fingernails to make half-moons
 Redden in white palms no labor reddens.
 White bruises toward color, else collapses.

Berries redden. A body of whiteness
 Rots, and smells of rot under its headstone
 Though the body walk out in clean linen.

I smell that whiteness here, beneath the stones
 Where small ants roll their eggs, where grubs fatten.
 Death may whiten in sun or out of it.

Death whitens in the egg and out of it.
 I can see no color for this whiteness.
 White: it is a complexion of the mind.

I tire, imagining white Niagaras
 Build up from a rock root, as fountains build
 Against the weighty image of their fall.

Lucina, bony mother, laboring
 Among the socketed white stars, your face
 Of candor pares white flesh to the white bone,

Who drag our ancient father at the heel,
 White-bearded, weary. The berries purple
 And bleed. The white stomach may ripen yet.

Frog Autumn

Summer grows old, cold-blooded mother.
 The insects are scant, skinny.
 In these palustral homes we only
 Croak and wither.

Mornings dissipate in somnolence.
 The sun brightens tardily
 Among the pithless reeds. Flies fail us.
 The fen sickens.

Frost drops even the spider. Clearly
 The genius of plenitude
 Houses himself elsewhere. Our folk thin Lamentably.

In Midas' Country

Meadows of gold dust. The silver
 Currents of the Connecticut fan
 And meander in bland pleatings under
 River-verge farms where rye-heads whiten.
 All's polished to a dull luster

In the sulfurous noon. We move
 With the languor of idols below
 The sky's great bell glass and briefly engrave
 Our limbs' image on a field of straw
 And goldenrod as on gold leaf.

It might be heaven, this static
 Plenitude: apples gold on the bough,
 Goldfinch, goldfish, golden tiger cat stock-
 Still in one gigantic tapestry—
 And lovers affable, dovelike.

But now the water-skiers race,
 Bracing their knees. On unseen towlines

1958

They cleave the river's greening patinas;
The mirror quivers to smithereens.
They stunt like clowns in the circus.

So we are hauled, though we would stop
On this amber bank where grasses bleach.
Already the farmer's after his crop,
August gives over its Midas touch,
Wind bares a flintier landscape.

81 Incommunicado

The groundhog on the mountain did not run
But fatly scuttled into the splayed fern
And faced me, back to a ledge of dirt, to rattle
Her sallow rodent teeth like castanets
Against my leaning down, would not exchange
For that wary clatter sound or gesture
Of love: claws braced, at bay, my currency not hers.

Such meetings never occur in märchen
Where love-met groundhogs love one in return,
Where straight talk is the rule, whether warm or hostile,
Which no gruff animal misinterprets.
From what grace am I fallen. Tongues are strange,
Signs say nothing. The falcon who spoke clear
To Canacee cries gibberish to coarsened ears.

82

Child's Park Stones

In sunless air, under pines
Green to the point of blackness, some
Founding father set these lobed, warped stones
To loom in the leaf-filtered gloom
Black as the charred knuckle-bones

Of a giant or extinct
 Animal, come from another
 Age, another planet surely. Flanked
 By the orange and fuchsia bonfire
 Of azaleas, sacrosanct

These stones guard a dark repose
 And keep their shapes intact while sun
 Alters shadows of rose and iris—
 Long, short, long—in the lit garden
 And kindles a day's-end blaze

Colored to dull the pigment
 Of the azaleas, yet burnt out
 Quick as they. To follow the light's tint
 And intensity by midnight
 By noon and throughout the brunt

Of various weathers is
 To know the still heart of the stones:
 Stones that take the whole summer to lose
 Their dream of the winter's cold; stones
 Warming at core only as

Frost forms. No man's crowbar could Uproot them: their beards are ever-Green. Nor do they, once in a hundred Years, go down to drink the river:
 No thirst disturbs a stone's bed.

Owl

Clocks belled twelve. Main Street showed otherwise
 Than its suburb of woods: nimbus-
 Lit, but unpeopled, held its windows
 Of wedding pastries,

Diamond rings, potted roses, fox-skins
 Ruddy on the wax mannequins

1958

In a glassed tableau of affluence.
From deep-sunk basements

What moved the pale, raptorial owl
Then, to squall above the level
Of streetlights and wires, its wall to wall
Wingspread in control

Of the ferrying currents, belly
Dense-feathered, fearfully soft to Look upon? Rats' teeth gut the city
Shaken by owl cry.

Whiteness I Remember

Whiteness being what I remember
About Sam: whiteness and the great run
He gave me. I've gone nowhere since but Going's been tame deviation. White,
Not of heraldic stallions: off-white
Of the stable horse whose history's
Humdrum, unexceptionable, his Tried sobriety hiring him out
To novices and to the timid.
Yet the dapple toning his white down
To safe gray never grayed his temper.

I see him one-tracked, stubborn, white horse,
First horse under me, high as the roofs,
His neat trot pitching my tense poise up,
Unsettling the steady-rooted green
Of country hedgerows and cow pastures
To a giddy jog. Then for ill will
Or to try me he suddenly set
Green grass streaming, houses a river
Of pale fronts, straw thatchings, the hard road
An anvil, hooves four hammers to jolt
Me off into their space of beating,

1958

Stirrups undone, and decorum. And
Wouldn't slow for the hauled reins, his name,
Or shouts of walkers: crossroad traffic
Stalling curbside at his oncoming,
The world subdued to his run of it.
I hung on his neck. Resoluteness
Simplified me: a rider, riding
Hung out over hazard, over hooves
Loud on earth's bedrock. Almost thrown, not Thrown: fear, wisdom, at one: all colors
Spinning to still in his one whiteness.

Fable of the Rhododendron Stealers

I walked the unwalked garden of rose-beds
In the public park; at home felt the want
Of a single rose present to imagine
The garden's remainder in full paint.

The stone lion-head set in the wall
Let drop its spittle of sluggish green
Into the stone basin. I snipped
An orange bud, pocketed it. When

It had opened its orange in my vase,
Retrogressed to blowze, I next chose red;
Argued my conscience clear which robbed
The park of less red than withering did.

Musk satisfied my nose, red my eye,
The petals' nap my fingertips:
I considered the poetry I rescued
From blind air, from complete eclipse.

Yet today, a yellow bud in my hand,
I stalled at sudden noisy crashes
From the laurel thicket. No one approached.
A spasm took the rhododendron bushes:

Three girls, engrossed, were wrenching full clusters
 Of cerise and pink from the rhododendron,
 Mountaining them on spread newspaper.
 They brassily picked, slowed by no chagrin,

And wouldn't pause for my straight look.
 But gave me pause, my rose a charge,
 Whether nicety stood confounded by love,
 Or petty thievery by large.

The Death of Myth-Making

Two virtues ride, by stallion, by nag,
 To grind our knives and scissors:
 Lantern-jawed Reason, squat Common Sense,
 One courting doctors of all sorts,
 One, housewives and shopkeepers.

The trees are lopped, the poodles trim,
 The laborer's nails pared level
 Since those two civil servants set
 Their whetstone to the blunted edge
 And minced the muddling devil

Whose owl-eyes in the scraggly wood
 Scared mothers to miscarry,
 Drove the dogs to cringe and whine,
 And turned the farmboy's temper wolfish,
 The housewife's, desultory.

Green Rock, Winthrop Bay

No lame excuses can gloss over
 Barge-tar clotted at the tide-line, the wrecked pier
 I should have known better.

1958

Fifteen years between me and the bay
Profited memory, but did away with the old scenery
And patched this shoddy

Makeshift of a view to quit
My promise of an idyll. the blue's worn out:
It's a niggard estate,

Inimical now. The great green rock
We gave good use as ship and house is black
With tarry muck

And periwinkles, shrunk to common
Size. The cries of scavenging gulls sound thin
In the traffic of planes

From Logan Airport opposite.
Gulls circle gray under shadow of a steelier flight.
Loss cancels profit.

Unless you do this tawdry harbor
A service and ignore it, I go a liar
Gilding what's eyesore,

Or must take loophole and blame time
For the rock's dwarfed lump, for the drabbled scum,
For a churlish welcome.

88

The Companionable Ills

The nose-end that twitches, the old imperfections —
Tolerable now as moles on the face
Put up with until chagrin gives place
To a wry complaisance —

Dug in first as God's spurs
To start the spirit out of the mud
It stabled in; long-used, became well-loved
Bedfellows of the spirit's debauch, fond masters.

I Want, I Want

Open-mouthed, the baby god
 Immense, bald, though baby-headed,
 Cried out for the mother's dug.
 The dry volcanoes cracked and spit,

Sand abraded the milkless lip.
 Cried then for the father's blood
 Who set wasp, wolf and shark to work,
 Engineered the gannet's beak.

Dry-eyed, the inveterate patriarch
 Raised his men of skin and bone,
 Barbs on the crown of gilded wire,
 Thorns on the bloody rose-stem.

Poems, Potatoes

The word, defining, muzzles; the drawn line
 Ousts mistier peers and thrives, murderous,
 In establishments which imagined lines

Can only haunt. Sturdy as potatoes,
 Stones, without conscience, word and line endure, Given an inch. Not that they're gross (although Afterthought often would have them alter

 To delicacy, to poise) but that they Shortchange me continuously: whether

More or other, they still dissatisfy.
 Unpoemed, unpictured, the potato
 Bunches its knobby browns on a vastly Superior page; the blunt stone also.

The Times Are Tidy

Unlucky the hero born
In this province of the stuck record
Where the most watchful cooks go jobless
And the mayor's rôtisserie turns
Round of its own accord.

There's no career in the venture
Of riding against the lizard,
Himself withered these latter-days
To leaf-size from lack of action:
History's beaten the hazard.

The last crone got burnt up
More than eight decades back
With the love-hot herb, the talking cat,
But the children are better for it,
The cow milks cream an inch thick.

The Bull of Bendylaw

The black bull bellowed before the sea.
The sea, till that day orderly,
Hove up against Bendylaw.

The queen in the mulberry arbor stared
Stiff as a queen on a playing card.
The king fingered his beard.

A blue sea, four horny bull-feet,
A bull-snouted sea that wouldn't stay put,
Bucked at the garden gate.

Along box-lined walks in the florid sun
Toward the rowdy bellow and back again
The lords and ladies ran.

The great bronze gate began to crack,
The sea broke in at every crack,
Pellmell, blueblack.

The bull surged up, the bull surged down,
Not to be stayed by a daisy chain
Nor by any learned man.

O the king's tidy acre is under the sea,
And the royal rose in the bull's belly,
And the bull on the king's highway.

1959
The Eye-mote

Blameless as daylight I stood looking
At a field of horses, necks bent, manes blown,
Tails streaming against the green
Backdrop of sycamores. Sun was striking
While chapel pinnacles over the roofs,
Holding the horses, the clouds, the leaves

Steadily rooted though they were all flowing
Away to the left like reeds in a sea
When the splinter flew in and stuck my eye,
Needling it dark. Then I was seeing
A melding of shapes in a hot rain:
Horses warped on the altering green,

Outlandish as double-humped camels or unicorns,
Grazing at the margins of a bad monochrome,
Beasts of oasis, a better time.
Abrading my lid, the small grain burns:
Red cinder around which I myself,
Horses, planets and spires revolve.

Neither tears nor the easing flush
Of eyebaths can unseat the speck:
It sticks, and it has stuck a week.
I wear the present itch for flesh,
Blind to what will be and what was.
I dream that I am Oedipus.

What I want back is what I was
Before the bed, before the knife,
Before the brooch-pin and the salve
Fixed me in this parenthesis;
Horses fluent in the wind,
A place, a time gone out of mind.

Point Shirley

From Water-Tower Hill to the brick prison
 The shingle booms, bickering under
 The sea's collapse.
 Snowcakes break and welter. This year
 The gritted wave leaps
 The seawall and drops onto a bier
 Of quahog chips,
 Leaving a salty mash of ice to whiten

In my grandmother's sand yard. She is dead,
 Whose laundry snapped and froze here, who Kept house against
 What the sluttish, rutted sea could do.
 Squall waves once danced
 Ship timbers in through the cellar window;
 A thresh-tailed, lanced
 Shark littered in the geranium bed —

Such collusion of mulish elements
 She wore her broom straws to the nub.
 Twenty years out
 Of her hand, the house still hugs in each drab
 Stucco socket
 The purple egg-stones: from Great Head's knob
 To the filled-in Gut
 The sea in its cold gizzard ground those rounds.

Nobody wintering now behind
 The planked-up windows where she set
 Her wheat loaves
 And apple cakes to cool. What is it
 Survives, grieves
 So, over this battered, obstinate spit
 Of gravel? The waves'
 Spewed relics clicker masses in the wind,

Grey waves the stub-necked eiders ride.
 A labor of love, and that labor lost.
 Steadily the sea

1959

Eats at Point Shirley. She died blessed,
And I come by
Bones, bones only, pawed and tossed,
A dog-faced sea.
The sun sinks under Boston, bloody red.

I would get from these dry-papped stones
The milk your love instilled in them.
The black ducks dive.
And though your graciousness might stream,
And I contrive,
Grandmother, stones are nothing of home
To that spumiest dove.
Against both bar and tower the black sea runs.

95

Goatsucker

Old goatherds swear how all night long they hear
The warning whirr and burring of the bird
Who wakes with darkness and till dawn works hard
Vampiring dry of milk each great goat udder.
Moon full, moon dark, the chary dairy farmer
Dreams that his fattest cattle dwindle, fevered
By claw-cuts of the Goatsucker, alias Devil-bird,
Its eye, flashlit, a chip of ruby fire.

So fables say the Goatsucker moves, masked from men's sight
In an ebony air, on wings of witch cloth,
Well-named, ill-famed a knavish fly-by-night,
Yet it never milked any goat, nor dealt cow death
And shadows only—cave-mouth bristle beset—
Cockchafers and the wan, green luna moth.

96

Watercolor of Grantchester Meadows

There, spring lambs jam the sheepfold. In air
Stilled, silvered as water in a glass
Nothing is big or far.

1959

The small shrew chitters from its wilderness
Of grassheads and is heard.
Each thumb-size bird
Flits nimble-winged in thickets, and of good color.

Cloudwrack and owl-hollowed willows slanting over
The bland Granta double their white and green
World under the sheer water
And ride that flux at anchor, upside down.
The punter sinks his pole.
In Byron's pool
Cat-tails part where the tame cygnets steer.

It is a country on a nursery plate.
Spotted cows revolve their jaws and crop
Red clover or gnaw beetroot
Bellied on a nimbus of sun-glazed buttercup.
Hedging meadows of benign
Arcadian green
The blood-berried hawthorn hides its spines with white.

Droll, vegetarian, the water rat
Saws down a reed and swims from his limber grove,
While the students stroll or sit,
Hands laced, in a moony indolence of love—
Black-gowned, but unaware
How in such mild air
The owl shall stoop from his turret, the rat cry out.

A Winter Ship

At this wharf there are no grand landings to speak of.
Red and orange barges list and blister
Shackled to the dock, outmoded, gaudy,
And apparently indestructible.
The sea pulses under a skin of oil.

A gull holds his pose on a shanty ridgepole,
 Riding the tide of the wind, steady
 As wood and formal, in a jacket of ashes,
 The whole flat harbor anchored in
 The round of his yellow eye-button.

A blimp swims up like a day-moon or tin
 Cigar over his rink of fishes.
 The prospect is dull as an old etching.
 They are unloading three barrels of little crabs.
 The pier pilings seem about to collapse

And with them that rickety edifice
 Of warehouses, derricks, smokestacks and bridges
 In the distance. All around us the water slips
 And gossips in its loose vernacular,
 Ferrying the smells of dead cod and tar.

Farther out, the waves will be mouthing icecakes—
 A poor month for park-sleepers and lovers.
 Even our shadows are blue with cold.
 We wanted to see the sun come up
 And are met, instead, by this iceribbed ship,

Bearded and blown, an albatross of frost,
 Relic of tough weather, every winch and stay
 Encased in a glassy pellicle.
 The sun will diminish it soon enough:
 Each wave-tip glitters like a knife.

Aftermath

Compelled by calamity's magnet
 They loiter and stare as if the house
 Burnt-out were theirs, or as if they thought
 Some scandal might any minute ooze
 From a smoke-choked closet into light;
 No deaths, no prodigious injuries
 Glut these hunters after an old meat,
 Blood-spoor of the austere tragedies.

1959

Mother Medea in a green smock
Moves humbly as any housewife through
Her ruined apartments, taking stock
Of charred shoes, the sodden upholstery:
Cheated of the pyre and the rack,
The crowd sucks her last tear and turns away.

Two Views of a Cadaver Room

(1)

The day she visited the dissecting room
They had four men laid out, black as burnt turkey,
Already half unstrung. A vinegary fume
Of the death vats clung to them;
The white-smocked boys started working.
The head of his cadaver had caved in,
And she could scarcely make out anything
In that rubble of skull plates and old leather.
A sallow piece of string held it together.

In their jars the snail-nosed babies moon and glow.
He hands her the cut-out heart like a cracked heirloom.

(2)

In Brueghel's panorama of smoke and slaughter
Two people only are blind to the carrion army:
He, afloat in the sea of her blue satin
Skirts, sings in the direction
Of her bare shoulder, while she bends,
Fingering a leaflet of music, over him,
Both of them deaf to the fiddle in the hands
Of the death's-head shadowing their song.
These Flemish lovers flourish; not for long.

Yet desolation, stalled in paint, spares the little country
Foolish, delicate, in the lower right hand corner.

Suicide off Egg Rock

Behind him the hotdogs split and drizzled
 On the public grills, and the ochreous salt flats,
 Gas tanks, factory stacks—that landscape
 Of imperfections his bowels were part of—
 Rippled and pulsed in the glassy updraught.
 Sun struck the water like a damnation.
 No pit of shadow to crawl into,
 And his blood beating the old tattoo
 I am, I am, I am. Children
 Were squealing where combers broke and the spindrift
 Raveled wind-ripped from the crest of the wave.
 A mongrel working his legs to a gallop
 Hustled a gull flock to flap off the sandspit.

He smoldered, as if stone-deaf, blindfold,
 His body beached with the sea's garbage,
 A machine to breathe and beat forever.
 Flies filing in through a dead skate's eyehole
 Buzzed and assailed the vaulted brainchamber.
 The words in his book wormed off the pages.
 Everything glittered like blank paper.

Everything shrank in the sun's corrosive
 Ray but Egg Rock on the blue wastage.
 He heard when he walked into the water

The forgetful surf creaming on those ledges.

The Ravaged Face

Outlandish as a circus, the ravaged face
 Parades the marketplace, lurid and stricken
 By some unutterable chagrin,
 Maudlin from leaky eye to swollen nose.
 Two pinlegs stagger underneath the mass.
 Grievously purpled, mouth skewered on a groan,
 Past keeping to the house, past all discretion—
 Myself, myself!—obscene, lugubrious.

1959

Better the flat leer of the idiot,
The stone face of the man who doesn't feel,
The velvet dodges of the hypocrite:
Better, better, and more acceptable
To timorous children, to the lady on the street.
O Oedipus. O Christ. You use me ill.

Metaphors

I'm a riddle in nine syllables,
An elephant, a ponderous house,
A melon strolling on two tendrils.
O red fruit, ivory, fine timbers!
This loaf's big with its yeasty rising.
Money's new-minted in this fat purse.
I'm a means, a stage, a cow in calf.
I've eaten a bag of green apples,
Boarded the train there's no getting off.

Electra on Azalea Path

The day you died I went into the dirt,
Into the lightless hibernaculum
Where bees, striped black and gold, sleep out the blizzard
Like hieratic stones, and the ground is hard.
It was good for twenty years, that wintering—
As if you had never existed, as if I came
God-fathered into the world from my mother's belly:
Her wide bed wore the stain of divinity.
I had nothing to do with guilt or anything
When I wormed back under my mother's heart.

Small as a doll in my dress of innocence
I lay dreaming your epic, image by image.
Nobody died or withered on that stage.

Everything took place in a durable whiteness.
 The day I woke, I woke on Churchyard Hill.
 I found your name, I found your bones and all
 Enlisted in a cramped necropolis,
 Your speckled stone askew by an iron fence.

In this charity ward, this poorhouse, where the dead
 Crowd foot to foot, head to head, no flower
 Breaks the soil. This is Azalea Path.
 A field of burdock opens to the south.
 Six feet of yellow gravel cover you.
 The artificial red sage does not stir
 In the basket of plastic evergreens they put
 At the headstone next to yours, nor does it rot,
 Although the rains dissolve a bloody dye:
 The ersatz petals drip, and they drip red.

Another kind of redness bothers me:
The day your slack sail drank my sister's breath
The flat sea purpled like that evil cloth
My mother unrolled at your last homecoming.
 I borrow the stilts of an old tragedy.
 The truth is, one late October, at my birth-cry
 A scorpion stung its head, an ill-starred thing;
 My mother dreamed you face down in the sea.

The stony actors poise and pause for breath.
 I brought my love to bear, and then you died.
 It was the gangrene ate you to the bone
 My mother said; you died like any man.
 How shall I age into that state of mind?
 I am the ghost of an infamous suicide,
 My own blue razor rusting in my throat.
 O pardon the one who knocks for pardon at
 Your gate, father—your hound-bitch, daughter, friend.
 It was my love that did us both to death.

The Beekeeper's Daughter

A garden of mouthings. Purple, scarlet-speckled, black
 The great corollas dilate, peeling back their silks.
 Their musk encroaches, circle after circle,
 A well of scents almost too dense to breathe in.
 Hieratical in your frock coat, maestro of the bees,
 You move among the many-breasted hives,

My heart under your foot, sister of a stone.

Trumpet-throats open to the beaks of birds.
 The Golden Rain Tree drips its powders down.
 In these little boudoirs streaked with orange and red
 The anthers nod their heads, potent as kings
 To father dynasties. The air is rich.
 Here is a queenship no mother can contest—

A fruit that's death to taste: dark flesh, dark parings.

In burrows narrow as a finger, solitary bees
 Keep house among the grasses. Kneeling down
 I set my eye to a hole-mouth and meet an eye
 Round, green, disconsolate as a tear.
 Father, bridegroom, in this Easter egg
 Under the coronal of sugar roses

The queen bee marries the winter of your year.

The Hermit at Outermost House

Sky and sea, horizon-hinged
 Tablets of blank blue, couldn't,
 Clapped shut, flatten this man out.

The great gods, Stone-Head, Claw-Foot,
 Winded by much rock-bumping
 And claw-threat, realized that.

1959

For what, then, had they endured
Dourly the long hots and colds,
Those old despots, if he sat

Laugh-shaken on his doorsill,
Backbone unbendable as
Timbers of his upright hut?

Hard gods were there, nothing else.
Still he thumbled out something else.
Thumbled no stony, horny pot,

But a certain meaning green.
He withstood them, that hermit.
Rock-face, crab-claw verged on green.

Gulls mulled in the greenest light.

106

Man in Black

Where the three magenta
Breakwaters take the shove
And suck of the gray sea

To the left, and the wave
Unfists against the dun
Barb-wired headland of

The Deer Island prison
With its trim piggeries,
Hen huts and cattle green

To the right, and March ice
Glazes the rock pools yet,
Snuff-colored sand cliffs rise

Over a great stone spit
Bared by each falling tide,
And you, across those white

1959

Stones, strode out in your dead
Black coat, black shoes, and your
Black hair till there you stood,

Fixed vortex on the far
Tip, riveting stones, air,
All of it, together.

107

Old Ladies' Home

Sharded in black, like beetles,
Frail as antique earthenware
One breath might shiver to bits,
The old women creep out here
To sun on the rocks or prop
Themselves up against the wall
Whose stones keep a little heat.

Needles knit in a bird-beaked
Counterpoint to their voices:
Sons, daughters, daughters and sons,
Distant and cold as photos,
Grandchildren nobody knows.
Age wears the best black fabric
Rust-red or green as lichens.

At owl-call the old ghosts flock
To hustle them off the lawn.
From beds boxed-in like coffins
The bonneted ladies grin.
And Death, that bald-head buzzard,
Stalls in halls where the lamp wick
Shortens with each breath drawn.

The Net-Menders

Halfway up from the little harbor of sardine boats,
 Halfway down from groves where the thin, bitter almond pips
 Fatten in green-pocked pods, the three net-menders sit out,
 Dressed in black, everybody in mourning for someone.
 They set their stout chairs back to the road and face the dark
 Dominoes of their doorways.

Sun grains their crow-colors,
 Purples the fig in the leaf's shadow, turns the dust pink.
 On the road named for Tomas Ortunio, mica
 Winks like money under the ringed toes of the chickens.
 The houses are white as sea-salt goats lick from the rocks.

While their fingers work with the coarse mesh and the fine
 Their eyes revolve the whole town like a blue and green ball.
 Nobody dies or is born without their knowing it.
 They talk of bride-lace, of lovers spunky as gamecocks.

The moon leans, a stone madonna, over the lead sea
 And the iron hills that enclose them. Earthen fingers Twist old words into the web-threads:

*Tonight may the fish
 Be a harvest of silver in the nets, and the lamps
 Of our husbands and sons move sure among the low stars.*

Magnolia Shoals

Up here among the gull cries
 we stroll through a maze of pale red-mottled relics, shells, claws

as if it were summer still.

That season has turned its back.
 Though the green sea gardens stall,

1959 bow, and recover their look of the imperishable gardens in an antique book

or tapestries on a wall,
leaves behind us warp and lapse.
The late month withers, as well.

Below us a white gull keeps the weed-slicked shelf for his own, hustles other gulls off. Crabs rove over his field of stone;

mussels cluster blue as grapes:
his beak brings the harvest in.

The watercolorist grips his brush in the stringent air.
The horizon's bare of ships,

the beach and the rocks are bare.
He paints a blizzard of gulls,
wings drumming in the winter.

The Sleepers

No map traces the street
Where those two sleepers are.
We have lost track of it.
They lie as if under water
In a blue, unchanging light,
The French window ajar

Curtained with yellow lace.
Through the narrow crack
Odors of wet earth rise.
The snail leaves a silver track;

1959

Dark thickets hedge the house.
We take a backward look.

Among petals pale as death
And leaves steadfast in shape
They sleep on, mouth to mouth.
A white mist is going up.
The small green nostrils breathe,
And they turn in their sleep.

Ousted from that warm bed
We are a dream they dream.
Their eyelids keep the shade.
No harm can come to them.
We cast our skins and slide
Into another time.

Yaddo: The Grand Manor

Woodsmoke and a distant loudspeaker
Filter into this clear
Air, and blur.

The red tomato's in, the green bean;
The cook lugs a pumpkin
From the vine

For pies. The fir tree's thick with grackles.
Gold carp loom in the pools.
A wasp crawls

Over windfalls to sip cider-juice.
Guests in the studios
Muse, compose.

Indoors, Tiffany's phoenix rises
Above the fireplace;
Two carved sleighs

1959

Rest on orange plush near the newel post.
Wood stoves burn warm as toast.
The late guest

Wakens, mornings, to a cobalt sky,
A diamond-paned window,
Zinc-white snow.

112

Medallion

By the gate with star and moon
Worked into the peeled orange wood
The bronze snake lay in the sun

Inert as a shoelace; dead
But pliable still, his jaw
Unhinged and his grin crooked,

Tongue a rose-colored arrow.
Over my hand I hung him.
His little vermilion eye

Ignited with a glassed flame
As I turned him in the light;
When I split a rock one time

The garnet bits burned like that.
Dust dulled his back to ochre
The way sun ruins a trout.

Yet his belly kept its fire
Going under the chainmail,
The old jewels smoldering there

In each opaque belly-scale:
Sunset looked at through milk glass.
And I saw white maggots coil

1959

Thin as pins in the dark bruise
Where his innards bulged as if
He were digesting a mouse.

Knifelike, he was chaste enough,
Pure death's-metal. The yardman's
Flung brick perfected his laugh.

113

The Manor Garden

The fountains are dry and the roses over.
Incense of death. Your day approaches.
The pears fatten like little buddhas.
A blue mist is dragging the lake.

You move through the era of fishes,
The smug centuries of the pig—
Head, toe and finger
Come clear of the shadow. History

Nourishes these broken flutings,
These crowns of acanthus,
And the crow settles her garments.
You inherit white heather, a bee's wing,

Two suicides, the family wolves,
Hours of blankness. Some hard stars
Already yellow the heavens.
The spider on its own string

Crosses the lake. The worms
Quit their usual habitations.
The small birds converge, converge
With their gifts to a difficult borning.

Blue Moles

(1)

They're out of the dark's ragbag, these two
 Moles dead in the pebbled rut,
 Shapeless as flung gloves, a few feet apart—
 Blue suede a dog or fox has chewed.
 One, by himself, seemed pitiable enough,
 Little victim unearthed by some large creature
 From his orbit under the elm root.
 The second carcass makes a duel of the affair:
 Blind twins bitten by bad nature.

The sky's far dome is sane and clear.
 Leaves, undoing their yellow caves
 Between the road and the lake water,
 Bare no sinister spaces. Already
 The moles look neutral as the stones.
 Their corkscrew noses, their white hands
 Uplifted, stiffen in a family pose.
 Difficult to imagine how fury struck—
 Dissolved now, smoke of an old war.

(2)

Nightly the battle-shouts start up
 In the ear of the veteran, and again
 I enter the soft pelt of the mole.
 Light's death to them: they shrivel in it.
 They move through their mute rooms while I sleep,
 Palming the earth aside, grubbers
 After the fat children of root and rock.
 By day, only the topsoil heaves.
 Down there one is alone.

Outsize hands prepare a path,
 They go before: opening the veins,
 Delving for the appendages
 Of beetles, sweetbreads, shards—to be eaten

Over and over. And still the heaven
 Of final surfeit is just as far
 From the door as ever. What happens between us
 Happens in darkness, vanishes
 Easy and often as each breath.

Dark Wood, Dark Water

This wood burns a dark
 Incense. Pale moss drips
 In elbow-scarves, beards

From the archaic
 Bones of the great trees.
 Blue mists move over

A lake thick with fish.
 Snails scroll the border
 Of the glazed water

With coils of ram's-horn.
 Out in the open
 Down there the late year

Hammers her rare and Various metals.
 Old pewter roots twist

Up from the jet-backed Mirror of water
 And while the air's clear

Hourglass sifts a Drift of goldpieces
 Bright waterlights are

Sliding their quoits one
 After the other
 Down boles of the fir.

1959

Polly's Tree

A dream tree, Polly's tree:
 a thicket of sticks,
 each speckled twig

ending in a thin-paned leaf unlike any other on it

or in a ghost flower flat as paper and of a color

vaporish as frost-breath,
 more finical than any silk fan

the Chinese ladies use to stir robin's egg
 air. The silver-

haired seed of the milkweed comes to roost there, frail
 as the halo

rayed round a candle flame,
 a will-o'-the-wisp
 nimbus, or puff

of cloud-stuff, tipping her queer candelabrum.
 Palely lit by

snuff-ruffed dandelions, white daisy wheels and a tiger-faced

pansy, it glows. O it's no family tree,
 Polly's tree, nor 1959 a tree of heaven, though it marry quartz-flake, feather and rose.

It sprang from her pillow whole as a cobweb,
ribbed like a hand,

a dream tree. Polly's tree wears a valentine arc of tear-pearled

bleeding hearts on its sleeve and, crowning it, one blue larkspur star.

117

The Colossus

I shall never get you put together entirely,
Pieced, glued, and properly jointed.
Mule-bray, pig-grunt and bawdy cackles
Proceed from your great lips.
It's worse than a barnyard.

Perhaps you consider yourself an oracle,
Mouthpiece of the dead, or of some god or other.
Thirty years now I have labored
To dredge the silt from your throat.
I am none the wiser.

Scaling little ladders with gluepots and pails of Lysol
I crawl like an ant in mourning
Over the weedy acres of your brow
To mend the immense skull-plates and clear
The bald, white tumuli of your eyes.

A blue sky out of the Oresteia
Arches above us. O father, all by yourself
You are pithy and historical as the Roman Forum.

1959

I open my lunch on a hill of black cypress.
Your fluted bones and acanthine hair are littered

In their old anarchy to the horizon-line.
It would take more than a lightning-stroke
To create such a ruin.
Nights, I squat in the cornucopia
Of your left ear, out of the wind,

Counting the red stars and those of plum-color.
The sun rises under the pillar of your tongue.
My hours are married to shadow.
No longer do I listen for the scrape of a keel
On the blank stones of the landing.

118

Private Ground

First frost, and I walk among the rose-fruit, the marble toes
Of the Greek beauties you brought Off Europe's relic heap
To sweeten your neck of the New York woods.
Soon each white lady will be boarded up
Against the cracking climate.

All morning, with smoking breath, the handyman
Has been draining the goldfish ponds.
They collapse like lungs, the escaped water
Threading back, filament by filament, to the pure
Platonic table where it lives. The baby carp
Litter the mud like orangepeel.

Eleven weeks, and I know your estate so well
I need hardly go out at all.
A superhighway seals me off.
Trading their poisons, the north and south bound cars
Flatten the doped snakes to ribbon. In here, the grasses
Unload their griefs on my shoes,

1959

The woods creak and ache, and the day forgets itself.
I bend over this drained basin where the small fish
Flex as the mud freezes.
They glitter like eyes, and I collect them all.
Morgue of old logs and old images, the lake
Opens and shuts, accepting them among its reflections.

Poem for a Birthday

1. Who

The month of flowering's finished. The fruit's in,
Eaten or rotten. I am all mouth.
October's the month for storage.

This shed's fusty as a mummy's stomach:
Old tools, handles and rusty tusks.
I am at home here among the dead heads.

Let me sit in a flowerpot,
The spiders won't notice.
My heart is a stopped geranium.

If only the wind would leave my lungs alone.
Dogbody noses the petals. They bloom upside down.
They rattle like hydrangea bushes.

Moldering heads console me,
Nailed to the rafters yesterday:
Inmates who don't hibernate.

Cabbageheads: wormy purple, silver-glaze,
A dressing of mule ears, mothy pelts, but green-hearted,
Their veins white as porkfat.

O the beauty of usage!
The orange pumpkins have no eyes.
These halls are full of women who think they are birds.

1959

This is a dull school.
I am a root, a stone, an owl pellet,
Without dreams of any sort.

Mother, you are the one mouth
I would be a tongue to. Mother of otherness
Eat me. Wastebasket gaper, shadow of doorways.

I said: I must remember this, being small.
There were such enormous flowers,
Purple and red mouths, utterly lovely.

The hoops of blackberry stems made me cry.
Now they light me up like an electric bulb.
For weeks I can remember nothing at all.

2. Dark House

This is a dark house, very big.
I made it myself,
Cell by cell from a quiet corner,
Chewing at the gray paper,
Oozing the glue drops,
Whistling, wiggling my ears,
Thinking of something else.

It has so many cellars,
Such eelish delvings!
I am round as an owl,
I see by my own light.
Any day I may litter puppies
Or mother a horse. My belly moves.
I must make more maps.

These marrowy tunnels!
Moley-handed, I eat my way.
All-mouth licks up the bushes
And the pots of meat.
He lives in an old well,
A stony hole. He's to blame.
He's a fat sort.

1959

Pebble smells, turnipy chambers.
Small nostrils are breathing.
Little humble loves!
Footlings, boneless as noses,
It is warm and tolerable
In the bowel of the root.
Here's a cuddly mother.

3. Maenad

Once I was ordinary:
Sat by my father's bean tree
Eating the fingers of wisdom.
The birds made milk.
When it thundered I hid under a flat stone.

The mother of mouths didn't love me.
The old man shrank to a doll.
O I am too big to go backward:
Birdmilk is feathers,
The bean leaves are dumb as hands.

This month is fit for little.
The dead ripen in the grapeleaves.
A red tongue is among us.
Mother, keep out of my barnyard,
I am becoming another.

Dog-head, devourer:
Feed me the berries of dark.
The lids won't shut. Time
Unwinds from the great umbilicus of the sun
Its endless glitter.

I must swallow it all.

Lady, who are these others in the moon's vat—
Sleepdrunk, their limbs at odds?
In this light the blood is black.
Tell me my name.

1959

4. The Beast

He was bullman earlier,
King of the dish, my lucky animal.
Breathing was easy in his airy holding.
The sun sat in his armpit.
Nothing went moldy. The little invisibles
Waited on him hand and foot.
The blue sisters sent me to another school.
Monkey lived under the dunce cap.
He kept blowing me kisses.
I hardly knew him.

He won't be got rid of:
Mumblepaws, teary and sorry,
Fido Littlesoul, the bowel's familiar.
A dustbin's enough for him.
The dark's his bone.
Call him any name, he'll come to it.

Mud-sump, happy sty-face.
I've married a cupboard of rubbish.
I bed in a fish puddle.
Down here the sky is always falling.
Hogwallow's at the window.
The star bugs won't save me this month.
I housekeep in Time's gut-end
Among emmets and mollusks,
Duchess of Nothing,
Hairtusk's bride.

5. Flute Notes from a Reedy Pond

Now coldness comes sifting down, layer after layer,
To our bower at the lily root.
Overhead the old umbrellas of summer
Wither like pithless hands. There is little shelter.

Hourly the eye of the sky enlarges its blank
Dominion. The stars are no nearer.
Already frog-mouth and fish-mouth drink
The liquor of indolence, and all things sink

Into a soft caul of forgetfulness.
 The fugitive colors die.
 Caddis worms drowse in their silk cases,
 The lamp-headed nymphs are nodding to sleep like statues.

Puppets, loosed from the strings of the puppet-master,
 Wear masks of horn to bed.
 This is not death, it is something safer.
 The wingy myths won't tug at us any more:

The molts are tongueless that sang from above the water
 Of golgotha at the tip of a reed,
 And how a god flimsy as a baby's finger
 Shall unhusk himself and steer into the air.

6. Witch Burning

In the marketplace they are piling the dry sticks.
 A thicket of shadows is a poor coat. I inhabit
 The wax image of myself, a doll's body.
 Sickness begins here: I am a dartboard for witches.
 Only the devil can eat the devil out.
 In the month of red leaves I climb to a bed of fire.

It is easy to blame the dark: the mouth of a door,
 The cellar's belly. They've blown my sparkler out.
 A black-sharded lady keeps me in a parrot cage.
 What large eyes the dead have!
 I am intimate with a hairy spirit.
 Smoke wheels from the beak of this empty jar.

If I am a little one, I can do no harm.
 If I don't move about, I'll knock nothing over. So I said,
 Sitting under a potlid, tiny and inert as a rice grain.
 They are turning the burners up, ring after ring.
 We are full of starch, my small white fellows. We grow.
 It hurts at first. The red tongues will teach the truth.

Mother of beetles, only unclench your hand:
 I'll fly through the candle's mouth like a singeless moth.

1959

Give me back my shape. I am ready to construe the days
I coupled with dust in the shadow of a stone.
My ankles brighten. Brightness ascends my thighs.
I am lost, I am lost, in the robes of all this light.

7. The Stones

This is the city where men are mended.
I lie on a great anvil.
The flat blue sky-circle

Flew off like the hat of a doll
When I fell out of the light. I entered
The stomach of indifference, the wordless cupboard.

The mother of pestles diminished me.
I became a still pebble.
The stones of the belly were peaceable,

The head-stone quiet, jostled by nothing.
Only the mouth-hole piped out,
Importunate cricket

In a quarry of silences.
The people of the city heard it.
They hunted the stones, taciturn and separate,

The mouth-hole crying their locations.
Drunk as a foetus
I suck at the paps of darkness.

The food tubes embrace me. Sponges kiss my lichens away.
The jewelmaster drives his chisel to pry
Open one stone eye.

This is the after-hell: I see the light.
A wind unstoppers the chamber
Of the ear, old worrier.

1959

Water mollifies the flint lip,
And daylight lays its sameness on the wall.
The grafters are cheerful,

Heating the pincers, hoisting the delicate hammers.
A current agitates the wires
Volt upon volt. Catgut stitches my fissures.

A workman walks by carrying a pink torso.
The storerooms are full of hearts.
This is the city of spare parts.

My swaddled legs and arms smell sweet as rubber.
Here they can doctor heads, or any limb.
On Fridays the little children come

To trade their hooks for hands.
Dead men leave eyes for others.
Love is the uniform of my bald nurse.

Love is the bone and sinew of my curse.
The vase, reconstructed, houses
The elusive rose.

Ten fingers shape a bowl for shadows.
My mendings itch. There is nothing to do.
I shall be good as new.

The Burnt-out Spa

An old beast ended in this place:

A monster of wood and rusty teeth.
Fire smelted his eyes to lumps
Of pale blue vitreous stuff, opaque
As resin drops oozed from pine bark.

1959

The rafters and struts of his body wear
Their char of karakul still. I can't tell How long his carcass has foundered under
The rubbish of summers, the black-leaved falls.

Now little weeds insinuate
Soft suede tongues between his bones.
His armorplate, his toppled stones
Are an esplanade for crickets.

I pick and pry like a doctor or Archaeologist among
Iron entrails, enamel bowls,
The coils and pipes that made him run.

The small dell eats what ate it once.
And yet the ichor of the spring
Proceeds clear as it ever did
From the broken throat, the marshy lip.

It flows off below the green and white
Balustrade of a sag-backed bridge.
Leaning over, I encounter one
Blue and improbable person

Framed in a basketwork of cat-tails.
O she is gracious and austere,
Seated beneath the toneless water!
It is not I, it is not I.

No animal spoils on her green doorstep.
And we shall never enter there
Where the durable ones keep house.
The stream that hustles us

Neither nourishes nor heals.

11 November 1959

Mushrooms

Overnight, very
Whitely, discreetly,
Very quietly

Our toes, our noses
Take hold on the loam,
Acquire the air.

Nobody sees us,
Stops us, betrays us;
The small grains make room.

Soft fists insist on Heaving the needles,
The leafy bedding,

Even the paving.
Our hammers, our rams,
Earless and eyeless,

Perfectly voiceless,
Widen the crannies,
Shoulder through holes. We

Diet on water,
On crumbs of shadow,
Bland-mannered, asking

Little or nothing.
So many of us!
So many of us!

We are shelves, we are
Tables, we are meek,
We are edible,

Nudgers and shovers
In spite of ourselves.
Our kind multiplies:

1959

We shall by morning
Inherit the earth.
Our foot's in the door.

You're

Clownlike, happiest on your hands,
Feet to the stars, and moon-skulled,
Gilled like a fish. A common-sense
Thumbs-down on the dodo's mode.
Wrapped up in yourself like a spool,
Trawling your dark as owls do.
Mute as a turnip from the Fourth
Of July to All Fools' Day,
O high-riser, my little loaf.

Vague as fog and looked for like mail.
Farther off than Australia.
Bent-backed Atlas, our traveled prawn.
Snug as a bud and at home
Like a sprat in a pickle jug.
A creel of eels, all ripples.
Jumpy as a Mexican bean.
Right, like a well-done sum.
A clean slate, with your own face on.

The Hanging Man

By the roots of my hair some god got hold of me.
I sizzled in his blue volts like a desert prophet.

The nights snapped out of sight like a lizard's eyelid:
A world of bald white days in a shadeless socket.

Stillborn

These poems do not live: it's a sad diagnosis.
They grew their toes and fingers well enough,
Their little foreheads bulged with concentration.
If they missed out on walking about like people
It wasn't for any lack of mother-love.

O I cannot understand what happened to them!
They are proper in shape and number and every part.
They sit so nicely in the pickling fluid!
They smile and smile and smile and smile at me.
And still the lungs won't fill and the heart won't start.

They are not pigs, they are not even fish,
Though they have a piggy and a fishy air —
It would be better if they were alive, and that's what they were.
But they are dead, and their mother near dead with distraction,
And they stupidly stare, and do not speak of her.

125

On Deck

Midnight in the mid-Atlantic. On deck.
Wrapped up in themselves as in thick veiling
And mute as mannequins in a dress shop,
Some few passengers keep track
Of the old star-map on the ceiling.
Tiny and far, a single ship

Lit like a two-tiered wedding cake
Carries its candles slowly off.
Now there is nothing much to look at.
Still nobody will move or speak —
The bingo players, the players at love
On a square no bigger than a carpet

1960

Are hustled over the crests and troughs,
Each stalled in his particular minute
And castled in it like a king.
Small drops spot their coats, their gloves:
They fly too fast to feel the wet.
Anything can happen where they are going.

The untidy lady revivalist
For whom the good Lord provides (He gave
Her a pocketbook, a pearl hatpin
And seven winter coats last August)
Prays under her breath that she may save
The art students in West Berlin.

The astrologer at her elbow (a Leo)
Picked his trip-date by the stars.
He is gratified by the absence of icecakes.
He'll be rich in a year (and he should know)
Selling the Welsh and English mothers
Nativities at two-and-six.

And the white-haired jeweler from Denmark is carving
A perfectly faceted wife to wait
On him hand and foot, quiet as a diamond.
Moony balloons tied by a string
To their owners' wrists, the light dreams float
To be let loose at news of land.

Sleep in the Mojave Desert

Out here there are no hearthstones,
Hot grains, simply. It is dry, dry.
And the air dangerous. Noonday acts queerly
On the mind's eye, erecting a line
Of poplars in the middle distance, the only
Object beside the mad, straight road
One can remember men and houses by.

1960

A cool wind should inhabit those leaves
And a dew collect on them, dearer than money,
In the blue hour before sunup.
Yet they recede, untouchable as tomorrow,
Or those glittery fictions of spilt water
That glide ahead of the very thirsty.

I think of the lizards airing their tongues
In the crevice of an extremely small shadow
And the toad guarding his heart's droplet.
The desert is white as a blind man's eye,
Comfortless as salt. Snake and bird
Doze behind the old masks of fury.
We swelter like firedogs in the wind.
The sun puts its cinder out. Where we lie
The heat-cracked crickets congregate
In their black armorplate and cry.
The day-moon lights up like a sorry mother,
And the crickets come creeping into our hair
To fiddle the short night away.

Two Campers in Cloud Country

(Rock Lake, Canada)

In this country there is neither measure nor balance
To redress the dominance of rocks and woods,
The passage, say, of these man-shaming clouds.

No gesture of yours or mine could catch their attention,
No word make them carry water or fire the kindling
Like local trolls in the spell of a superior being.

Well, one wearies of the Public Gardens: one wants a vacation
Where trees and clouds and animals pay no notice;
Away from the labeled elms, the tame tea-roses.

1960

It took three days driving north to find a cloud
The polite skies over Boston couldn't possibly accommodate.
Here on the last frontier of the big, brash spirit

The horizons are too far off to be chummy as uncles;
The colors assert themselves with a sort of vengeance.
Each day concludes in a huge splurge of vermilions

And night arrives in one gigantic step.
It is comfortable, for a change, to mean so little.
These rocks offer no purchase to herbage or people:

They are conceiving a dynasty of perfect cold.
In a month we'll wonder what plates and forks are for.
I lean to you, numb as a fossil. Tell me I'm here.

The Pilgrims and Indians might never have happened.
Planets pulse in the lake like bright amoebas;
The pines blot our voices up in their lightest sighs.

Around our tent the old simplicities sough
Sleepily as Lethe, trying to get in.
We'll wake blank-brained as water in the dawn.

Leaving Early

Lady, your room is lousy with flowers.
When you kick me out, that's what I'll remember,
Me, sitting here bored as a leopard
In your jungle of wine-bottle lamps,
Velvet pillows the colour of blood pudding
And the white china flying fish from Italy.
I forget you, hearing the cut flowers
Sipping their liquids from assorted pots,
Pitchers and Coronation goblets
Like Monday drunkards. The milky berries
Bow down, a local constellation,

1960

Toward their admirers in the tabletop:
Mobs of eyeballs looking up.
Are those petals or leaves you've paired them with—
Those green-striped ovals of silver tissue?
The red geraniums I know.
Friends, friends. They stink of armpits
And the involved maladies of autumn,
Musky as a lovebed the morning after.
My nostrils prickle with nostalgia.
Henna hags: cloth of your cloth.
They toe old water thick as fog.

The roses in the toby jug
Gave up the ghost last night. High time.
Their yellow corsets were ready to split.
You snored, and I heard the petals unlatch,
Tapping and ticking like nervous fingers.
You should have junked them before they died.
Daybreak discovered the bureau lid
Littered with Chinese hands. Now I'm stared at
By chrysanthemums the size
Of Holofernes' head, dipped in the same
Magenta as this fubsy sofa.
In the mirror their doubles back them up.
Listen: your tenant mice
Are rattling the cracker packets. Fine flour
Muffles their bird-feet: they whistle for joy.
And you doze on, nose to the wall.
This mizzle fits me like a sad jacket.
How did we make it up to your attic?
You handed me gin in a glass bud vase.
We slept like stones. Lady, what am I doing
With a lung full of dust and a tongue of wood,
Knee-deep in the cold and swamped by flowers?

Love Letter

Not easy to state the change you made.
If I'm alive now, then I was dead,
Though, like a stone, unbothered by it,
Staying put according to habit.
You didn't just toe me an inch, no —
Nor leave me to set my small bald eye
Skyward again, without hope, of course,
Of apprehending blueness, or stars.

That wasn't it. I slept, say: a snake
Masked among black rocks as a black rock
In the white hiatus of winter —
Like my neighbors, taking no pleasure
In the million perfectly-chiseled
Cheeks alighting each moment to melt
My cheek of basalt. They turned to tears,
Angels weeping over dull natures,
But didn't convince me. Those tears froze.
Each dead head had a visor of ice.

And I slept on like a bent finger.
The first thing I saw was sheer air
And the locked drops rising in a dew
Limpid as spirits. Many stones lay
Dense and expressionless round about.
I didn't know what to make of it.
I shone, mica-scaled, and unfolded
To pour myself out like a fluid
Among bird feet and the stems of plants.
I wasn't fooled. I knew you at once.

Tree and stone glittered, without shadows.
My finger-length grew lucent as glass.
I started to bud like a March twig:
An arm and a leg, an arm, a leg.
From stone to cloud, so I ascended.
Now I resemble a sort of god
Floating through the air in my soul-shift
Pure as a pane of ice. It's a gift.

Magi

The abstracts hover like dull angels:
 Nothing so vulgar as a nose or an eye
 Bossing the ethereal blanks of their face-ovals.

Their whiteness bears no relation to laundry,
 Snow, chalk or suchlike. They're
 The real thing, all right: the Good, the True—

Salutary and pure as boiled water,
 Loveless as the multiplication table.
 While the child smiles into thin air.

Six months in the world, and she is able
 To rock on all fours like a padded hammock.
 For her, the heavy notion of Evil

Attending her cot is less than a belly ache,
 And Love the mother of milk, no theory.
 They mistake their star, these papery godfolk.

They want the crib of some lamp-headed Plato.
 Let them astound his heart with their merit.
 What girl ever flourished in such company?

Candles

They are the last romantics, these candles:
 Upside down hearts of light tipping wax fingers,
 And the fingers, taken in by their own haloes,
 Grown milky, almost clear, like the bodies of saints.
 It is touching, the way they'll ignore

A whole family of prominent objects
 Simply to plumb the deeps of an eye
 In its hollow of shadows, its fringe of reeds,
 And the owner past thirty, no beauty at all.
 Daylight would be more judicious,

1960

Giving everybody a fair hearing.
They should have gone out with balloon flights and the stereopticon.
This is no time for the private point of view.
When I light them, my nostrils prickle.
Their pale, tentative yellows

Drag up false, Edwardian sentiments,
And I remember my maternal grandmother from Vienna.
As a schoolgirl she gave roses to Franz Josef.
The burghers sweated and wept. The children wore white.
And my grandfather moped in the Tyrol,

Imagining himself a headwaiter in America,
Floating in a high-church hush
Among ice buckets, frosty napkins.
These little globes of light are sweet as pears.
Kindly with invalids and mawkish women,

They mollify the bald moon.
Nun-souled, they burn heavenward and never marry.
The eyes of the child I nurse are scarcely open.
In twenty years I shall be retrograde
As these draughty ephemerids.

I watch their spilt tears cloud and dull to pearls.
How shall I tell anything at all
To this infant still in a birth-drowse?
Tonight, like a shawl, the mild light enfolds her,
The shadows stoop over like guests at a christening.

A Life

Touch it: it won't shrink like an eyeball,
This egg-shaped bailiwick, clear as a tear.
Here's yesterday, last year—
Palm-spear and lily distinct as flora in the vast Windless threadwork of a tapestry.

1960

Flick the glass with your fingernail:
It will ping like a Chinese chime in the slightest air stir
Though nobody in there looks up or bothers to answer.
The inhabitants are light as cork,
Every one of them permanently busy.

At their feet, the sea waves bow in single file,
Never trespassing in bad temper:
Stalling in midair,
Short-reined, pawing like paradeground horses.
Overhead, the clouds sit tasseled and fancy

As Victorian cushions. This family
Of valentine-faces might please a collector:
They ring true, like good china.

Elsewhere the landscape is more frank.
The light falls without letup, blindingly.

A woman is dragging her shadow in a circle
About a bald, hospital saucer.
It resembles the moon, or a sheet of blank paper
And appears to have suffered a sort of private blitzkrieg.
She lives quietly

With no attachments, like a foetus in a bottle,
The obsolete house, the sea, flattened to a picture
She has one too many dimensions to enter.
Grief and anger, exorcized,
Leave her alone now.

The future is a gray seagull
Tattling in its cat-voice of departure, departure.
Age and terror, like nurses, attend her,
And a drowned man, complaining of the great cold,
Crawls up out of the sea.

Waking in Winter

I can taste the tin of the sky—the real tin thing.
Winter dawn is the color of metal,
The trees stiffen into place like burnt nerves.
All night I have dreamed of destruction, annihilations—
An assembly-line of cut throats, and you and I
Inching off in the gray Chevrolet, drinking the green
Poison of stilled lawns, the little clapboard gravestones,
Noiseless, on rubber wheels, on the way to the sea resort.

How the balconies echoed! How the sun lit up
The skulls, the unbuckled bones facing the view!
Space! Space! The bed linen was giving out entirely.
Cot legs melted in terrible attitudes, and the nurses—
Each nurse patched her soul to a wound and disappeared.
The deathly guests had not been satisfied
With the rooms, or the smiles, or the beautiful rubber plants,
Or the sea, hushing their peeled sense like Old Mother Morphia.

Parliament Hill Fields

On this bald hill the new year hones its edge.
Faceless and pale as china
The round sky goes on minding its business.
Your absence is inconspicuous;
Nobody can tell what I lack.

Gulls have threaded the river's mud bed back
To this crest of grass. Inland, they argue,
Settling and stirring like blown paper
Or the hands of an invalid. The wan
Sun manages to strike such tin glints

From the linked ponds that my eyes wince
And brim; the city melts like sugar.
A crocodile of small girls
Knotting and stopping, ill-assorted, in blue uniforms,
Opens to swallow me. I'm a stone, a stick,

One child drops a barrette of pink plastic;
None of them seem to notice.
Their shrill, gravelly gossip's funneled off.
Now silence after silence offers itself.
The wind stops my breath like a bandage.

Southward, over Kentish Town, an ashen smudge
Swaddles roof and tree.
It could be a snowfield or a cloudbank.
I suppose it's pointless to think of you at all.
Already your doll grip lets go.

1961

The tumulus, even at noon, guards its black shadow:
You know me less constant,
Ghost of a leaf, ghost of a bird.
I circle the writhen trees. I am too happy.
These faithful dark-boughed cypresses

Brood, rooted in their heaped losses.
Your cry fades like the cry of a gnat.
I lose sight of you on your blind journey,
While the heath grass glitters and the spindling rivulets
Unspool and spend themselves. My mind runs with them,

Pooling in heel-prints, fumbling pebble and stem.
The day empties its images
Like a cup or a room. The moon's crook whitens,
Thin as the skin seaming a scar.
Now, on the nursery wall,

The blue night plants, the little pale blue hill
In your sister's birthday picture start to glow.
The orange pompons, the Egyptian papyrus Light up. Each rabbit-eared Blue shrub behind the glass

Exhales an indigo nimbus,
A sort of cellophane balloon.
The old dregs, the old difficulties take me to wife.
Gulls stiffen to their chill vigil in the drafty half-light;
I enter the lit house.

Whitsun

This is not what I meant:
Stucco arches, the banked rocks sunning in rows,
Bald eyes or petrified eggs,
Grownups confined in stockings and jackets,
Lard-pale, sipping the thin
Air like a medicine.

1961

The stopped horse on his chromium pole
Stares through us; his hooves chew the breeze.
Your shirt of crisp linen
Bloats like a spinnaker. Hat-brims
Deflect the watery dazzle; the people idle
As if in hospital.

I can smell the salt, all right.
At our feet, the weed-mustachioed sea
Exhibits its glaucous silks,
Bowing and truckling like an old-school Oriental.
You're no happier than I about it.
A policeman points out a vacant cliff

Green as a pool table, where cabbage butterflies
Peel off to sea as gulls do,
And we picnic in the death-stench of a hawthorn.
The waves pulse and pulse like hearts.
Beached under the spumy blooms, we lie
Seasick and fever-dry.

Zoo Keeper's Wife

I can stay awake all night, if need be —
Cold as an eel, without eyelids.
Like a dead lake the dark envelops me,
Blueblack, a spectacular plum fruit.
No airbubbles start from my heart, I am lungless
And ugly, my belly a silk stocking
Where the heads and tails of my sisters decompose.
Look, they are melting like coins in the powerful juices —

The spidery jaws, the spine bones bared for a moment
Like the white lines on a blueprint.
Should I stir, I think this pink and purple plastic
Guts bag would clack like a child's rattle,
Old grievances jostling each other, so many loose teeth.

1961

But what do you know about that
My fat pork, my marrowy sweetheart, face-to-the-wall?
Some things of this world are indigestible.

You wooed me with the wolf-headed fruit bats
Hanging from their scorched hooks in the moist
Fug of the Small Mammal House.
The armadillo dozed in his sandbin
Obscene and bald as a pig, the white mice
Multiplied to infinity like angels on a pinhead
Out of sheer boredom. Tangled in the sweat-wet sheets
I remember the bloodied chicks and the quartered rabbits.

You checked the diet charts and took me to play
With the boa constrictor in the Fellows' Garden.
I pretended I was the Tree of Knowledge.
I entered your bible, I boarded your ark
With the sacred baboon in his wig and wax ears
And the bear-furred, bird-eating spider
Clambering round its glass box like an eight-fingered hand.
I can't get it out of my mind

How our courtship lit the tindery cages —
Your two-horned rhinoceros opened a mouth
Dirty as a bootsole and big as a hospital sink
For my cube of sugar: its bog breath
Gloved my arm to the elbow.
The snails blew kisses like black apples.
Nightly now I flog apes owls bears sheep
Over their iron stile. And still don't sleep.

Face Lift

You bring me good news from the clinic,
Whipping off your silk scarf, exhibiting the tight white
Mummy-cloths, smiling: I'm all right.
When I was nine, a lime-green anesthetist

1961

Fed me banana gas through a frog-mask. The nauseous vault
Boomed with bad dreams and the Jovian voices of surgeons.
Then mother swam up, holding a tin basin.
O I was sick.

They've changed all that. Traveling
Nude as Cleopatra in my well-boiled hospital shift,
Fizzy with sedatives and unusually humorous,
I roll to an anteroom where a kind man
Fists my fingers for me. He makes me feel something precious
Is leaking from the finger-vents. At the count of two Darkness wipes me out like chalk on a blackboard. . .
I don't know a thing.

For five days I lie in secret,
Tapped like a cask, the years draining into my pillow.
Even my best friend thinks I'm in the country.
Skin doesn't have roots, it peels away easy as paper.
When I grin, the stitches tauten. I grow backward. I'm twenty,
Broody and in long skirts on my first husband's sofa, my fingers
Buried in the lambswool of the dead poodle;
I hadn't a cat yet.

Now she's done for, the dewlapped lady
I watched settle, line by line, in my mirror —
Old sock-face, sagged on a darning egg.
They've trapped her in some laboratory jar.
Let her die there, or wither incessantly for the next fifty years,
Nodding and rocking and fingering her thin hair.
Mother to myself, I wake swaddled in gauze,
Pink and smooth as a baby.

Morning Song

Love set you going like a fat gold watch.
The midwife slapped your footsoles, and your bald cry
Took its place among the elements.

156

1961

Our voices echo, magnifying your arrival. New statue.
In a drafty museum, your nakedness
Shadows our safety. We stand round blankly as walls.

I'm no more your mother
Than the cloud that distills a mirror to reflect its own slow
Effacement at the wind's hand.

All night your moth-breath
Flickers among the flat pink roses. I wake to listen:
A far sea moves in my ear.

One cry, and I stumble from bed, cow-heavy and floral
In my Victorian nightgown.
Your mouth opens clean as a cat's. The window square

Whitens and swallows its dull stars. And now you try
Your handful of notes;
The clear vowels rise like balloons.

Barren Woman

Empty, I echo to the least footfall,
Museum without statues, grand with pillars, porticoes, rotundas.
In my courtyard a fountain leaps and sinks back into itself,
Nun-hearted and blind to the world. Marble lilies
Exhale their pallor like scent.

I imagine myself with a great public,
Mother of a white Nike and several bald-eyed Apollos.
Instead, the dead injure me with attentions, and nothing can happen.
The moon lays a hand on my forehead,
Blank-faced and mum as a nurse.

Heavy Women

Irrefutable, beautifully smug
As Venus, pedestaled on a half-shell
Shawled in blond hair and the salt
Scrim of a sea breeze, the women
Settle in their bellling dresses.
Over each weighty stomach a face
Floats calm as a moon or a cloud.

Smiling to themselves, they meditate
Devoutly as the Dutch bulb
Forming its twenty petals.
The dark still nurses its secret.
On the green hill, under the thorn trees,
They listen for the millennium,
The knock of the small, new heart.

Pink-buttocked infants attend them.
Looping wool, doing nothing in particular,
They step among the archetypes.
Dusk hoods them in Mary-blue
While far off, the axle of winter
Grinds round, bearing down with the straw,
The star, the wise gray men.

In Plaster

I shall never get out of this! There are two of me now:
This new absolutely white person and the old yellow one,
And the white person is certainly the superior one.
She doesn't need food, she is one of the real saints.
At the beginning I hated her, she had no personality—
She lay in bed with me like a dead body
And I was scared, because she was shaped just the way I was Only much whiter and unbreakable and with no complaints.

I couldn't sleep for a week, she was so cold.

158

I blamed her for everything, but she didn't answer.
 I couldn't understand her stupid behavior!
 When I hit her she held still, like a true pacifist.
 Then I realized what she wanted was for me to love her:
 She began to warm up, and I saw her advantages.

Without me, she wouldn't exist, so of course she was grateful.
 I gave her a soul, I bloomed out of her as a rose
 Blooms out of a vase of not very valuable porcelain,
 And it was I who attracted everybody's attention,
 Not her whiteness and beauty, as I had at first supposed.
 I patronized her a little, and she lapped it up—
 You could tell almost at once she had a slave mentality.

I didn't mind her waiting on me, and she adored it.
 In the morning she woke me early, reflecting the sun
 From her amazingly white torso, and I couldn't help but notice
 Her tidiness and her calmness and her patience:
 She humored my weakness like the best of nurses,
 Holding my bones in place so they would mend properly.
 In time our relationship grew more intense.

She stopped fitting me so closely and seemed offish.
 I felt her criticizing me in spite of herself,
 As if my habits offended her in some way.
 She let in the drafts and became more and more absent-minded.
 And my skin itched and flaked away in soft pieces
 Simply because she looked after me so badly.
 Then I saw what the trouble was: she thought she was immortal.

She wanted to leave me, she thought she was superior,
 And I'd been keeping her in the dark, and she was resentful—
 Wasting her days waiting on a half-corpsel
 And secretly she began to hope I'd die.
 Then she could cover my mouth and eyes, cover me entirely,
 And wear my painted face the way a mummy-case
 Wears the face of a pharaoh, though it's made of mud and water.

I wasn't in any position to get rid of her.
 She'd supported me for so long I was quite limp—
 I had even forgotten how to walk or sit,

1961

So I was careful not to upset her in any way
Or brag ahead of time how I'd avenge myself.
Living with her was like living with my own coffin:
Yet I still depended on her, though I did it regretfully.

I used to think we might make a go of it together—
After all, it was a kind of marriage, being so close.
Now I see it must be one or the other of us.
She may be a saint, and I may be ugly and hairy,
But she'll soon find out that that doesn't matter a bit.
I'm collecting my strength; one day I shall manage without her,
And she'll perish with emptiness then, and begin to miss me.

Tulips

The tulips are too excitable, it is winter here.
Look how white everything is, how quiet, how snowed-in.
I am learning peacefulness, lying by myself quietly
As the light lies on these white walls, this bed, these hands.
I am nobody; I have nothing to do with explosions.
I have given my name and my day-clothes up to the nurses
And my history to the anesthetist and my body to surgeons.

They have propped my head between the pillow and the sheet-cuff
Like an eye between two white lids that will not shut.
Stupid pupil, it has to take everything in.
The nurses pass and pass, they are no trouble,
They pass the way gulls pass inland in their white caps,
Doing things with their hands, one just the same as another,
So it is impossible to tell how many there are.

My body is a pebble to them, they tend it as water
Tends to the pebbles it must run over, smoothing them gently.
They bring me numbness in their bright needles, they bring me sleep.
Now I have lost myself I am sick of baggage——
My patent leather overnight case like a black pillbox,
My husband and child smiling out of the family photo;
Their smiles catch onto my skin, little smiling hooks.

I have let things slip, a thirty-year-old cargo boat
 Stubbornly hanging on to my name and address.
 They have swabbed me clear of my loving associations.
 Scared and bare on the green plastic-pillowed trolley
 I watched my teaset, my bureaus of linen, my books
 Sink out of sight, and the water went over my head.
 I am a nun now, I have never been so pure.

I didn't want any flowers, I only wanted
 To lie with my hands turned up and be utterly empty.
 How free it is, you have no idea how free——
 The peacefulness is so big it dazes you,
 And it asks nothing, a name tag, a few trinkets.
 It is what the dead close on, finally; I imagine them
 Shutting their mouths on it, like a Communion tablet.

The tulips are too red in the first place, they hurt me.
 Even through the gift paper I could hear them breathe
 Lightly, through their white swaddlings, like an awful baby.
 Their redness talks to my wound, it corresponds.
 They are subtle: they seem to float, though they weigh me down,
 Upsetting me with their sudden tongues and their color,
 A dozen red lead sinkers round my neck.

Nobody watched me before, now I am watched.
 The tulips turn to me, and the window behind me
 Where once a day the light slowly widens and slowly thins,
 And I see myself, flat, ridiculous, a cut-paper shadow
 Between the eye of the sun and the eyes of the tulips,
 And I have no face, I have wanted to efface myself.
 The vivid tulips eat my oxygen.

Before they came the air was calm enough,
 Coming and going, breath by breath, without any fuss.
 Then the tulips filled it up like a loud noise.
 Now the air snags and eddies round them the way a river
 Snags and eddies round a sunken rust-red engine.
 They concentrate my attention, that was happy
 Playing and resting without committing itself.

1961

The walls, also, seem to be warming themselves.
The tulips should be behind bars like dangerous animals;
They are opening like the mouth of some great African cat,
And I am aware of my heart: it opens and closes
Its bowl of red blooms out of sheer love of me.
The water I taste is warm and salt, like the sea,
And comes from a country far away as health.

I Am Vertical

But I would rather be horizontal.
I am not a tree with my root in the soil
Sucking up minerals and motherly love
So that each March I may gleam into leaf,
Nor am I the beauty of a garden bed
Attracting my share of Ahs and spectacularly painted,
Unknowing I must soon unpetal.
Compared with me, a tree is immortal
And a flower-head not tall, but more startling,
And I want the one's longevity and the other's daring.

Tonight, in the infinitesimal light of the stars,
The trees and flowers have been strewing their cool odors.
I walk among them, but none of them are noticing.
Sometimes I think that when I am sleeping
I must most perfectly resemble them—
Thoughts gone dim.
It is more natural to me, lying down.
Then the sky and I are in open conversation,
And I shall be useful when I lie down finally:
Then the trees may touch me for once, and the flowers have time for me.

Insomniac

The night sky is only a sort of carbon paper,
Blueblack, with the much-poked periods of stars
Letting in the light, peephole after peephole—
A bonewhite light, like death, behind all things.
Under the eyes of the stars and the moon's rictus
He suffers his desert pillow, sleeplessness
Stretching its fine, irritating sand in all directions.

Over and over the old, granular movie
Exposes embarrassments—the mizzling days
Of childhood and adolescence, sticky with dreams,
Parental faces on tall stalks, alternately stern and tearful,
A garden of buggy roses that made him cry.
His forehead is bumpy as a sack of rocks.
Memories jostle each other for face-room like obsolete film stars.

He is immune to pills: red, purple, blue—
How they lit the tedium of the protracted evening!
Those sugary planets whose influence won for him
A life baptized in no-life for a while,
And the sweet, drugged waking of a forgetful baby.
Now the pills are worn-out and silly, like classical gods.
Their poppy-sleepy colors do him no good.

His head is a little interior of gray mirrors.
Each gesture flees immediately down an alley
Of diminishing perspectives, and its significance
Drains like water out the hole at the far end.
He lives without privacy in a lidless room,
The bald slots of his eyes stiffened wide-open
On the incessant heat-lightning flicker of situations.

Nightlong, in the granite yard, invisible cats
Have been howling like women, or damaged instruments.
Already he can feel daylight, his white disease,
Creeping up with her hatful of trivial repetitions.
The city is a map of cheerful twitters now,
And everywhere people, eyes mica-silver and blank,
Are riding to work in rows, as if recently brainwashed.

May 1961

Widow

145

Widow. The word consumes itself—
 Body, a sheet of newsprint on the fire
 Levitating a numb minute in the updraft
 Over the scalding, red topography
 That will put her heart out like an only eye.

Widow. The dead syllable, with its shadow
 Of an echo, exposes the panel in the wall
 Behind which the secret passage lies—stale air,
 Fusty remembrances, the coiled-spring stair
 That opens at the top onto nothing at all. . . .

Widow. The bitter spider sits
 And sits in the center of her loveless spokes.
 Death is the dress she wears, her hat and collar.
 The moth-face of her husband, moonwhite and ill,
 Circles her like a prey she'd love to kill

A second time, to have him near again—
 A paper image to lay against her heart
 The way she laid his letters, till they grew warm
 And seemed to give her warmth, like a live skin.
 But it is she who is paper now, warmed by no one.

Widow: that great, vacant estate!
 The voice of God is full of draftiness,
 Promising simply the hard stars, the space
 Of immortal blankness between stars
 And no bodies, singing like arrows up to heaven.

Widow, the compassionate trees bend in,
 The trees of loneliness, the trees of mourning.
 They stand like shadows about the green landscape—
 Or even like black holes cut out of it.
 A widow resembles them, a shadow-thing,

Hand folding hand, and nothing in between.
 A bodiless soul could pass another soul
 In this clear air and never notice it—

1961

One soul pass through the other, frail as smoke
And utterly ignorant of the way it took.

That is the fear she has—the fear
His soul may beat and be beating at her dull sense
Like blue Mary's angel, dovelike against a pane
Blinded to all but the gray, spiritless room
It looks in on, and must go on looking in on.

Stars Over the Dordogne

Stars are dropping thick as stones into the twiggy
Picket of trees whose silhouette is darker
Than the dark of the sky because it is quite starless.
The woods are a well. The stars drop silently.
They seem large, yet they drop, and no gap is visible.
Nor do they send up fires where they fall
Or any signal of distress or anxiousness.
They are eaten immediately by the pines.

Where I am at home, only the sparsest stars
Arrive at twilight, and then after some effort.
And they are wan, dulled by much travelling.
The smaller and more timid never arrive at all
But stay, sitting far out, in their own dust.
They are orphans. I cannot see them. They are lost.
But tonight they have discovered this river with no trouble,
They are scrubbed and self-assured as the great planets.

The Big Dipper is my only familiar.
I miss Orion and Cassiopeia's Chair. Maybe they are Hanging shyly under the studded horizon
Like a child's too-simple mathematical problem.
Infinite number seems to be the issue up there.
Or else they are present, and their disguise so bright
I am overlooking them by looking too hard.
Perhaps it is the season that is not right.

And what if the sky here is no different,
 And it is my eyes that have been sharpening themselves?
 Such a luxury of stars would embarrass me.
 The few I am used to are plain and durable;
 I think they would not wish for this dressy backcloth
 Or much company, or the mildness of the south.
 They are too puritan and solitary for that —
 When one of them falls it leaves a space,

A sense of absence in its old shining place.
 And where I lie now, back to my own dark star,
 I see those constellations in my head,
 Unwarmed by the sweet air of this peach orchard.
 There is too much ease here; these stars treat me too well.
 On this hill, with its view of lit castles, each swung bell
 Is accounting for its cow. I shut my eyes
 And drink the small night chill like news of home.

The Rival

If the moon smiled, she would resemble you.
 You leave the same impression
 Of something beautiful, but annihilating.
 Both of you are great light borrowers.
 Her O-mouth grieves at the world; yours is unaffected,

And your first gift is making stone out of everything.
 I wake to a mausoleum; you are here,
 Ticking your fingers on the marble table, looking for cigarettes,
 Spiteful as a woman, but not so nervous,
 And dying to say something unanswerable.

The moon, too, abases her subjects,
 But in the daytime she is ridiculous.
 Your dissatisfactions, on the other hand,
 Arrive through the mailslot with loving regularity,
 White and blank, expansive as carbon monoxide.

1961

No day is safe from news of you,
Walking about in Africa maybe, but thinking of me.

Wuthering Heights

The horizons ring me like faggots,
Tilted and disparate, and always unstable.
Touched by a match, they might warm me,
And their fine lines singe
The air to orange
Before the distances they pin evaporate,
Weighting the pale sky with a solider color.
But they only dissolve and dissolve
Like a series of promises, as I step forward.

There is no life higher than the grasstops
Or the hearts of sheep, and the wind
Pours by like destiny, bending
Everything in one direction.
I can feel it trying
To funnel my heat away.
If I pay the roots of the heather
Too close attention, they will invite me
To whiten my bones among them.

The sheep know where they are,
Browsing in their dirty wool-clouds,
Gray as the weather.
The black slots of their pupils take me in.
It is like being mailed into space,
A thin, silly message.
They stand about in grandmotherly disguise,
All wig curls and yellow teeth
And hard, marbly baas.

I come to wheel ruts, and water
Limpid as the solitudes

1961

That flee through my fingers.
Hollow doorsteps go from grass to grass;
Lintel and sill have unhinged themselves.
Of people the air only
Remembers a few odd syllables.
It rehearses them moaningly:
Black stone, black stone.

The sky leans on me, me, the one upright
Among all horizontals.
The grass is beating its head distractedly.
It is too delicate
For a life in such company;
Darkness terrifies it.
Now, in valleys narrow
And black as purses, the house lights
Gleam like small change.

Blackberrying

Nobody in the lane, and nothing, nothing but blackberries,
Blackberries on either side, though on the right mainly,
A blackberry alley, going down in hooks, and a sea
Somewhere at the end of it, heaving. Blackberries
Big as the ball of my thumb, and dumb as eyes
Ebon in the hedges, fat
With blue-red juices. These they squander on my fingers.
I had not asked for such a blood sisterhood; they must love me.
They accommodate themselves to my milkbottle, flattening their sides.

Overhead go the choughs in black, cacophonous flocks—
Bits of burnt paper wheeling in a blown sky.
Theirs is the only voice, protesting, protesting.
I do not think the sea will appear at all.
The high, green meadows are glowing, as if lit from within.
I come to one bush of berries so ripe it is a bush of flies,
Hanging their bluegreen bellies and their wing panes in a Chinese screen.

1961

The honey-feast of the berries has stunned them; they believe in heaven.
One more hook, and the berries and bushes end.

The only thing to come now is the sea.
From between two hills a sudden wind funnels at me,
Slapping its phantom laundry in my face.
These hills are too green and sweet to have tasted salt.
I follow the sheep path between them. A last hook brings me
To the hills' northern face, and the face is orange rock
That looks out on nothing, nothing but a great space
Of white and pewter lights, and a din like silversmiths
Beating and beating at an intractable metal.

Finisterre

This was the land's end: the last fingers, knuckled and rheumatic, Cramped on nothing. Black
Admonitory cliffs, and the sea exploding
With no bottom, or anything on the other side of it,
Whitened by the faces of the drowned.
Now it is only gloomy, a dump of rocks —
Leftover soldiers from old, messy wars.
The sea cannons into their ear, but they don't budge.
Other rocks hide their grudges under the water.

The cliffs are edged with trefoils, stars and bells
Such as fingers might embroider, close to death,
Almost too small for the mists to bother with.
The mists are part of the ancient paraphernalia —
Souls, rolled in the doom-noise of the sea.
They bruise the rocks out of existence, then resurrect them.
They go up without hope, like sighs.
I walk among them, and they stuff my mouth with cotton.
When they free me, I am beaded with tears.

Our Lady of the Shipwrecked is striding toward the horizon,
Her marble skirts blown back in two pink wings.

1961

A marble sailor kneels at her foot distractedly, and at his foot
A peasant woman in black
Is praying to the monument of the sailor praying.
Our Lady of the Shipwrecked is three times life size,
Her lips sweet with divinity.
She does not hear what the sailor or the peasant is saying—
She is in love with the beautiful formlessness of the sea.

Gull-colored laces flap in the sea drafts
Beside the postcard stalls.
The peasants anchor them with conches. One is told:
'These are the pretty trinkets the sea hides,
Little shells made up into necklaces and toy ladies.
They do not come from the Bay of the Dead down there,
But from another place, tropical and blue,
We have never been to.
These are our crêpes. Eat them before they blow cold.'

The Surgeon at 2 a.m.

The white light is artificial, and hygienic as heaven.
The microbes cannot survive it.
They are departing in their transparent garments, turned aside
From the scalpels and the rubber hands.
The scalded sheet is a snowfield, frozen and peaceful.
The body under it is in my hands.
As usual there is no face. A lump of Chinese white
With seven holes thumbled in. The soul is another light.
I have not seen it; it does not fly up.
Tonight it has receded like a ship's light.

It is a garden I have to do with—tubers and fruits
Oozing their jammy substances,
A mat of roots. My assistants hook them back.
Stenches and colors assail me.
This is the lung-tree.
These orchids are splendid. They spot and coil like snakes.

170

The heart is a red-bell-bloom, in distress.
I am so small
In comparison to these organs!
I worm and hack in a purple wilderness.

The blood is a sunset. I admire it.
I am up to my elbows in it, red and squeaking.
Still it seeps up, it is not exhausted.
So magical! A hot spring
I must seal off and let fill
The intricate, blue piping under this pale marble.
How I admire the Romans—
Aqueducts, the Baths of Caracalla, the eagle nose!
The body is a Roman thing.
It has shut its mouth on the stone pill of repose.

It is a statue the orderlies are wheeling off.
I have perfected it.
I am left with an arm or a leg,
A set of teeth, or stones
To rattle in a bottle and take home,
And tissue in slices—a pathological salami.
Tonight the parts are entombed in an icebox.
Tomorrow they will swim
In vinegar like saints' relics.
Tomorrow the patient will have a clean, pink plastic limb.

Over one bed in the ward, a small blue light
Announces a new soul. The bed is blue.
Tonight, for this person, blue is a beautiful color.
The angels of morphia have borne him up.
He floats an inch from the ceiling,
Smelling the dawn drafts.
I walk among sleepers in gauze sarcophagi.
The red night lights are flat moons. They are dull with blood.
I am the sun, in my white coat,
Gray faces, shuttered by drugs, follow me like flowers.

Last Words

I do not want a plain box, I want a sarcophagus
With tigery stripes, and a face on it
Round as the moon, to stare up.
I want to be looking at them when they come
Picking among the dumb minerals, the roots.
I see them already—the pale, star-distance faces.
Now they are nothing, they are not even babies.
I imagine them without fathers or mothers, like the first gods.
They will wonder if I was important.
I should sugar and preserve my days like fruit!
My mirror is clouding over—
A few more breaths, and it will reflect nothing at all.
The flowers and the faces whiten to a sheet.

I do not trust the spirit. It escapes like steam
In dreams, through mouth-hole or eye-hole. I can't stop it.
One day it won't come back. Things aren't like that.
They stay, their little particular lusters
Warmed by much handling. They almost purr.
When the soles of my feet grow cold,
The blue eye of my turquoise will comfort me.
Let me have my copper cooking pots, let my rouge pots
Bloom about me like night flowers, with a good smell.
They will roll me up in bandages, they will store my heart
Under my feet in a neat parcel.
I shall hardly know myself. It will be dark,
And the shine of these small things sweeter than the face of Ishtar.

The Moon and the Yew Tree

This is the light of the mind, cold and planetary.
The trees of the mind are black. The light is blue.
The grasses unload their griefs on my feet as if I were God,
Prickling my ankles and murmuring of their humility.
Fumy, spiritous mists inhabit this place

1961

Separated from my house by a row of headstones.
I simply cannot see where there is to get to.

The moon is no door. It is a face in its own right,
White as a knuckle and terribly upset.
It drags the sea after it like a dark crime; it is quiet
With the O-gape of complete despair. I live here.
Twice on Sunday, the bells startle the sky——
Eight great tongues affirming the Resurrection.
At the end, they soberly bong out their names.

The yew tree points up. It has a Gothic shape.
The eyes lift after it and find the moon.
The moon is my mother. She is not sweet like Mary.
Her blue garments unloose small bats and owls.
How I would like to believe in tenderness——
The face of the effigy, gentled by candles,
Bending, on me in particular, its mild eyes.

I have fallen a long way. Clouds are flowering
Blue and mystical over the face of the stars.
Inside the church, the saints will be all blue,
Floating on their delicate feet over the cold pews,
Their hands and faces stiff with holiness.
The moon sees nothing of this. She is bald and wild.
And the message of the yew tree is blackness—blackness and silence.

Mirror

I am silver and exact. I have no preconceptions.
Whatever I see I swallow immediately
Just as it is, unmisted by love or dislike.
I am not cruel, only truthful—
The eye of a little god, four-cornered.
Most of the time I meditate on the opposite wall.
It is pink, with speckles. I have looked at it so long
I think it is a part of my heart. But it flickers.
Faces and darkness separate us over and over.

1961

Now I am a lake. A woman bends over me,
Searching my reaches for what she really is.
Then she turns to those liars, the candles or the moon.
I see her back, and reflect it faithfully.
She rewards me with tears and an agitation of hands.
I am important to her. She comes and goes.
Each morning it is her face that replaces the darkness.
In me she has drowned a young girl, and in me an old woman
Rises toward her day after day, like a terrible fish.

The Babysitters

It is ten years, now, since we rowed to Children's Island.
The sun flamed straight down that noon on the water off Marblehead.
That summer we wore black glasses to hide our eyes.
We were always crying, in our spare rooms, little put-upon sisters,
In the two huge, white, handsome houses in Swampscott.
When the sweetheart from England appeared, with her cream skin and Yardley cosmetics,
I had to sleep in the same room with the baby on a too-short cot,
And the seven-year-old wouldn't go out unless his jersey stripes
Matched the stripes of his socks.

O it was richness!—eleven rooms and a yacht
With a polished mahogany stair to let into the water
And a cabin boy who could decorate cakes in six-colored frosting.
But I didn't know how to cook, and babies depressed me.
Nights, I wrote in my diary spitefully, my fingers red
With triangular scorch marks from ironing tiny ruchings and puffed sleeves.
When the sporty wife and her doctor husband went on one of their cruises
They left me a borrowed maid named Ellen, 'for protection',
And a small Dalmatian.

In your house, the main house, you were better off.
You had a rose garden and a guest cottage and a model apothecary shop

1961

And a cook and a maid, and knew about the key to the bourbon.
I remember you playing 'Ja Da' in a pink piqué dress
On the gameroom piano, when the 'big people' were out,
And the maid smoked and shot pool under a green-shaded lamp.
The cook had one wall eye and couldn't sleep, she was so nervous.
On trial, from Ireland, she burned batch after batch of cookies
Till she was fired.

O what has come over us, my sister!
On that day-off the two of us cried so hard to get
We lifted a sugared ham and a pineapple from the grownups' icebox
And rented an old green boat. I rowed. You read Aloud, crosslegged on the stern seat, from the Generation of Vipers.
So we bobbed out to the island. It was deserted—
A gallery of creaking porches and still interiors,
Stopped and awful as a photograph of somebody laughing,
But ten years dead.

The bold gulls dove as if they owned it all.
We picked up sticks of driftwood and beat them off,
Then stepped down the steep beach shelf and into the water.
We kicked and talked. The thick salt kept us up.
I see us floating there yet, inseparable—two cork dolls.
What keyhole have we slipped through, what door has shut?
The shadows of the grasses inched round like hands of a clock,
And from our opposite continents we wave and call.
Everything has happened.

New Year on Dartmoor

This is newness: every little tawdry
Obstacle glass-wrapped and peculiar,
Glinting and clinking in a saint's falsetto. Only you Don't know what to make of the sudden slippiness,
The blind, white, awful, inaccessible slant.
There's no getting up it by the words you know.
No getting up by elephant or wheel or shoe.
We have only come to look. You are too new
To want the world in a glass hat.

Three Women A Poem for Three Voices

Setting: A Maternity Ward and round about

FIRST VOICE:

I am slow as the world. I am very patient,
Turning through my time, the suns and stars
Regarding me with attention.
The moon's concern is more personal:
She passes and repasses, luminous as a nurse.
Is she sorry for what will happen? I do not think so.
She is simply astonished at fertility.

When I walk out, I am a great event.
I do not have to think, or even rehearse.
What happens in me will happen without attention.
The pheasant stands on the hill;
He is arranging his brown feathers.

176

1962

I cannot help smiling at what it is I know.
Leaves and petals attend me. I am ready.

SECOND VOICE:

When I first saw it, the small red seep, I did not believe it.
I watched the men walk about me in the office. They were so flat!
There was something about them like cardboard, and now I had caught it,
That flat, flat, flatness from which ideas, destructions,
Bulldozers, guillotines, white chambers of shrieks proceed,
Endlessly proceed—and the cold angels, the abstractions.
I sat at my desk in my stockings, my high heels,

And the man I work for laughed: 'Have you seen something awful?
You are so white, suddenly.' And I said nothing.
I saw death in the bare trees, a deprivation.
I could not believe it. Is it so difficult
For the spirit to conceive a face, a mouth?
The letters proceed from these black keys, and these black keys proceed
From my alphabetical fingers, ordering parts,

Parts, bits, cogs, the shining multiples.
I am dying as I sit. I lose a dimension.
Trains roar in my ears, departures, departures!
The silver track of time empties into the distance,
The white sky empties of its promise, like a cup.
These are my feet, these mechanical echoes.
Tap, tap, tap, steel pegs. I am found wanting.

This is a disease I carry home, this is a death.
Again, this is a death. Is it the air,
The particles of destruction I suck up? Am I a pulse
That wanes and wanes, facing the cold angel?
Is this my lover then? This death, this death?
As a child I loved a lichen-bitten name.
Is this the one sin then, this old dead love of death?

THIRD VOICE:

I remember the minute when I knew for sure.
The willows were chilling,
The face in the pool was beautiful, but not mine—
It had a consequential look, like everything else,

And all I could see was dangers: doves and words,
 Stars and showers of gold—conceptions, conceptions!
 I remember a white, cold wing

And the great swan, with its terrible look,
 Coming at me, like a castle, from the top of the river.
 There is a snake in swans.
 He glided by; his eye had a black meaning.
 I saw the world in it—small, mean and black,
 Every little word hooked to every little word, and act to act.
 A hot blue day had budded into something.

I wasn't ready. The white clouds rearing
 Aside were dragging me in four directions.
 I wasn't ready.
 I had no reverence.
 I thought I could deny the consequence—
 But it was too late for that. It was too late, and the face
 Went on shaping itself with love, as if I was ready.

SECOND VOICE:

It is a world of snow now. I am not at home.
 How white these sheets are. The faces have no features.
 They are bald and impossible, like the faces of my children,
 Those little sick ones that elude my arms.
 Other children do not touch me: they are terrible.
 They have too many colors, too much life. They are not quiet,
 Quiet, like the little emptinesses I carry.

I have had my chances. I have tried and tried.
 I have stitched life into me like a rare organ,
 And walked carefully, precariously, like something rare.
 I have tried not to think too hard. I have tried to be natural.
 I have tried to be blind in love, like other women,
 Blind in my bed, with my dear blind sweet one,
 Not looking, through the thick dark, for the face of another.

I did not look. But still the face was there,
 The face of the unborn one that loved its perfections,
 The face of the dead one that could only be perfect
 In its easy peace, could only keep holy so.

And then there were other faces. The faces of nations,
Governments, parliaments, societies,
The faceless faces of important men.

It is these men I mind:

They are so jealous of anything that is not flat! They are jealous gods
That would have the whole world flat because they are.

I see the Father conversing with the Son.

Such flatness cannot but be holy.

'Let us make a heaven,' they say.

'Let us flatten and launder the grossness from these souls.'

FIRST VOICE:

I am calm. I am calm. It is the calm before something awful:

The yellow minute before the wind walks, when the leaves

Turn up their hands, their pallors. It is so quiet here.

The sheets, the faces, are white and stopped, like clocks.

Voices stand back and flatten. Their visible hieroglyphs

Flatten to parchment screens to keep the wind off.

They paint such secrets in Arabic, Chinese!

I am dumb and brown. I am a seed about to break.

The brownness is my dead self, and it is sullen:

It does not wish to be more, or different.

Dusk hoods me in blue now, like a Mary.

O color of distance and forgetfulness!—

When will it be, the second when Time breaks

And eternity engulfs it, and I drown utterly?

I talk to myself, myself only, set apart—

Swabbed and lurid with disinfectants, sacrificial.

Waiting lies heavy on my lids. It lies like sleep,

Like a big sea. Far off, far off, I feel the first wave tug

Its cargo of agony toward me, inescapable, tidal.

And I, a shell, echoing on this white beach

Face the voices that overwhelm, the terrible element.

THIRD VOICE:

I am a mountain now, among mountainy women.

The doctors move among us as if our bigness

Frightened the mind. They smile like fools.

They are to blame for what I am, and they know it.
 They hug their flatness like a kind of health.
 And what if they found themselves surprised, as I did?
 They would go mad with it.

And what if two lives leaked between my thighs?
 I have seen the white clean chamber with its instruments.
 It is a place of shrieks. It is not happy.
 'This is where you will come when you are ready.'
 The night lights are flat red moons. They are dull with blood.
 I am not ready for anything to happen.
 I should have murdered this, that murders me.

FIRST VOICE:

There is no miracle more cruel than this.
 I am dragged by the horses, the iron hooves.
 I last. I last it out. I accomplish a work.
 Dark tunnel, through which hurtle the visitations,
 The visitations, the manifestations, the startled faces.
 I am the center of an atrocity.
 What pains, what sorrows must I be mothering?

Can such innocence kill and kill? It milks my life.
 The trees wither in the street. The rain is corrosive.
 I taste it on my tongue, and the workable horrors,
 The horrors that stand and idle, the slighted godmothers
 With their hearts that tick and tick, with their satchels of instruments.
 I shall be a wall and a roof, protecting.
 I shall be a sky and a hill of good: O let me be!

A power is growing on me, an old tenacity.
 I am breaking apart like the world. There is this blackness,
 This ram of blackness. I fold my hands on a mountain.
 The air is thick. It is thick with this working.
 I am used. I am drummed into use.
 My eyes are squeezed by this blackness.
 I see nothing.

SECOND VOICE:

I am accused. I dream of massacres.
 I am a garden of black and red agonies. I drink them,

1962

Hating myself, hating and fearing. And now the world conceives
Its end and runs toward it, arms held out in love.
It is a love of death that sickens everything.
A dead sun stains the newsprint. It is red.
I lose life after life. The dark earth drinks them.

She is the vampire of us all. So she supports us,
Fattens us, is kind. Her mouth is red.
I know her. I know her intimately —
Old winter-face, old barren one, old time bomb.
Men have used her meanly. She will eat them.
Eat them, eat them, eat them in the end.
The sun is down. I die. I make a death.

FIRST VOICE:

Who is he, this blue, furious boy,
Shiny and strange, as if he had hurtled from a star?
He is looking so angrily!
He flew into the room, a shriek at his heel.
The blue color pales. He is human after all.
A red lotus opens in its bowl of blood;
They are stitching me up with silk, as if I were a material.

What did my fingers do before they held him?
What did my heart do, with its love?
I have never seen a thing so clear.
His lids are like the lilac-flower
And soft as a moth, his breath.
I shall not let go.
There is no guile or warp in him. May he keep so.

SECOND VOICE:

There is the moon in the high window. It is over.
How winter fills my soul! And that chalk light
Laying its scales on the windows, the windows of empty offices,
Empty schoolrooms, empty churches. O so much emptiness!
There is this cessation. This terrible cessation of everything.
These bodies mounded around me now, these polar sleepers —
What blue, moony ray ices their dreams?

I feel it enter me, cold, alien, like an instrument.
 And that mad, hard face at the end of it, that O-mouth
 Open in its gape of perpetual grieving.
 It is she that drags the blood-black sea around
 Month after month, with its voices of failure.
 I am helpless as the sea at the end of her string.
 I am restless. Restless and useless. I, too, create corpses.

I shall move north. I shall move into a long blackness.
 I see myself as a shadow, neither man nor woman,
 Neither a woman, happy to be like a man, nor a man
 Blunt and flat enough to feel no lack. I feel a lack.
 I hold my fingers up, ten white pickets.
 See, the darkness is leaking from the cracks.
 I cannot contain it. I cannot contain my life.

I shall be a heroine of the peripheral.
 I shall not be accused by isolate buttons,
 Holes in the heels of socks, the white mute faces
 Of unanswered letters, confined in a letter case.
 I shall not be accused, I shall not be accused.
 The clock shall not find me wanting, nor these stars
 That rivet in place abyss after abyss.

THIRD VOICE:

I see her in my sleep, my red, terrible girl.
 She is crying through the glass that separates us.
 She is crying, and she is furious.
 Her cries are hooks that catch and grate like cats.
 It is by these hooks she climbs to my notice.
 She is crying at the dark, or at the stars
 That at such a distance from us shine and whirl.

I think her little head is carved in wood,
 A red, hard wood, eyes shut and mouth wide open.
 And from the open mouth issue sharp cries
 Scratching at my sleep like arrows,
 Scratching at my sleep, and entering my side.
 My daughter has no teeth. Her mouth is wide.
 It utters such dark sounds it cannot be good.

FIRST VOICE :

What is it that flings these innocent souls at us?
 Look, they are so exhausted, they are all flat out
 In their canvas-sided cots, names tied to their wrists,
 The little silver trophies they've come so far for.
 There are some with thick black hair, there are some bald.
 Their skin tints are pink or sallow, brown or red;
 They are beginning to remember their differences.

I think they are made of water; they have no expression.
 Their features are sleeping, like light on quiet water.
 They are the real monks and nuns in their identical garments.
 I see them showering like stars on to the world—
 On India, Africa, America, these miraculous ones,
 These pure, small images. They smell of milk.
 Their footsoles are untouched. They are walkers of air.

Can nothingness be so prodigal?
 Here is my son.
 His wide eye is that general, flat blue.
 He is turning to me like a little, blind, bright plant.
 One cry. It is the hook I hang on.
 And I am a river of milk.
 I am a warm hill.

SECOND VOICE :

I am not ugly. I am even beautiful.
 The mirror gives back a woman without deformity.
 The nurses give back my clothes, and an identity.
 It is usual, they say, for such a thing to happen.
 It is usual in my life, and the lives of others.
 I am one in five, something like that. I am not hopeless.
 I am beautiful as a statistic. Here is my lipstick.

I draw on the old mouth.
 The red mouth I put by with my identity
 A day ago, two days, three days ago. It was a Friday.
 I do not even need a holiday; I can go to work today.
 I can love my husband, who will understand.
 Who will love me through the blur of my deformity
 As if I had lost an eye, a leg, a tongue.

And so I stand, a little sightless. So I walk Away on wheels, instead of legs, they serve as well.
 And learn to speak with fingers, not a tongue.
 The body is resourceful.
 The body of a starfish can grow back its arms
 And newts are prodigal in legs. And may I be
 As prodigal in what lacks me.

THIRD VOICE :

She is a small island, asleep and peaceful,
 And I am a white ship hooting: Goodbye, goodbye.
 The day is blazing. It is very mournful.
 The flowers in this room are red and tropical.
 They have lived behind glass all their lives, they have been cared for tenderly.
 Now they face a winter of white sheets, white faces.
 There is very little to go into my suitcase.

There are the clothes of a fat woman I do not know.
 There is my comb and brush. There is an emptiness.
 I am so vulnerable suddenly.
 I am a wound walking out of hospital.
 I am a wound that they are letting go.
 I leave my health behind. I leave someone
 Who would adhere to me: I undo her fingers like bandages: I go.

SECOND VOICE :

I am myself again. There are no loose ends.
 I am bled white as wax, I have no attachments.
 I am flat and virginal, which means nothing has happened,
 Nothing that cannot be erased, ripped up and scrapped, begun again.
 These little black twigs do not think to bud,
 Nor do these dry, dry gutters dream of rain.
 This woman who meets me in windows—she is neat.

So neat she is transparent, like a spirit.
 How shyly she superimposes her neat self
 On the inferno of African oranges, the heel-hung pigs.
 She is deferring to reality.
 It is I. It is I—
 Tasting the bitterness between my teeth.
 The incalculable malice of the everyday.

FIRST VOICE:

How long can I be a wall, keeping the wind off?
 How long can I be
 Gentling the sun with the shade of my hand,
 Intercepting the blue bolts of a cold moon?
 The voices of loneliness, the voices of sorrow
 Lap at my back ineluctably.
 How shall it soften them, this little lullaby?

How long can I be a wall around my green property?
 How long can my hands
 Be a bandage to his hurt, and my words
 Bright birds in the sky, consoling, consoling?
 It is a terrible thing
 To be so open: it is as if my heart
 Put on a face and walked into the world.

THIRD VOICE:

Today the colleges are drunk with spring.
 My black gown is a little funeral:
 It shows I am serious.
 The books I carry wedge into my side.
 I had an old wound once, but it is healing.
 I had a dream of an island, red with cries.
 It was a dream, and did not mean a thing.

FIRST VOICE:

Dawn flowers in the great elm outside the house.
 The swifts are back. They are shrieking like paper rockets.
 I hear the sound of the hours
 Widen and die in the hedgerows. I hear the moo of cows.
 The colors replenish themselves, and the wet
 Thatch smokes in the sun.
 The narcissi open white faces in the orchard.
 I am reassured. I am reassured.
 These are the clear bright colors of the nursery,
 The talking ducks, the happy lambs.
 I am simple again. I believe in miracles.
 I do not believe in those terrible children
 Who injure my sleep with their white eyes, their fingerless hands.
 They are not mine. They do not belong to me.

1962

I shall meditate upon normality.
I shall meditate upon my little son.
He does not walk. He does not speak a word.
He is still swaddled in white bands.
But he is pink and perfect. He smiles so frequently.
I have papered his room with big roses,
I have painted little hearts on everything.

I do not will him to be exceptional.
It is the exception that interests the devil.
It is the exception that climbs the sorrowful hill
Or sits in the desert and hurts his mother's heart.
I will him to be common,
To love me as I love him,
And to marry what he wants and where he will.

THIRD VOICE :

Hot noon in the meadows. The buttercups
Swelter and melt, and the lovers
Pass by, pass by.
They are black and flat as shadows.
It is so beautiful to have no attachments!
I am solitary as grass. What is it I miss?
Shall I ever find it, whatever it is?

The swans are gone. Still the river
Remembers how white they were.
It strives after them with its lights.
It finds their shapes in a cloud.
What is that bird that cries
With such sorrow in its voice?
I am young as ever, it says. What is it I miss?

SECOND VOICE :

I am at home in the lamplight. The evenings are lengthening.
I am mending a silk slip: my husband is reading.
How beautifully the light includes these things.
There is a kind of smoke in the spring air,
A smoke that takes the parks, the little statues
With pinkness, as if a tenderness awoke,
A tenderness that did not tire, something healing.

1962

I wait and ache. I think I have been healing.
There is a great deal else to do. My hands
Can stitch lace neatly on to this material. My husband
Can turn and turn the pages of a book.
And so we are at home together, after hours.
It is only time that weighs upon our hands.
It is only time, and that is not material.

The streets may turn to paper suddenly, but I recover
From the long fall, and find myself in bed,
Safe on the mattress, hands braced, as for a fall.
I find myself again. I am no shadow
Though there is a shadow starting from my feet. I am a wife.
The city waits and aches. The little grasses
Crack through stone, and they are green with life.

Little Fugue

The yew's black fingers wag;
Cold clouds go over.
So the deaf and dumb
Signal the blind, and are ignored.

I like black statements.
The featurelessness of that cloud, now!
White as an eye all over!
The eye of the blind pianist

At my table on the ship.
He felt for his food.
His fingers had the noses of weasels.
I couldn't stop looking.

He could hear Beethoven:
Black yew, white cloud,
The horrific complications.
Finger-traps—a tumult of keys.

Empty and silly as plates,
So the blind smile.
I envy the big noises,
The yew hedge of the Grosse Fuge.

Deafness is something else.
Such a dark funnel, my father!
I see your voice
Black and leafy, as in my childhood,

A yew hedge of orders,
Gothic and barbarous, pure German.
Dead men cry from it.
I am guilty of nothing.

The yew my Christ, then.
Is it not as tortured?
And you, during the Great War
In the California delicatessen

Lopping the sausages!
They color my sleep,
Red, mottled, like cut necks.
There was a silence!

Great silence of another order.
I was seven, I knew nothing.
The world occurred.
You had one leg, and a Prussian mind.

Now similar clouds
Are spreading their vacuous sheets.
Do you say nothing?
I am lame in the memory.

I remember a blue eye,
A briefcase of tangerines.
This was a man, then!
Death opened, like a black tree, blackly.

1962

I survive the while,
Arranging my morning.
These are my fingers, this my baby.
The clouds are a marriage dress, of that pallor.

An Appearance

The smile of iceboxes annihilates me.
Such blue currents in the veins of my loved one!
I hear her great heart purr.

From her lips ampersands and percent signs
Exit like kisses.
It is Monday in her mind: morals

Launder and present themselves.
What am I to make of these contradictions?
I wear white cuffs, I bow.

Is this love then, this red material
Issuing from the steel needle that flies so blindingly?
It will make little dresses and coats,

It will cover a dynasty.
How her body opens and shuts—
A Swiss watch, jeweled in the hinges!

O heart, such disorganization!
The stars are flashing like terrible numerals.
ABC, her eyelids say.

Crossing the Water

Black lake, black boat, two black, cut-paper people.
Where do the black trees go that drink here?
Their shadows must cover Canada.

A little light is filtering from the water flowers.
Their leaves do not wish us to hurry:
They are round and flat and full of dark advice.

Cold worlds shake from the oar.
The spirit of blackness is in us, it is in the fishes.
A snag is lifting a valedictory, pale hand;

Stars open among the lilies.
Are you not blinded by such expressionless sirens?
This is the silence of astounded souls.

Among the Narcissi

Spry, wry, and gray as these March sticks,
Percy bows, in his blue peajacket, among the narcissi.
He is recuperating from something on the lung.

The narcissi, too, are bowing to some big thing:
It rattles their stars on the green hill where Percy
Nurses the hardship of his stitches, and walks and walks.

There is a dignity to this; there is a formality —
The flowers vivid as bandages, and the man mending.
They bow and stand: they suffer such attacks!

And the octogenarian loves the little flocks.
He is quite blue; the terrible wind tries his breathing.
The narcissi look up like children, quickly and whitely.

Pheasant

You said you would kill it this morning.
Do not kill it. It startles me still,
The jut of that odd, dark head, pacing

Through the uncut grass on the elm's hill.
It is something to own a pheasant,
Or just to be visited at all.

I am not mystical: it isn't
As if I thought it had a spirit.
It is simply in its element.

That gives it a kingliness, a right.
The print of its big foot last winter,
The tail-track, on the snow in our court —

The wonder of it, in that pallor,
Through crosshatch of sparrow and starling.
Is it its rareness, then? It is rare.

But a dozen would be worth having,
A hundred, on that hill—green and red,
Crossing and recrossing: a fine thing!

It is such a good shape, so vivid.
It's a little cornucopia.
It unclaps, brown as a leaf, and loud,

Settles in the elm, and is easy.
It was sunning in the narcissi.
I trespass stupidly. Let be, let be.

Elm

For Ruth Fainlight

I know the bottom, she says. I know it with my great tap root:
It is what you fear.
I do not fear it: I have been there.

Is it the sea you hear in me,
Its dissatisfactions?
Or the voice of nothing, that was your madness?

Love is a shadow.
How you lie and cry after it
Listen: these are its hooves: it has gone off, like a horse.

All night I shall gallop thus, impetuously,
Till your head is a stone, your pillow a little turf,
Echoing, echoing.

Or shall I bring you the sound of poisons?
This is rain now, this big hush.
And this is the fruit of it: tin-white, like arsenic.

I have suffered the atrocity of sunsets.
Scorched to the root
My red filaments burn and stand, a hand of wires.

Now I break up in pieces that fly about like clubs.
A wind of such violence
Will tolerate no bystanding: I must shriek.

The moon, also, is merciless: she would drag me
Cruelly, being barren.
Her radiance scathes me. Or perhaps I have caught her.

I let her go. I let her go
Diminished and flat, as after radical surgery.
How your bad dreams possess and endow me.

1962

I am inhabited by a cry.
Nightly it flaps out
Looking, with its hooks, for something to love.

I am terrified by this dark thing
That sleeps in me;
All day I feel its soft, feathery turnings, its malignity.

Clouds pass and disperse.
Are those the faces of love, those pale irretrievables?
Is it for such I agitate my heart?

I am incapable of more knowledge.
What is this, this face
So murderous in its strangle of branches?——

Its snaky acids kiss.
It petrifies the will. These are the isolate, slow faults
That kill, that kill, that kill.

19 April 1962

164

The Rabbit Catcher

It was a place of force—
The wind gagging my mouth with my own blown hair,
Tearing off my voice, and the sea
Blinding me with its lights, the lives of the dead
Unreeling in it, spreading like oil.

I tasted the malignity of the gorse,
Its black spikes,
The extreme unction of its yellow candle-flowers.
They had an efficiency, a great beauty,
And were extravagant, like torture.

There was only one place to get to.
Simmering, perfumed,
The paths narrowed into the hollow.

193

1962

And the snares almost effaced themselves —
Zeros, shutting on nothing,

Set close, like birth pangs.
The absence of shrieks
Made a hole in the hot day, a vacancy.
The glassy light was a clear wall,
The thickets quiet.

I felt a still busyness, an intent.
I felt hands round a tea mug, dull, blunt,
Ringing the white china.
How they awaited him, those little deaths!
They waited like sweethearts. They excited him.

And we, too, had a relationship —
Tight wires between us,
Pegs too deep to uproot, and a mind like a ring
Sliding shut on some quick thing,
The constriction killing me also.

21 May 1962

165

Event

How the elements solidify! —
The moonlight, that chalk cliff
In whose rift we lie

Back to back. I hear an owl cry
From its cold indigo.
Intolerable vowels enter my heart.

The child in the white crib revolves and sighs,
Opens its mouth now, demanding.
His little face is carved in pained, red wood.

Then there are the stars—ineradicable, hard.
One touch: it burns and sickens.
I cannot see your eyes.

1962

Where apple bloom ices the night
I walk in a ring,
A groove of old faults, deep and bitter.

Love cannot come here.
A black gap discloses itself.
On the opposite lip

A small white soul is waving, a small white maggot.
My limbs, also, have left me.
Who has dismembered us?

The dark is melting. We touch like cripples.

21 May 1962

166

Apprehensions

There is this white wall, above which the sky creates itself—
Infinite, green, utterly untouchable.
Angels swim in it, and the stars, in indifference also.
They are my medium.
The sun dissolves on this wall, bleeding its lights.

A gray wall now, clawed and bloody.
Is there no way out of the mind?
Steps at my back spiral into a well.
There are no trees or birds in this world,
There is only a sourness.

This red wall winces continually:
A red fist, opening and closing,
Two gray, papery bags—
This is what I am made of, this and a terror
Of being wheeled off under crosses and a rain of pietàs.

On a black wall, unidentifiable birds
Swivel their heads and cry.

1962

There is no talk of immortality among these!
Cold blanks approach us:
They move in a hurry.

Berck-Plage

(1)

This is the sea, then, this great abeyance.
How the sun's poultice draws on my inflammation.

Electrifyingly-colored sherbets, scooped from the freeze
By pale girls, travel the air in scorched hands.

Why is it so quiet, what are they hiding?
I have two legs, and I move smilingly.

A sandy damper kills the vibrations;
It stretches for miles, the shrunk voices

Waving and crutchless, half their old size.
The lines of the eye, scalded by these bald surfaces,

Boomerang like anchored elastics, hurting the owner.
Is it any wonder he puts on dark glasses?

Is it any wonder he affects a black cassock?
Here he comes now, among the mackerel gatherers

Who wall up their backs against him.
They are handling the black and green lozenges like the parts of a body.

The sea, that crystallized these,
Creeps away, many-snaked, with a long hiss of distress.

1962

This black boot has no mercy for anybody.
Why should it, it is the hearse of a dead foot,

The high, dead, toeless foot of this priest
Who plumbs the well of his book,

The bent print bulging before him like scenery.
Obscene bikinis hide in the dunes,

Breasts and hips a confectioner's sugar
Of little crystals, titillating the light,

While a green pool opens its eye,
Sick with what it has swallowed——

Limbs, images, shrieks. Behind the concrete bunkers
Two lovers unstick themselves.

O white sea-crockery,
What cupped sighs, what salt in the throat. . . .

And the onlooker, trembling,
Drawn like a long material

Through a still virulence,
And a weed, hairy as privates.

(3)

On the balconies of the hotel, things are glittering.
Things, things——

Tubular steel wheelchairs, aluminum crutches.
Such salt-sweetness. Why should I walk

Beyond the breakwater, spotty with barnacles?
I am not a nurse, white and attendant,

I am not a smile.
 These children are after something, with hooks and cries,

And my heart too small to bandage their terrible faults.
 This is the side of a man: his red ribs,

The nerves bursting like trees, and this is the surgeon:
 One mirrory eye——

A facet of knowledge.
 On a striped mattress in one room

An old man is vanishing.
 There is no help in his weeping wife.

Where are the eye-stones, yellow and valuable,
 And the tongue, sapphire of ash.

(4)

A wedding-cake face in a paper frill.
 How superior he is now.

It is like possessing a saint.
 The nurses in their wing-caps are no longer so beautiful;

They are browning, like touched gardenias.
 The bed is rolled from the wall.

This is what it is to be complete. It is horrible.
 Is he wearing pajamas or an evening suit

Under the glued sheet from which his powdery beak
 Rises so whitely unbuffeted?

They propped his jaw with a book until it stiffened
 And folded his hands, that were shaking: goodbye, goodbye.

Now the washed sheets fly in the sun,
 The pillow cases are sweetening.

It is a blessing, it is a blessing:
The long coffin of soap-colored oak,

The curious bearers and the raw date
Engraving itself in silver with marvelous calm.

(5)

The gray sky lowers, the hills like a green sea
Run fold upon fold far off, concealing their hollows,

The hollows in which rock the thoughts of the wife——
Blunt, practical boats

Full of dresses and hats and china and married daughters.
In the parlor of the stone house

One curtain is flickering from the open window,
Flickering and pouring, a pitiful candle.

This is the tongue of the dead man: remember, remember.
How far he is now, his actions

Around him like livingroom furniture, like a décor.
As the pallors gather——

The pallors of hands and neighborly faces,
The elate pallors of flying iris.

They are flying off into nothing: remember us.
The empty benches of memory look over stones,

Marble façades with blue veins, and jelly-glassfuls of daffodils.
It is so beautiful up here: it is a stopping place.

(6)

The natural fatness of these lime leaves!——
Pollarded green balls, the trees march to church.

The voice of the priest, in thin air,
Meets the corpse at the gate,

Addressing it, while the hills roll the notes of the dead bell;
A glitter of wheat and crude earth.

What is the name of that color?——
Old blood of caked walls the sun heals,

Old blood of limb stumps, burnt hearts.
The widow with her black pocketbook and three daughters,

Necessary among the flowers,
Enfolds her face like fine linen,

Not to be spread again.
While a sky, wormy with put-by smiles,

Passes cloud after cloud.
And the bride flowers expend a freshness,

And the soul is a bride
In a still place, and the groom is red and forgetful, he is featureless.

(7)

Behind the glass of this car
The world purrs, shut-off and gentle.

And I am dark-suited and still, a member of the party,
Gliding up in low gear behind the cart.

And the priest is a vessel,
A tarred fabric, sorry and dull,

Following the coffin on its flowery cart like a beautiful woman,
A crest of breasts, eyelids and lips

Storming the hilltop.
Then, from the barred yard, the children

1962

Smell the melt of shoe-blackening,
Their faces turning, wordless and slow,

Their eyes opening
On a wonderful thing——

Six round black hats in the grass and a lozenge of wood,
And a naked mouth, red and awkward.

For a minute the sky pours into the hole like plasma.
There is no hope, it is given up.

30 June 1962

168

The Other

You come in late, wiping your lips.
What did I leave untouched on the doorstep—

White Nike,
Streaming between my walls?

Smilingly, blue lightning
Assumes, like a meathook, the burden of his parts.

The police love you, you confess everything.
Bright hair, shoe-black, old plastic,

Is my life so intriguing?
Is it for this you widen your eye-rings?

Is it for this the air motes depart?
They are not air motes, they are corpuscles.

Open your handbag. What is that bad smell?
It is your knitting, busily

Hooking itself to itself,
It is your sticky candies.

1962

I have your head on my wall.
Navel cords, blue-red and lucent,

Shriek from my belly like arrows, and these I ride.
O moon-glow, o sick one,

The stolen horses, the fornications
Circle a womb of marble.

Where are you going
That you suck breath like mileage?

Sulfurous adulteries grieve in a dream.
Cold glass, how you insert yourself

Between myself and myself.
I scratch like a cat.

The blood that runs is dark fruit—
An effect, a cosmetic.

You smile.
No, it is not fatal.

2 July 1962

169

Words heard, by accident, over the phone

O mud, mud, how fluid!—
Thick as foreign coffee, and with a sluggy pulse.
Speak, speak! Who is it?
It is the bowel-pulse, lover of digestibles.
It is he who has achieved these syllables.

What are these words, these words?
They are plopping like mud.
O god, how shall I ever clean the phone table?

1962

They are pressing out of the many-holed earpiece, they are looking for a listener.

Is he here?

Now the room is ahiss. The instrument
Withdraws its tentacle.

But the spawn percolate in my heart. They are fertile.

Muck funnel, muck funnel—

You are too big. They must take you back!

11 July 1962

170

Poppies in July

Little poppies, little hell flames,
Do you do no harm?

You flicker. I cannot touch you.
I put my hands among the flames. Nothing burns.

And it exhausts me to watch you
Flickering like that, wrinkly and clear red, like the skin of a mouth.

A mouth just bloodied.
Little bloody skirts!

There are fumes that I cannot touch.
Where are your opiates, your nauseous capsules?

If I could bleed, or sleep!——
If my mouth could marry a hurt like that!

Or your liquors seep to me, in this glass capsule,
Dulling and stilling.

But colorless. Colorless.

20 July 1962

Burning the Letters

I made a fire; being tired
 Of the white fists of old
 Letters and their death rattle
 When I came too close to the wastebasket.
 What did they know that I didn't?
 Grain by grain, they unrolled
 Sands where a dream of clear water
 Grinned like a getaway car.
 I am not subtle
 Love, love, and well, I was tired
 Of cardboard cartons the color of cement or a dog pack
 Holding in its hate
 Dully, under a pack of men in red jackets,
 And the eyes and times of the postmarks.

This fire may lick and fawn, but it is merciless:
 A glass case
 My fingers would enter although
 They melt and sag, they are told
Do not touch.
 And here is an end to the writing,
 The spry hooks that bend and cringe, and the smiles, the smiles.
 And at least it will be a good place now, the attic.
 At least I won't be strung just under the surface,
 Dumb fish
 With one tin eye,
 Watching for glints,
 Riding my Arctic
 Between this wish and that wish.

So I poke at the carbon birds in my housedress.
 They are more beautiful than my bodiless owl,
 They console me—
 Rising and flying, but blinded.
 They would flutter off, black and glittering, they would be coal angels
 Only they have nothing to say to anybody.
 I have seen to that.
 With the butt of a rake
 I flake up papers that breathe like people,

1962

I fan them out
Between the yellow lettuces and the German cabbage
Involved in its weird blue dreams,
Involved as a foetus.
And a name with black edges

Wilts at my foot,
Sinuous orchis
In a nest of root-hairs and boredom—
Pale eyes, patent-leather gutturals!
Warm rain greases my hair, extinguishes nothing.
My veins glow like trees.
The dogs are tearing a fox. This is what it is like—
A red burst and a cry
That splits from its ripped bag and does not stop
With the dead eye
And the stuffed expression, but goes on Dyeing the air,
Telling the particles of the clouds, the leaves, the water
What immortality is. That it is immortal.

For a Fatherless Son

You will be aware of an absence, presently,
Growing beside you, like a tree,
A death tree, color gone, an Australian gum tree—
Balding, gelded by lightning—an illusion,
And a sky like a pig's backside, an utter lack of attention.

But right now you are dumb.
And I love your stupidity,
The blind mirror of it. I look in
And find no face but my own, and you think that's funny.
It is good for me

To have you grab my nose, a ladder rung.
One day you may touch what's wrong

1962

The small skulls, the smashed blue hills, the godawful hush.
Till then your smiles are found money.

A Birthday Present

What is this, behind this veil, is it ugly, is it beautiful?
It is shimmering, has it breasts, has it edges?

I am sure it is unique, I am sure it is just what I want.
When I am quiet at my cooking I feel it looking, I feel it thinking

'Is this the one I am to appear for,
Is this the elect one, the one with black eye-pits and a scar?

Measuring the flour, cutting off the surplus,
Adhering to rules, to rules, to rules.

Is this the one for the annunciation?
My god, what a laugh!

But it shimmers, it does not stop, and I think it wants me.
I would not mind if it was bones, or a pearl button.

I do not want much of a present, anyway, this year.
After all I am alive only by accident.

I would have killed myself gladly that time any possible way.
Now there are these veils, shimmering like curtains,

The diaphanous satins of a January window
White as babies' bedding and glittering with dead breath. O ivory!

It must be a tusk there, a ghost-column.
Can you not see I do not mind what it is.

Can you not give it to me?
Do not be ashamed—I do not mind if it is small.

Do not be mean, I am ready for enormity.
 Let us sit down to it, one on either side, admiring the gleam,

The glaze, the mirrory variety of it.
 Let us eat our last supper at it, like a hospital plate.

I know why you will not give it to me,
 You are terrified

The world will go up in a shriek, and your head with it,
 Bossed, brazen, an antique shield,

A marvel to your great-grandchildren.
 Do not be afraid, it is not so.

I will only take it and go aside quietly.
 You will not even hear me opening it, no paper crackle,

No falling ribbons, no scream at the end.
 I do not think you credit me with this discretion.

If you only knew how the veils were killing my days.
 To you they are only transparencies, clear air.

But my god, the clouds are like cotton.
 Armies of them. They are carbon monoxide.

Sweetly, sweetly I breathe in,
 Filling my veins with invisibles, with the million

Probable motes that tick the years off my life.
 You are silver-suited for the occasion. O adding machine——

Is it impossible for you to let something go and have it go whole?
 Must you stamp each piece in purple,

Must you kill what you can?
 There is this one thing I want today, and only you can give it to me.

It stands at my window, big as the sky.
 It breathes from my sheets, the cold dead center

1962

Where spilt lives congeal and stiffen to history.
Let it not come by the mail, finger by finger.

Let it not come by word of mouth, I should be sixty
By the time the whole of it was delivered, and too numb to use it.

Only let down the veil, the veil, the veil.
If it were death

I would admire the deep gravity of it, its timeless eyes.
I would know you were serious.

There would be a nobility then, there would be a birthday.
And the knife not carve, but enter

Pure and clean as the cry of a baby,
And the universe slide from my side.

30 September 1962

The Detective

What was she doing when it blew in
Over the seven hills, the red furrow, the blue mountain?
Was she arranging cups? It is important.
Was she at the window, listening?
In that valley the train shrieks echo like souls on hooks.

That is the valley of death, though the cows thrive.
In her garden the lies were shaking out their moist silks
And the eyes of the killer moving sluglike and sidelong,
Unable to face the fingers, those egotists.
The fingers were tamping a woman into a wall,

A body into a pipe, and the smoke rising.
This is the smell of years burning, here in the kitchen,
These are the deceits, tacked up like family photographs,
And this is a man, look at his smile,
The death weapon? No one is dead.

1962

There is no body in the house at all.
There is the smell of polish, there are plush carpets.
There is the sunlight, playing its blades,
Bored hoodlum in a red room
Where the wireless talks to itself like an elderly relative.

Did it come like an arrow, did it come like a knife?
Which of the poisons is it?
Which of the nerve-curlers, the convulsors? Did it electrify?
This is a case without a body.
The body does not come into it at all.

It is a case of vaporization.
The mouth first, its absence reported
In the second year. It had been insatiable
And in punishment was hung out like brown fruit
To wrinkle and dry.

The breasts next.
These were harder, two white stones.
The milk came yellow, then blue and sweet as water.
There was no absence of lips, there were two children,
But their bones showed, and the moon smiled.

Then the dry wood, the gates,
The brown motherly furrows, the whole estate.
We walk on air, Watson.
There is only the moon, embalmed in phosphorus.
There is only a crow in a tree. Make notes.

1 October 1962

175

The Courage of Shutting-Up

The courage of the shut mouth, in spite of artillery!
The line pink and quiet, a worm, basking.
There are black disks behind it, the disks of outrage,
And the outrage of a sky, the lined brain of it.
The disks revolve, they ask to be heard—

1962

Loaded, as they are, with accounts of bastardies.
Bastardies, usages, desertions and doubleness,
The needle journeying in its groove,
Silver beast between two dark canyons,
A great surgeon, now a tattooist,

Tattooing over and over the same blue grievances,
The snakes, the babies, the tits
On mermaids and two-legged dreamgirls.
The surgeon is quiet, he does not speak.
He has seen too much death, his hands are full of it.

So the disks of the brain revolve, like the muzzles of cannon.
Then there is that antique billhook, the tongue,
Indefatigable, purple. Must it be cut out?
It has nine tails, it is dangerous.
And the noise it flays from the air, once it gets going!

No, the tongue, too, has been put by,
Hung up in the library with the engravings of Rangoon
And the fox heads, the otter heads, the heads of dead rabbits.
It is a marvelous object—
The things it has pierced in its time.

But how about the eyes, the eyes, the eyes?
Mirrors can kill and talk, they are terrible rooms
In which a torture goes on one can only watch.
The face that lived in this mirror is the face of a dead man.
Do not worry about the eyes—

They may be white and shy, they are no stool pigeons,
Their death rays folded like flags
Of a country no longer heard of,
An obstinate independency
Insolvent among the mountains.

2 October 1962

The Bee Meeting

Who are these people at the bridge to meet me? They are the villagers——

The rector, the midwife, the sexton, the agent for bees.
In my sleeveless summery dress I have no protection,
And they are all gloved and covered, why did nobody tell me?
They are smiling and taking out veils tacked to ancient hats.

I am nude as a chicken neck, does nobody love me?
Yes, here is the secretary of bees with her white shop smock,
Buttoning the cuffs at my wrists and the slit from my neck to my knees.
Now I am milkweed silk, the bees will not notice.
They will not smell my fear, my fear, my fear.

Which is the rector now, is it that man in black?
Which is the midwife, is that her blue coat?
Everybody is nodding a square black head, they are knights in visors,
Breastplates of cheesecloth knotted under the armpits.
Their smiles and their voices are changing. I am led through a beanfield.

Strips of tinfoil winking like people,
Feather dusters fanning their hands in a sea of bean flowers,
Creamy bean flowers with black eyes and leaves like bored hearts.
Is it blood clots the tendrils are dragging up that string?
No, no, it is scarlet flowers that will one day be edible.

Now they are giving me a fashionable white straw Italian hat
And a black veil that molds to my face, they are making me one of them.
They are leading me to the shorn grove, the circle of hives.
Is it the hawthorn that smells so sick?
The barren body of hawthorn, etherizing its children.

Is it some operation that is taking place?
It is the surgeon my neighbors are waiting for,
This apparition in a green helmet,
Shining gloves and white suit.
Is it the butcher, the grocer, the postman, someone I know?

I cannot run, I am rooted, and the gorse hurts me
With its yellow purses, its spiky armory.

1962

I could not run without having to run forever.
The white hive is snug as a virgin,
Sealing off her brood cells, her honey, and quietly humming.

Smoke rolls and scarves in the grove.
The mind of the hive thinks this is the end of everything.
Here they come, the outriders, on their hysterical elastics.
If I stand very still, they will think I am cow-parsley,
A gullible head untouched by their animosity,

Not even nodding, a personage in a hedgerow.
The villagers open the chambers, they are hunting the queen.
Is she hiding, is she eating honey? She is very clever.
She is old, old, old, she must live another year, and she knows it.
While in their fingerjoint cells the new virgins

Dream of a duel they will win inevitably,
A curtain of wax dividing them from the bride flight,
The upflight of the murderess into a heaven that loves her.
The villagers are moving the virgins, there will be no killing.
The old queen does not show herself, is she so ungrateful?

I am exhausted, I am exhausted——
Pillar of white in a blackout of knives.
I am the magician's girl who does not flinch.
The villagers are untying their disguises, they are shaking hands.
Whose is that long white box in the grove, what have they accomplished, why am I cold.

The Arrival of the Bee Box

I ordered this, this clean wood box
Square as a chair and almost too heavy to lift.
I would say it was the coffin of a midget
Or a square baby
Were there not such a din in it.

1962

The box is locked, it is dangerous.
I have to live with it overnight
And I can't keep away from it.
There are no windows, so I can't see what is in there.
There is only a little grid, no exit.

I put my eye to the grid.
It is dark, dark,
With the swarmy feeling of African hands
Minute and shrunk for export,
Black on black, angrily clambering.

How can I let them out?
It is the noise that appalls me most of all,
The unintelligible syllables.
It is like a Roman mob,
Small, taken one by one, but my god, together!

I lay my ear to furious Latin.
I am not a Caesar.
I have simply ordered a box of maniacs.
They can be sent back.
They can die, I need feed them nothing, I am the owner.

I wonder how hungry they are.
I wonder if they would forget me
If I just undid the locks and stood back and turned into a tree.
There is the laburnum, its blond colonnades,
And the petticoats of the cherry.

They might ignore me immediately
In my moon suit and funeral veil.
I am no source of honey
So why should they turn on me?
Tomorrow I will be sweet God, I will set them free.

The box is only temporary.

Stings

Bare-handed, I hand the combs.
The man in white smiles, bare-handed,
Our cheesecloth gauntlets neat and sweet,
The throats of our wrists brave lilies.
He and I

Have a thousand clean cells between us,
Eight combs of yellow cups,
And the hive itself a teacup,
White with pink flowers on it,
With excessive love I enameled it

Thinking 'Sweetness, sweetness'.
Brood cells gray as the fossils of shells
Terrify me, they seem so old.
What am I buying, wormy mahogany?
Is there any queen at all in it?

If there is, she is old,
Her wings torn shawls, her long body
Rubbed of its plush——
Poor and bare and unqueenly and even shameful.
I stand in a column

Of winged, unmiraculous women,
Honey-drudgers.
I am no drudge
Though for years I have eaten dust
And dried plates with my dense hair.

And seen my strangeness evaporate,
Blue dew from dangerous skin.
Will they hate me,
These women who only scurry,
Whose news is the open cherry, the open clover?

It is almost over.
I am in control.
Here is my honey-machine,

1962

It will work without thinking,
Opening, in spring, like an industrious virgin

To scour the creaming crests
As the moon, for its ivory powders, scours the sea.
A third person is watching.
He has nothing to do with the bee-seller or with me.
Now he is gone

In eight great bounds, a great scapegoat.
Here is his slipper, here is another,
And here the square of white linen
He wore instead of a hat.
He was sweet,

The sweat of his efforts a rain
Tugging the world to fruit.
The bees found him out,
Molding onto his lips like lies,
Complicating his features.

They thought death was worth it, but I
Have a self to recover, a queen.
Is she dead, is she sleeping?
Where has she been,
With her lion-red body, her wings of glass?

Now she is flying
More terrible than she ever was, red
Scar in the sky, red comet
Over the engine that killed her——
The mausoleum, the wax house.

The Swarm

Somebody is shooting at something in our town—
A dull pom, pom in the Sunday street.
Jealousy can open the blood,

It can make black roses.
Who are they shooting at?

It is you the knives are out for
At Waterloo, Waterloo, Napoleon,
The hump of Elba on your short back,
And the snow, marshaling its brilliant cutlery
Mass after mass, saying Shh!

Shh! These are chess people you play with,
Still figures of ivory.
The mud squirms with throats,
Stepping stones for French bootsoles.
The gilt and pink domes of Russia melt and float off

In the furnace of greed. Clouds, clouds.
So the swarm balls and deserts
Seventy feet up, in a black pine tree.
It must be shot down. Pom! Pom!
So dumb it thinks bullets are thunder.

It thinks they are the voice of God
Condoning the beak, the claw, the grin of the dog
Yellow-haunched, a pack-dog,
Grinning over its bone of ivory
Like the pack, the pack, like everybody.

The bees have got so far. Seventy feet high!
Russia, Poland and Germany!
The mild hills, the same old magenta
Fields shrunk to a penny
Spun into a river, the river crossed.

The bees argue, in their black ball,
A flying hedgehog, all prickles.
The man with gray hands stands under the honeycomb
Of their dream, the hived station
Where trains, faithful to their steel arcs,

1962

Leave and arrive, and there is no end to the country.
Pom! Pom! They fall
Dismembered, to a tod of ivy.
So much for the charioteers, the outriders, the Grand Army!
A red tatter, Napoleon!

The last badge of victory.
The swarm is knocked into a cocked straw hat.
Elba, Elba, bleb on the sea!
The white busts of marshals, admirals, generals
Worming themselves into niches.

How instructive this is!
The dumb, banded bodies
Walking the plank draped with Mother France's upholstery
Into a new mausoleum,
An ivory palace, a crotch pine.

The man with gray hands smiles—
The smile of a man of business, intensely practical.
They are not hands at all
But asbestos receptacles.
Pom! Pom! 'They would have killed me.'

Stings big as drawing pins!
It seems bees have a notion of honor,
A black intractable mind.
Napoleon is pleased, he is pleased with everything.
O Europe! O ton of honey!

Wintering

This is the easy time, there is nothing doing.
I have whirled the midwife's extractor,
I have my honey,
Six jars of it,
Six cat's eyes in the wine cellar,

Wintering in a dark without window
 At the heart of the house
 Next to the last tenant's rancid jam
 And the bottles of empty glitters——
 Sir So-and-so's gin.

This is the room I have never been in.
 This is the room I could never breathe in.
 The black bunched in there like a bat,
 No light
 But the torch and its faint

Chinese yellow on appalling objects——
 Black asininity. Decay.
 Possession.
 It is they who own me.
 Neither cruel nor indifferent,

Only ignorant.
 This is the time of hanging on for the bees—the bees
 So slow I hardly know them,
 Filing like soldiers
 To the syrup tin

To make up for the honey I've taken.
 Tate and Lyle keeps them going,
 The refined snow.
 It is Tate and Lyle they live on, instead of flowers.
 They take it. The cold sets in.

Now they ball in a mass,
 Black
 Mind against all that white.
 The smile of the snow is white.
 It spreads itself out, a mile-long body of Meissen,

Into which, on warm days,
 They can only carry their dead.
 The bees are all women,
 Maids and the long royal lady.
 They have got rid of the men,

1962

The blunt, clumsy stumblers, the boors.
Winter is for women——
The woman, still at her knitting,
At the cradle of Spanish walnut,
Her body a bulb in the cold and too dumb to think.

Will the hive survive, will the gladiolas
Succeed in banking their fires
To enter another year?
What will they taste of, the Christmas roses?
The bees are flying. They taste the spring.

A Secret

A secret! A secret!
How superior.
You are blue and huge, a traffic policeman,
Holding up one palm —

A difference between us?
I have one eye, you have two.
The secret is stamped on you,
Faint, undulant watermark.

Will it show in the black detector?
Will it come out
Wavery, indelible, true
Through the African giraffe in its Edeny greenery,

The Moroccan hippopotamus?
They stare from a square, stiff frill.
They are for export,
One a fool, the other a fool.

A secret . . . An extra amber
Brandy finger
Roosting and cooing 'You, you'
Behind two eyes in which nothing is reflected but monkeys.

1962

A knife that can be taken out
To pare nails,
To lever the dirt.
'It won't hurt.'

An illegitimate baby —
That big blue head —
How it breathes in the bureau drawer!
'Is that lingerie, pet?

'It smells of salt cod, you had better
Stab a few cloves in an apple,
Make a sachet or
Do away with the bastard.

'Do away with it altogether.'
'No, no, it is happy there.'
'But it wants to get out!
Look, look! It is wanting to crawl.'

My god, there goes the stopper!
The cars in the Place de la Concorde —
Watch out!
A stampede, a stampede!

Horns twirling and jungle gutturals!
An exploded bottle of stout,
Slack foam in the lap.
You stumble out,

Dwarf baby,
The knife in your back.
'I feel weak.'
The secret is out.

The Applicant

First, are you our sort of a person?
 Do you wear
 A glass eye, false teeth or a crutch,
 A brace or a hook,
 Rubber breasts or a rubber crotch,

Stitches to show something's missing? No, no? Then
 How can we give you a thing?
 Stop crying.
 Open your hand.
 Empty? Empty. Here is a hand

To fill it and willing
 To bring teacups and roll away headaches
 And do whatever you tell it.
 Will you marry it?
 It is guaranteed

To thumb shut your eyes at the end
 And dissolve of sorrow.
 We make new stock from the salt.
 I notice you are stark naked.
 How about this suit——

Black and stiff, but not a bad fit.
 Will you marry it?
 It is waterproof, shatterproof, proof
 Against fire and bombs through the roof.
 Believe me, they'll bury you in it.

Now your head, excuse me, is empty.
 I have the ticket for that.
 Come here, sweetie, out of the closet.
 Well, what do you think of that?
 Naked as paper to start

But in twenty-five years she'll be silver,
 In fifty, gold.
 A living doll, everywhere you look.

1962

It can sew, it can cook,
It can talk, talk, talk.

It works, there is nothing wrong with it.
You have a hole, it's a poultice.
You have an eye, it's an image.
My boy, it's your last resort.
Will you marry it, marry it, marry it.

Daddy

You do not do, you do not do
Any more, black shoe
In which I have lived like a foot
For thirty years, poor and white,
Barely daring to breathe or Achoo.

Daddy, I have had to kill you.
You died before I had time——
Marble-heavy, a bag full of God,
Ghastly statue with one gray toe
Big as a Frisco seal

And a head in the freakish Atlantic
Where it pours bean green over blue
In the waters off beautiful Nauset.
I used to pray to recover you.
Ach, du.

In the German tongue, in the Polish town
Scraped flat by the roller
Of wars, wars, wars.
But the name of the town is common.
My Polack friend

1962

Says there are a dozen or two.
So I never could tell where you
Put your foot, your root,
I never could talk to you.
The tongue stuck in my jaw.

It stuck in a barb wire snare.
Ich, ich, ich, ich,
I could hardly speak.
I thought every German was you.
And the language obscene

An engine, an engine
Chuffing me off like a Jew.
A Jew to Dachau, Auschwitz, Belsen.
I began to talk like a Jew.
I think I may well be a Jew.

The snows of the Tyrol, the clear beer of Vienna
Are not very pure or true.
With my gipsy ancestress and my weird luck
And my Taroc pack and my Taroc pack
I may be a bit of a Jew.

I have always been scared of you,
With your Luftwaffe, your gobbledygoo.
And your neat mustache
And your Aryan eye, bright blue.
Panzer-man, panzer-man, O You——

Not God but a swastika
So black no sky could squeak through.
Every woman adores a Fascist,
The boot in the face, the brute
Brute heart of a brute like you.

You stand at the blackboard, daddy,
In the picture I have of you,
A cleft in your chin instead of your foot
But no less a devil for that, no not Any less the black man who 1962

Bit my pretty red heart in two.
I was ten when they buried you.
At twenty I tried to die
And get back, back, back to you.
I thought even the bones would do.

But they pulled me out of the sack,
And they stuck me together with glue.
And then I knew what to do.
I made a model of you,
A man in black with a Meinkampf look

And a love of the rack and the screw.
And I said I do, I do.
So daddy, I'm finally through.
The black telephone's off at the root,
The voices just can't worm through.

If I've killed one man, I've killed two——
The vampire who said he was you
And drank my blood for a year,
Seven years, if you want to know.
Daddy, you can lie back now.

There's a stake in your fat black heart
And the villagers never liked you.
They are dancing and stamping on you.
They always knew it was you.
Daddy, daddy, you bastard, I'm through.

Medusa

Off that landspit of stony mouth-plugs,
Eyes rolled by white sticks,
Ears cupping the sea's incoherences,
You house your unnerving head—God-ball,
Lens of mercies,

Your stooges
 Plying their wild cells in my keel's shadow,
 Pushing by like hearts,
 Red stigmata at the very center,
 Riding the rip tide to the nearest point of departure,

Dragging their Jesus hair.
 Did I escape, I wonder?
 My mind winds to you
 Old barnacled umbilicus, Atlantic cable,
 Keeping itself, it seems, in a state of miraculous repair.

In any case, you are always there,
 Tremulous breath at the end of my line,
 Curve of water upleaping
 To my water rod, dazzling and grateful,
 Touching and sucking.

I didn't call you.
 I didn't call you at all.
 Nevertheless, nevertheless
 You steamed to me over the sea,
 Fat and red, a placenta

Paralysing the kicking lovers.
 Cobra light
 Squeezing the breath from the blood bells
 Of the fuchsia. I could draw no breath,
 Dead and moneyless,

Overexposed, like an X-ray.
 Who do you think you are?
 A Communion wafer? Blubbery Mary?
 I shall take no bite of your body,
 Bottle in which I live,

Ghastly Vatican.
 I am sick to death of hot salt.

1962

Green as eunuchs, your wishes
Hiss at my sins.
Off, off, eely tentacle!

There is nothing between us.

The Jailer

My night sweats grease his breakfast plate.
The same placard of blue fog is wheeled into position
With the same trees and headstones.
Is that all he can come up with,
The rattler of keys?

I have been drugged and raped.
Seven hours knocked out of my right mind
Into a black sack
Where I relax, foetus or cat,
Lever of his wet dreams.

Something is gone.
My sleeping capsule, my red and blue zeppelin
Drops me from a terrible altitude.
Carapace smashed,
I spread to the beaks of birds.

O little gimlets—
What holes this papery day is already full of!
He has been burning me with cigarettes,
Pretending I am a negress with pink paws.
I am myself. That is not enough.

The fever trickles and stiffens in my hair.
My ribs show. What have I eaten?
Lies and smiles.
Surely the sky is not that color,
Surely the grass should be rippling.

1962

All day, gluing my church of burnt matchsticks,
I dream of someone else entirely.
And he, for this subversion,
Hurts me, he
With his armor of fakery,

His high cold masks of amnesia.
How did I get here?
Indeterminate criminal,
I die with variety—
Hung, starved, burned, hooked.

I imagine him
Impotent as distant thunder,
In whose shadow I have eaten my ghost ration.
I wish him dead or away.
That, it seems, is the impossibility.

That being free. What would the dark
Do without fevers to eat?
What would the light
Do without eyes to knife, what would he
Do, do, do without me?

17 October 1962

186

Lesbos

Viciousness in the kitchen!
The potatoes hiss.
It is all Hollywood, windowless,
The fluorescent light wincing on and off like a terrible migraine,
Coy paper strips for doors—
Stage curtains, a widow's frizz.
And I, love, am a pathological liar,
And my child—look at her, face down on the floor,
Little unstrung puppet, kicking to disappear—
Why she is schizophrenic,
Her face red and white, a panic,
You have stuck her kittens outside your window
In a sort of cement well

Where they crap and puke and cry and she can't hear.
 You say you can't stand her,
 The bastard's a girl.
 You who have blown your tubes like a bad radio
 Clear of voices and history, the staticky
 Noise of the new.
 You say I should drown the kittens. Their smell!
 You say I should drown my girl.
 She'll cut her throat at ten if she's mad at two.
 The baby smiles, fat snail,
 From the polished lozenges of orange linoleum.
 You could eat him. He's a boy.
 You say your husband is just no good to you.
 His Jew-Mama guards his sweet sex like a pearl.
 You have one baby, I have two.
 I should sit on a rock off Cornwall and comb my hair.
 I should wear tiger pants, I should have an affair.
 We should meet in another life, we should meet in air,
 Me and you.

Meanwhile there's a stink of fat and baby crap.
 I'm doped and thick from my last sleeping pill.
 The smog of cooking, the smog of hell
 Floats our heads, two venomous opposites,
 Our bones, our hair.
 I call you Orphan, orphan. You are ill.
 The sun gives you ulcers, the wind gives you T.B.
 Once you were beautiful.
 In New York, in Hollywood, the men said: 'Through?
 Gee baby, you are rare.'
 You acted, acted, acted for the thrill.
 The impotent husband slumps out for a coffee.
 I try to keep him in,
 An old pole for the lightning,
 The acid baths, the skyfuls off of you.
 He lumps it down the plastic cobbled hill,
 Flogged trolley. The sparks are blue.
 The blue sparks spill,
 Splitting like quartz into a million bits.

O jewel! O valuable!
 That night the moon
 Dragged its blood bag, sick
 Animal
 Up over the harbor lights.
 And then grew normal,
 Hard and apart and white.
 The scale-sheen on the sand scared me to death.
 We kept picking up handfuls, loving it,
 Working it like dough, a mulatto body,
 The silk grits.
 A dog picked up your doggy husband. He went on.

Now I am silent, hate
 Up to my neck,
 Thick, thick.
 I do not speak.
 I am packing the hard potatoes like good clothes,
 I am packing the babies,
 I am packing the sick cats.
 O vase of acid,
 It is love you are full of. You know who you hate.
 He is hugging his ball and chain down by the gate
 That opens to the sea
 Where it drives in, white and black,
 Then spews it back.
 Every day you fill him with soul-stuff, like a pitcher.
 You are so exhausted.
 Your voice my ear-ring,
 Flapping and sucking, blood-loving bat.
 That is that. That is that.
 You peer from the door,
 Sad hag. 'Every woman's a whore.
 I can't communicate.'

I see your cute décor
 Close on you like the fist of a baby
 Or an anemone, that sea
 Sweetheart, that kleptomaniac.
 I am still raw.

1962

I say I may be back.
You know what lies are for.

Even in your Zen heaven we shan't meet.

Stopped Dead

A squeal of brakes.
Or is it a birth cry?
And here we are, hung out over the dead drop
Uncle, pants factory Fatso, millionaire.
And you out cold beside me in your chair.

The wheels, two rubber grubs, bite their sweet tails.
Is that Spain down there?
Red and yellow, two passionate hot metals
Writhing and sighing, what sort of a scenery is it?
It isn't England, it isn't France, it isn't Ireland.

It's violent. We're here on a visit,
With a goddam baby screaming off somewhere.
There's always a bloody baby in the air.
I'd call it a sunset, but
Whoever heard a sunset yowl like that?

You are sunk in your seven chins, still as a ham.
Who do you think I am,
Uncle, uncle?
Sad Hamlet, with a knife?
Where do you stash your life?

Is it a penny, a pearl—
Your soul, your soul?
I'll carry it off like a rich pretty girl,
Simply open the door and step out of the car
And live in Gibraltar on air, on air.

19 October 1962

Fever 103°

Pure? What does it mean?
 The tongues of hell
 Are dull, dull as the triple

Tongues of dull, fat Cerberus
 Who wheezes at the gate. Incapable
 Of licking clean

The aguey tendon, the sin, the sin.
 The tinder cries.
 The indelible smell

Of a snuffed candle!
 Love, love, the low smokes roll
 From me like Isadora's scarves, I'm in a fright

One scarf will catch and anchor in the wheel.
 Such yellow sullen smokes
 Make their own element. They will not rise,

But trundle round the globe
 Choking the aged and the meek,
 The weak

Hothouse baby in its crib,
 The ghastly orchid
 Hanging its hanging garden in the air,

Devilish leopard!
 Radiation turned it white
 And killed it in an hour.

Greasing the bodies of adulterers
 Like Hiroshima ash and eating in.
 The sin. The sin.

Darling, all night
 I have been flickering, off, on, off, on.
 The sheets grow heavy as a lecher's kiss.

1962

Three days. Three nights.
Lemon water, chicken
Water, water make me retch.

I am too pure for you or anyone.
Your body
Hurts me as the world hurts God. I am a lantern——

My head a moon
Of Japanese paper, my gold beaten skin
Infinitely delicate and infinitely expensive.

Does not my heat astound you. And my light.
All by myself I am a huge camellia
Glowing and coming and going, flush on flush.

I think I am going up,
I think I may rise——
The beads of hot metal fly, and I, love, I Am a pure acetylene

Virgin
Attended by roses,

By kisses, by cherubim,
By whatever these pink things mean.
Not you, nor him

Not him, nor him
(My selves dissolving, old whore petticoats)——
To Paradise.

Amnesiac

No use, no use, now, begging Recognize!
There is nothing to do with such a beautiful blank but smooth it.
Name, house, car keys,

1962

The little toy wife—
Erased, sigh, sigh.
Four babies and a cooker!

Nurses the size of worms and a minute doctor
Tuck him in.
Old happenings

Peel from his skin.
Down the drain with all of it!
Hugging his pillow

Like the red-headed sister he never dared to touch,
He dreams of a new one—
Barren, the lot are barren!

And of another color.
How they'll travel, travel, travel, scenery
Sparking off their brother-sister rears

A comet tail!
And money the sperm fluid of it all.
One nurse brings in

A green drink, one a blue.
They rise on either side of him like stars.
The two drinks flame and foam.

O sister, mother, wife,
Sweet Lethe is my life.
I am never, never, never coming home!

Lyonnesse

No use whistling for Lyonesse!
Sea-cold, sea-cold it certainly is.
Take a look at the white, high berg on his forehead—

1962

There's where it sunk.
The blue, green,
Gray, indeterminate guilt

Sea of his eyes washing over it
And a round bubble
Popping upward from the mouths of bells

People and cows.
The Lyonians had always thought
Heaven would be something else,

But with the same faces,
The same places. . .
It was not a shock —

The clear, green, quite breathable atmosphere,
Cold grits underfoot,
And the spidery water-dazzle on field and street.

It never occurred that they had been forgot,
That the big God
Had lazily closed one eye and let them slip

Over the English cliff and under so much history!
They did not see him smile,
Turn, like an animal,

In his cage of ether, his cage of stars.
He'd had so many wars!
The white gape of his mind was the real Tabula Rasa.

Cut

191

For Susan O'Neill Roe

What a thrill——
My thumb instead of an onion.
The top quite gone
Except for a sort of a hinge

Of skin,
A flap like a hat,
Dead white.
Then that red plush.

Little pilgrim,
The Indian's axed your scalp.
Your turkey wattle
Carpet rolls

Straight from the heart.
I step on it,
Clutching my bottle
Of pink fizz.

A celebration, this is.
Out of a gap
A million soldiers run,
Redcoats, every one.

Whose side are they on?
O my Homunculus, I am ill.
I have taken a pill to kill

The thin
Papery feeling.
Saboteur,
Kamikaze man——

The stain on your
Gauze Ku Klux Klan

1962

Babushka
Darkens and tarnishes and when

The balled
Pulp of your heart
Confronts its small
Mill of silence

How you jump——
Trepanned veteran,
Dirty girl,
Thumb stump.

By Candlelight

This is winter, this is night, small love—
A sort of black horsehair,
A rough, dumb country stuff
Steeled with the sheen
Of what green stars can make it to our gate.
I hold you on my arm.
It is very late.
The dull bells tongue the hour.
The mirror floats us at one candle power.

This is the fluid in which we meet each other,
This haloey radiance that seems to breathe
And lets our shadows wither
Only to blow
Them huge again, violent giants on the wall.
One match scratch makes you real.
At first the candle will not bloom at all—
It snuffs its bud
To almost nothing, to a dull blue dud.

I hold my breath until you creak to life,
Balled hedgehog,

1962

Small and cross. The yellow knife
Grows tall. You clutch your bars.
My singing makes you roar.
I rock you like a boat
Across the Indian carpet, the cold floor,
While the brass man
Kneels, back bent, as best he can

Hefting his white pillar with the light
That keeps the sky at bay,
The sack of black! It is everywhere, tight, tight!
He is yours, the little brassy Atlas—
Poor heirloom, all you have,
At his heels a pile of five brass cannonballs,
No child, no wife.
Five balls! Five bright brass balls!
To juggle with, my love, when the sky falls.

The Tour

O maiden aunt, you have come to call.
Do step into the hall!
With your bold
Gecko, the little flick!
All cogs, weird sparkle and every cog solid gold.
And I in slippers and housedress with no lipstick!

And you want to be shown about!
Yes, yes, this is my address.
Not a patch on your place, I guess, with the Javanese
Geese and the monkey trees.
It's a bit burnt-out,
A bit of a wild machine, a bit of a mess!

O I shouldn't put my finger in that
Auntie, it might bite!
That's my frost box, no cat,
Though it looks like a cat, with its fluffy stuff, pure white.

1962

You should see the objects it makes!
Millions of needly glass cakes!

Fine for the migraine or the bellyache. And this Is where I kept the furnace,
Each coal a hot cross-stitch—a lovely light!
It simply exploded one night,
It went up in smoke.
And that's why I have no hair, auntie, that's why I choke

Off and on, as if I just had to retch.
Coal gas is ghastly stuff.
Here's a spot I thought you'd love—
Morning Glory Pool!
The blue's a jewel.
It boils for forty hours at a stretch.

O I shouldn't dip my hankie in, it hurts!
Last summer, my God, last summer
It ate seven maids and a plumber
And returned them steamed and pressed and stiff as shirts.
I am bitter? I'm averse?
Here's your specs, dear, here's your purse.

Toddle on home to tea now in your flat hat.
It'll be lemon tea for me,
Lemon tea and earwig biscuits—creepy-creepy.
You'd not want that.
Toddle on home, before the weather's worse.
Toddle on home, and don't trip on the nurse!—

She may be bald, she may have no eyes,
But auntie, she's awfully nice.
She's pink, she's a born midwife—
She can bring the dead to life
With her wiggly fingers and for a very small fee.
Well I hope you've enjoyed it, auntie!

Toddle on home to tea!

Ariel

Stasis in darkness.
 Then the substanceless blue
 Pour of tor and distances.

God's lioness,
 How one we grow,
 Pivot of heels and knees!—The furrow

Splits and passes, sister to
 The brown arc
 Of the neck I cannot catch,

Nigger-eye
 Berries cast dark Hooks——

Black sweet blood mouthfuls,
 Shadows.
 Something else

Hauls me through air——
 Thighs, hair;
 Flakes from my heels.

White
 Godiva, I unpeel——
 Dead hands, dead stringencies.

And now I
 Foam to wheat, a glitter of seas.
 The child's cry

Melts in the wall.
 And I
 Am the arrow,

1962

The dew that flies
Suicidal, at one with the drive
Into the red

Eye, the cauldron of morning.

27 October 1962

195

Poppies in October

Even the sun-clouds this morning cannot manage such skirts.
Nor the woman in the ambulance
Whose red heart blooms through her coat so astoundingly——

A gift, a love gift
Utterly unasked for
By a sky

Palely and flamily
Igniting its carbon monoxides, by eyes
Dulled to a halt under bowlers.

O my God, what am I
That these late mouths should cry open
In a forest of frost, in a dawn of cornflowers.

27 October 1962

196

Nick and the Candlestick

I am a miner. The light burns blue.
Waxy stalactites
Drip and thicken, tears

The earthen womb
Exudes from its dead boredom.
Black bat airs

1962

Wrap me, raggy shawls,
Cold homicides.
They weld to me like plums.

Old cave of calcium Icicles, old echoer.
Even the newts are white,

Those holy Joes.
And the fish, the fish——
Christ! they are panes of ice,

A vice of knives,
A piranha
Religion, drinking

Its first communion out of my live toes.
The candle
Gulps and recovers its small altitude,

Its yellows hearten.
O love, how did you get here?
O embryo

Remembering, even in sleep,
Your crossed position.
The blood blooms clean

In you, ruby.
The pain
You wake to is not yours.

Love, love,
I have hung our cave with roses,
With soft rugs——

The last of Victoriana.
Let the stars
Plummet to their dark address,

1962

Let the mercuric
Atoms that cripple drip
Into the terrible well,

You are the one
Solid the spaces lean on, envious.
You are the baby in the barn.

Purdah

Jade—
Stone of the side,
The agonized

Side of green Adam, I
Smile, cross-legged,
Enigmatical,

Shifting my clarities.
So valuable!
How the sun polishes this shoulder!

And should
The moon, my
Indefatigable cousin

Rise, with her cancerous pallors,
Dragging trees—
Little bushy polyps,

Little nets,
My visibilities hide.
I gleam like a mirror.

At this facet the bridegroom arrives
Lord of the mirrors!
It is himself he guides

1962

In among these silk
Screens, these rustling appurtenances.
I breathe, and the mouth

Veil stirs its curtain
My eye
Veil is

A concatenation of rainbows.
I am his.
Even in his

Absence, I
Revolve in my
Sheath of impossibles,

Priceless and quiet
Among these parakeets, macaws!
O chatterers

Attendants of the eyelash!
I shall unloose
One feather, like the peacock.

Attendants of the lip!
I shall unloose
One note

Shattering
The chandelier
Of air that all day flies

Its crystals
A million ignorants.
Attendants!

Attendants!
And at his next step
I shall unloose

1962

I shall unloose—
From the small jeweled
Doll he guards like a heart—

The lioness,
The shriek in the bath,
The cloak of holes.

Lady Lazarus

I have done it again.
One year in every ten
I manage it——

A sort of walking miracle, my skin
Bright as a Nazi lampshade,
My right foot

A paperweight,
My face a featureless, fine
Jew linen.

Peel off the napkin
O my enemy.
Do I terrify?——

The nose, the eye pits, the full set of teeth?
The sour breath
Will vanish in a day.

Soon, soon the flesh
The grave cave ate will be
At home on me

And I a smiling woman.
I am only thirty.
And like the cat I have nine times to die.

1962

This is Number Three.
What a trash
To annihilate each decade.

What a million filaments.
The peanut-crunching crowd
Shoves in to see

Them unwrap me hand and foot——
The big strip tease.
Gentlemen, ladies

These are my hands
My knees.
I may be skin and bone,

Nevertheless, I am the same, identical woman.
The first time it happened I was ten.
It was an accident.

The second time I meant
To last it out and not come back at all.
I rocked shut

As a seashell.
They had to call and call
And pick the worms off me like sticky pearls.

Dying
Is an art, like everything else.
I do it exceptionally well.

I do it so it feels like hell.
I do it so it feels real.
I guess you could say I've a call.

It's easy enough to do it in a cell.
It's easy enough to do it and stay put.
It's the theatrical 1962

Comeback in broad day
To the same place, the same face, the same brute
Amused shout:

'A miracle!'
That knocks me out.
There is a charge

For the eyeing of my scars, there is a charge
For the hearing of my heart——
It really goes.

And there is a charge, a very large charge
For a word or a touch
Or a bit of blood

Or a piece of my hair or my clothes.
So, so, Herr Doktor.
So, Herr Enemy.

I am your opus,
I am your valuable,
The pure gold baby

That melts to a shriek.
I turn and burn.
Do not think I underestimate your great concern.

Ash, ash—
You poke and stir.
Flesh, bone, there is nothing there——

A cake of soap,
A wedding ring,
A gold filling.

Herr God, Herr Lucifer
Beware
Beware.

1962

Out of the ash
I rise with my red hair
And I eat men like air.

The Couriers

The word of a snail on the plate of a leaf?
It is not mine. Do not accept it.

Acetic acid in a sealed tin?
Do not accept it. It is not genuine.

A ring of gold with the sun in it?
Lies. Lies and a grief.

Frost on a leaf, the immaculate
Cauldron, talking and crackling

All to itself on the top of each
Of nine black Alps.

A disturbance in mirrors,
The sea shattering its gray one——

Love, love, my season.

Getting There

How far is it?
How far is it now?
The gigantic gorilla interior

Of the wheels move, they appall me——
 The terrible brains
 Of Krupp, black muzzles
 Revolving, the sound
 Punching out Absence! like cannon.
 It is Russia I have to get across, it is some war or other.
 I am dragging my body
 Quietly through the straw of the boxcars.
 Now is the time for bribery.
 What do wheels eat, these wheels
 Fixed to their arcs like gods,
 The silver leash of the will——
 Inexorable. And their pride!
 All the gods know is destinations.
 I am a letter in this slot——
 I fly to a name, two eyes.
 Will there be fire, will there be bread?
 Here there is such mud.
 It is a trainstop, the nurses
 Undergoing the faucet water, its veils, veils in a nunnery,
 Touching their wounded,
 The men the blood still pumps forward,
 Legs, arms piled outside
 The tent of unending cries——
 A hospital of dolls.
 And the men, what is left of the men
 Pumped ahead by these pistons, this blood
 Into the next mile,
 The next hour——
 Dynasty of broken arrows!

How far is it?
 There is mud on my feet,
 Thick, red and slipping. It is Adam's side,
 This earth I rise from, and I in agony.
 I cannot undo myself, and the train is steaming.
 Steaming and breathing, its teeth
 Ready to roll, like a devil's.
 There is a minute at the end of it
 A minute, a dewdrop.
 How far is it?

1962

It is so small
The place I am getting to, why are there these obstacles——
The body of this woman,
Charred skirts and deathmask
Mourned by religious figures, by garlanded children.
And now detonations——
Thunder and guns.
The fire's between us.
Is there no still place
Turning and turning in the middle air,
Untouched and untouchable.
The train is dragging itself, it is screaming——
An animal
Insane for the destination,
The bloodspot,
The face at the end of the flare.
I shall bury the wounded like pupas,
I shall count and bury the dead.
Let their souls writhe in a dew,
Incense in my track.
The carriages rock, they are cradles.
And I, stepping from this skin
Of old bandages, boredoms, old faces

Step to you from the black car of Lethe,
Pure as a baby.

The Night Dances

A smile fell in the grass.
Irretrievable!

And how will your night dances
Lose themselves. In mathematics?

Such pure leaps and spirals——
Surely they travel

1962

The world forever, I shall not entirely
Sit emptied of beauties, the gift

Of your small breath, the drenched grass
Smell of your sleeps, lilies, lilies.

Their flesh bears no relation.
Cold folds of ego, the calla,

And the tiger, embellishing itself——
Spots, and a spread of hot petals.

The comets
Have such a space to cross,

Such coldness, forgetfulness.
So your gestures flake off——

Warm and human, then their pink light
Bleeding and peeling

Through the black amnesias of heaven.
Why am I given

These lamps, these planets
Falling like blessings, like flakes

Six-sided, white
On my eyes, my lips, my hair

Touching and melting.
Nowhere.

Gulliver

Over your body the clouds go
High, high and icily
And a little flat, as if they

Floated on a glass that was invisible.
Unlike swans,
Having no reflections;

Unlike you,
With no strings attached.
All cool, all blue. Unlike you——

You, there on your back,
Eyes to the sky.
The spider-men have caught you,

Winding and twining their petty fetters,
Their bribes——
So many silks.

How they hate you.
They converse in the valley of your fingers, they are inchworms.
They would have you sleep in their cabinets,

This toe and that toe, a relic.
Step off!
Step off seven leagues, like those distances

That revolve in Crivelli, untouchable.
Let this eye be an eagle,
The shadow of this lip, an abyss.

6 November 1962

Thalidomide

O half moon —

Half-brain, luminosity —
Negro, masked like a white,

Your dark
Amputations crawl and appall —

Spidery, unsafe.
What glove

What leatheriness
Has protected

Me from that shadow —
The indelible buds,

Knuckles at shoulder-blades, the Faces that

Shove into being, dragging
The lopped

Blood-caul of absences.
All night I carpenter

A space for the thing I am given,
A love

Of two wet eyes and a screech.
White spit

Of indifference!
The dark fruits revolve and fall.

The glass cracks across,
The image

Flees and aborts like dropped mercury.

8 November 1962

Letter in November

Love, the world
 Suddenly turns, turns color. The streetlight
 Splits through the rat's-tail
 Pods of the laburnum at nine in the morning.
 It is the Arctic,

This little black
 Circle, with its tawn silk grasses—babies' hair.
 There is a green in the air,
 Soft, delectable.
 It cushions me lovingly.

I am flushed and warm.
 I think I may be enormous,
 I am so stupidly happy,
 My wellingtons
 Squelching and squelching through the beautiful red.

This is my property.
 Two times a day
 I pace it, sniffing
 The barbarous holly with its viridian
 Scallops, pure iron,

And the wall of old corpses.
 I love them.
 I love them like history.
 The apples are golden,
 Imagine it——

My seventy trees
 Holding their gold-ruddy balls
 In a thick gray death-soup,
 Their million
 Gold leaves metal and breathless.

1962

O love, O celibate.
Nobody but me
Walks the waist-high wet.
The irreplaceable
Golds bleed and deepen, the mouths of Thermopylae.

Death & Co.

Two, of course there are two.
It seems perfectly natural now——
The one who never looks up, whose eyes are lidded
And balled, like Blake's,
Who exhibits

The birthmarks that are his trademark——
The scald scar of water,
The nude
Verdigris of the condor.
I am red meat. His beak

Claps sidewise: I am not his yet.
He tells me how badly I photograph.
He tells me how sweet
The babies look in their hospital
Icebox, a simple

Frill at the neck,
Then the flutings of their Ionian
Death-gowns,
Then two little feet.
He does not smile or smoke.

The other does that,
His hair long and plausive.
Bastard
Masturbating a glitter,
He wants to be loved.

1962

I do not stir.
The frost makes a flower,
The dew makes a star,
The dead bell,
The dead bell.

Somebody's done for.

14 November 1962

206

Years

They enter as animals from the outer
Space of holly where spikes
Are not the thoughts I turn on, like a Yogi,
But greenness, darkness so pure
They freeze and are.

O God, I am not like you
In your vacuous black,
Stars stuck all over, bright stupid confetti.
Eternity bores me,
I never wanted it.

What I love is
The piston in motion——
My soul dies before it.
And the hooves of the horses,
Their merciless churn.

And you, great Stasis——
What is so great in that!
Is it a tiger this year, this roar at the door?
Is it a Christus,
The awful

God-bit in him
Dying to fly and be done with it?
The blood berries are themselves, they are very still.

1962

The hooves will not have it,
In blue distance the pistons hiss.

The Fearful

This man makes a pseudonym
And crawls behind it like a worm.

This woman on the telephone
Says she is a man, not a woman.

The mask increases, eats the worm,
Stripes for mouth and eyes and nose,

The voice of the woman hollows—
More and more like a dead one,

Worms in the glottal stops.
She hates

The thought of a baby—
Stealer of cells, stealer of beauty—

She would rather be dead than fat,
Dead and perfect, like Nefertit,

Hearing the fierce mask magnify
The silver limbo of each eye

Where the child can never swim,
Where there is only him and him.

Mary's Song

The Sunday lamb cracks in its fat.
The fat
Sacrifices its opacity. . . .

A window, holy gold.
The fire makes it precious,
The same fire

Melting the tallow heretics,
Ousting the Jews.
Their thick palls float

Over the cicatrix of Poland, burnt-out
Germany.
They do not die.

Gray birds obsess my heart,
Mouth-ash, ash of eye.
They settle. On the high

Precipice
That emptied one man into space
The ovens glowed like heavens, incandescent.

It is a heart,
This holocaust I walk in,
O golden child the world will kill and eat.

209

Winter Trees

The wet dawn inks are doing their blue dissolve.
On their blotter of fog the trees
Seem a botanical drawing—
Memories growing, ring on ring,
A series of weddings.

1962

Knowing neither abortions nor bitchery,
Truer than women,
They seed so effortlessly!
Tasting the winds, that are footless,
Waist-deep in history —

Full of wings, otherworldliness.
In this, they are Ledas.
O mother of leaves and sweetness
Who are these pietàs?
The shadows of ringdoves chanting, but casing nothing.

26 November 1962

Brasilia

Will they occur,
These people with torsos of steel
Winged elbows and eyeholes

Awaiting masses
Of cloud to give them expression,
These super-people! —

And my baby a nail
Driven, driven in.
He shrieks in his grease

Bones nosing for distances.
And I, nearly extinct,
His three teeth cutting

Themselves on my thumb —
And the star,
The old story.

In the lane I meet sheep and wagons,
Red earth, motherly blood.
O You who eat

1962

People like light rays, leave
This one
Mirror safe, unredeemed

By the dove's annihilation,
The glory
The power, the glory.

1 December 1962

211

Childless Woman

The womb
Rattles its pod, the moon
Discharges itself from the tree with nowhere to go.

My landscape is a hand with no lines,
The roads bunched to a knot,
The knot myself,

Myself the rose you achieve—
This body,
This ivory

Ungodly as a child's shriek.
Spiderlike, I spin mirrors,
Loyal to my image,

Uttering nothing but blood—
Taste it, dark red!
And my forest

My funeral,
And this hill and this
Gleaming with the mouths of corpses.

1 December 1962

Eavesdropper

Your brother will trim my hedges!
 They darken your house,
 Nosy grower,
 Mole on my shoulder,
 To be scratched absently,
 To bleed, if it comes to that.
 The stain of the tropics
 Still urinous on you, a sin.
 A kind of bush-stink.

You may be local,
 But that yellow!
 Godawful!
 Your body one
 Long nicotine-finger
 On which I,
 White cigarette,
 Burn, for your inhalation,
 Driving the dull cells wild.

Let me roost in you!
 My distractions, my pallors.
 Let them start the queer alchemy
 That melts the skin
 Gray tallow, from bone and bone.
 So I saw your much sicker
 Predecessor wrapped up,
 A six and a half foot wedding-cake.
 And he was not even malicious.

Do not think I don't notice your curtain —
 Midnight, four o'clock,
 Lit (you are reading),
 Tarting with the drafts that pass,
 Little whore tongue,
 Chenille beckoner,
 Beckoning my words in —
 The zoo yowl, the mad soft
 Mirror talk you love to catch me at.

1962

How you jumped when I jumped on you!
Arms folded, ear cocked,
Toad-yellow under the drop
That would not, would not drop
In a desert of cow people
Trundling their udders home
To the electric milker, the wifey, the big blue eye
That watches, like God, or the sky
The ciphers that watch it.

I called.
You crawled out,
A weather figure, boggling,
Belge troll, the low
Church smile
Spreading itself, like butter.
This is what I am in for—
Flea body!
Eyes like mice

Flicking over my property,
Levering letter flaps,
Scrutinizing the fly
Of the man's pants
Dead on the chair back,
Opening the fat smiles, the eyes
Of two babies
Just to make sure—
Toad-stone! Sister-bitch! Sweet neighbor!

Sheep in Fog

The hills step off into whiteness.
People or stars
Regard me sadly, I disappoint them.

The train leaves a line of breath.
O slow
Horse the color of rust,

Hooves, dolorous bells——
All morning the Morning has been blackening,

A flower left out.
My bones hold a stillness, the far
Fields melt my heart.

They threaten
To let me through to a heaven
Starless and fatherless, a dark water.

The Munich Mannequins

Perfection is terrible, it cannot have children.
Cold as snow breath, it tamps the womb

Where the yew trees blow like hydras,
The tree of life and the tree of life

1963

Unloosing their moons, month after month, to no purpose.
The blood flood is the flood of love,

The absolute sacrifice.
It means: no more idols but me,

Me and you.
So, in their sulfur loveliness, in their smiles

These mannequins lean tonight
In Munich, morgue between Paris and Rome,

Naked and bald in their furs,
Orange lollies on silver sticks,

Intolerable, without mind.
The snow drops its pieces of darkness,

Nobody's about. In the hotels
Hands will be opening doors and setting

Down shoes for a polish of carbon
Into which broad toes will go tomorrow.

O the domesticity of these windows,
The baby lace, the green-leaved confectionery,

The thick Germans slumbering in their bottomless Stolz.
And the black phones on hooks

Glittering
Glittering and digesting

Voicelessness. The snow has no voice.

28 January 1963

Totem

The engine is killing the track, the track is silver,
It stretches into the distance. It will be eaten nevertheless.

Its running is useless.
At nightfall there is the beauty of drowned fields,

Dawn gilds the farmers like pigs,
Swaying slightly in their thick suits,

White towers of Smithfield ahead,
Fat haunches and blood on their minds.

There is no mercy in the glitter of cleavers,
The butcher's guillotine that whispers: 'How's this, how's this?'

In the bowl the hare is aborted,
Its baby head out of the way, embalmed in spice,

Flayed of fur and humanity.
Let us eat it like Plato's afterbirth,

Let us eat it like Christ.
These are the people that were important——

Their round eyes, their teeth, their grimaces
On a stick that rattles and clicks, a counterfeit snake.

Shall the hood of the cobra appall me——
The loneliness of its eye, the eye of the mountains

Through which the sky eternally threads itself?
The world is blood-hot and personal

Dawn says, with its blood-flush.
There is no terminus, only suitcases

Out of which the same self unfolds like a suit
Bald and shiny, with pockets of wishes,

1963

Notions and tickets, short circuits and folding mirrors.
I am mad, calls the spider, waving its many arms.

And in truth it is terrible,
Multiplied in the eyes of the flies.

They buzz like blue children
In nets of the infinite,

Roped in at the end by the one
Death with its many sticks.

28 January 1963

216

Child

Your clear eye is the one absolutely beautiful thing.
I want to fill it with color and ducks,
The zoo of the new

Whose names you meditate —
April snowdrop, Indian pipe,
Little

Stalk without wrinkle,
Pool in which images
Should be grand and classical

Not this troublous
Wringing of hands, this dark
Ceiling without a star.

28 January 1963

1963

Paralytic

It happens. Will it go on?——
 My mind a rock,
 No fingers to grip, no tongue,
 My god the iron lung

That loves me, pumps
 My two
 Dust bags in and out,
 Will not

Let me relapse
 While the day outside glides by like ticker tape.
 The night brings violets,
 Tapestries of eyes,

Lights,
 The soft anonymous
 Talkers: 'You all right?'
 The starched, inaccessible breast.

Dead egg, I lie
 Whole
 On a whole world I cannot touch,
 At the white, tight

Drum of my sleeping couch
 Photographs visit me——
 My wife, dead and flat, in 1920 furs,
 Mouth full of pearls,

Two girls
 As flat as she, who whisper 'We're your daughters.'
 The still waters
 Wrap my lips,

Eyes, nose and ears,
 A clear
 Cellophane I cannot crack.
 On my bare back

1963

I smile, a buddha, all
Wants, desire
Falling from me like rings
Hugging their lights.

The claw
Of the magnolia,
Drunk on its own scents,
Asks nothing of life.

29 January 1963

218

Gigolo

Pocket watch, I tick well.
The streets are lizardy crevices
Sheer-sided, with holes where to hide.
It is best to meet in a cul-de-sac,

A palace of velvet
With windows of mirrors.
There one is safe,
There are no family photographs,

No rings through the nose, no cries.
Bright fish hooks, the smiles of women
Gulp at my bulk
And I, in my snazzy blacks,

Mill a litter of breasts like jellyfish.
To nourish
The cellos of moans I eat eggs—
Eggs and fish, the essentials,

The aphrodisiac squid.
My mouth sags,
The mouth of Christ
When my engine reaches the end of it.

1963

The tattle of my
Gold joints, my way of turning
Bitches to ripples of silver
Rolls out a carpet, a hush.

And there is no end, no end of it.
I shall never grow old. New oysters
Shriek in the sea and I
Glitter like Fontainebleau

Gratified,
All the fall of water an eye
Over whose pool I tenderly
Lean and see me.

29 January 1963

219

Mystic

The air is a mill of hooks—
Questions without answer,
Glittering and drunk as flies
Whose kiss stings unbearably
In the fetid wombs of black air under pines in summer.

I remember
The dead smell of sun on wood cabins,
The stiffness of sails, the long salt winding sheets.
Once one has seen God, what is the remedy?
Once one has been seized up

Without a part left over,
Not a toe, not a finger, and used,
Used utterly, in the sun's conflagrations, the stains
That lengthen from ancient cathedrals
What is the remedy?

The pill of the Communion tablet,
The walking beside still water? Memory?

1963

Or picking up the bright pieces
Of Christ in the faces of rodents,
The tame flower-nibblers, the ones

Whose hopes are so low they are comfortable—
The humpback in his small, washed cottage
Under the spokes of the clematis.
Is there no great love, only tenderness?
Does the sea

Remember the walker upon it?
Meaning leaks from the molecules.
The chimneys of the city breathe, the window sweats,
The children leap in their cots.
The sun blooms, it is a geranium.

The heart has not stopped.

1 February 1963

Kindness

Kindness glides about my house.
Dame Kindness, she is so nice!
The blue and red jewels of her rings smoke
In the windows, the mirrors
Are filling with smiles.

What is so real as the cry of a child?
A rabbit's cry may be wilder
But it has no soul.
Sugar can cure everything, so Kindness says.
Sugar is a necessary fluid,

Its crystals a little poultice.
O kindness, kindness
Sweetly picking up pieces!
My Japanese silks, desperate butterflies,
May be pinned any minute, anesthetized.

1963

And here you come, with a cup of tea
Wreathed in steam.
The blood jet is poetry,
There is no stopping it.
You hand me two children, two roses.

Words

Axes
After whose stroke the wood rings,
And the echoes!
Echoes traveling
Off from the center like horses.

The sap
Wells like tears, like the Water striving
To re-establish its mirror
Over the rock

That drops and turns,
A white skull,
Eaten by weedy greens.
Years later I
Encounter them on the road——

Words dry and riderless,
The indefatigable hoof-taps.
While
From the bottom of the pool, fixed stars
Govern a life.

Contusion

222

Color floods to the spot, dull purple.
The rest of the body is all washed out,
The color of pearl.

In a pit of rock
The sea sucks obsessively,
One hollow the whole sea's pivot.

The size of a fly,
The doom mark
Crawls down the wall.

The heart shuts,
The sea slides back,
The mirrors are sheeted.

Balloons

Since Christmas they have lived with us,
Guileless and clear,
Oval soul-animals,
Taking up half the space,
Moving and rubbing on the silk

Invisible air drifts,
Giving a shriek and pop
When attacked, then scooting to rest, barely trembling.
Yellow cathead, blue fish——
Such queer moons we live with

Instead of dead furniture!
Straw mats, white walls
And these traveling
Globes of thin air, red, green,
Delighting

1963

The heart like wishes or free
Peacocks blessing
Old ground with a feather
Beaten in starry metals.
Your small

Brother is making
His balloon squeak like a cat.
Seeming to see
A funny pink world he might eat on the other side of it,
He bites,

Then sits
Back, fat jug
Contemplating a world clear as water.
A red
Shred in his little fist.

Edge

The woman is perfected.
Her dead

Body wears the smile of accomplishment,
The illusion of a Greek necessity

Flows in the scrolls of her toga,
Her bare

Feet seem to be saying:
We have come so far, it is over.

Each dead child coiled, a white serpent,
One at each little

Pitcher of milk, now empty.
She has folded

272

1963

Them back into her body as petals
Of a rose close when the garden

Stiffens and odors bleed
From the sweet, deep throats of the night flower.

The moon has nothing to be sad about,
Staring from her hood of bone.

She is used to this sort of thing.
Her blacks crackle and drag.

Notes on Poems 1956–1963

1956

In this year, Sylvia Plath (SP) began to write the poems of her first published collection.

At the beginning of the year she was in England, at Cambridge University, reading English on a Fulbright Fellowship and living in Whitstead, an annexe of Newnham College. In February she met her future husband, Ted Hughes (TH). In April, she was in Rome and Paris, touring alone.

On 16 June she married, and lived until September in Spain, mainly in the fishing village of Benidorm (at that time still undeveloped as a tourist resort).

Through September she was in West Yorkshire with her husband, returning to Cambridge in October to live again in Whitstead until December, when she and TH moved into a flat in the town. At Christmas they returned to West Yorkshire.

- 1 CONVERSATION AMONG THE RUINS. On the painting by Giorgio de Chirico, a postcard reproduction of which was pinned to the door of the poet's room.
- 2 WINTER LANDSCAPE, WITH ROOKS. On 20 February 1956, SP noted: 'Wrote one good poem: "Winter Landscape, with Rooks": it moves, and is athletic: a psychic landscape.'
- 5 TALE OF A TUB. On 20 February 1956, she had written: 'Began another big one, more abstract [than 'Winter Landscape, with Rooks'; cf. note on No. 2], written from the bathtub: take care it doesn't get too general.'
- 34 SPIDER. Anansi is the famous spider trickster hero of West African and Caribbean folklore. Towards the end of this year SP became interested in African folklore in general, with results that can be detected throughout the rest of her work.
- 43 NOVEMBER GRAVEYARD. At Heptonstall, West Yorkshire, where the poet is buried.

1957

In this year SP completed her M.A. degree at Cambridge University.

In June, she and her husband moved to the United States, where she had been invited to teach at her old college, Smith, in Northampton, Massachusetts. They spent the summer on Cape Cod.

In October she took up her teaching post at Smith College.

- 48 THE EVERLASTING MONDAY. Monday held an ominous symbolic significance for SP (cf. the poem 'An Appearance' [No. 159], and elsewhere).
- 49 HARDCASTLE CRAGS. Valley of the Hebden River, a deep wooded gorge lying below the high road in the West Yorkshire moorland.
- 54 THE LADY AND THE EARTHENWARE HEAD. The 'head' in question was lodged in a willow, on the banks of the Cam, and never reclaimed. (Cf. her later opinion of this poem, quoted in the Introduction, p. 13.)

- 57 TWO VIEWS OF WITHENS. Top Withens is a ruinous farmhouse under the moor's edge above Haworth, West Yorkshire—allegedly the model for Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights. SP approached it from the south, over some miles of moorland, on her first visit.
- 58 THE GREAT CARBUNCLE. On an odd phenomenon sometimes observed on high moorland for half an hour or so at evening, when the hands and faces of people seem to become luminous.
- 60 THE DISQUIETING MUSES. Reading this poem on a BBC radio programme, SP commented: 'It borrows its title from the painting by Giorgio de Chirico—The Disquieting Muses. All through the poem I have in mind the enigmatic figures in this painting—three terrible faceless dressmaker's dummies in classical gowns, seated and standing in a weird, clear light that casts the long strong shadows characteristic of de Chirico's early work. The dummies suggest a twentieth-century version of other sinister trios of women—the Three Fates, the witches in Macbeth, de Quincey's sisters of madness.'
- 62 OUIJA. SP occasionally amused herself, with one or two others, by holding her finger on an upturned glass, in a ring of letters laid out on a smooth table, and questioning the 'spirits'.

The following 'Dialogue Over a Ouija Board', which she never showed, though it must have been written some time in 1957–8, used the actual 'spirit' text of one of the ouija sessions. The spirit named here was the one regularly applied to. His news could be accurate. (The first time he was guided through Littlewood's football coupon, he predicted all thirteen of the draws made on the following Saturday—but anticipated them, throughout, by just one match. The first dividend at that time, in 1956, was £75,000. The spirit's later attempts were progressively less accurate and very soon no better than anyone else's.) Usually his communications were gloomy and macabre, though not without wit.

DIALOGUE OVER A OUIJA BOARD

A VERSE DIALOGUE

Characters: SIBYL

LEROY

SIBYL:

Go get the glass, then. But I know tonight will be
In every respect like every other night:
While we're sitting, face to face across the coffee-
Table, trying our luck, index fingers set
On the round base of the inverted wine-glass here,
They'll go by, trundling like marble statues way out
In the wings somewhere, or like heirloom furniture

Moving, being moved. And we'll imagine
A great frieze, Egyptian, perhaps, or Greek,
And their eyes looking out of it: keen,
With the cold burn dry ice has. Yet the clock
Has never failed to see our fabling sheared
Down to a circle of letters: twenty-six
In all. Plus Yes. Plus No. And this bare board.

LEROY:

That's how you always talk before we start.
But I've brought brandy and built the fire up
So the artful glass won't change its chill for heart's
Blood and bank wrist, elbow, shoulder, lip
With winter as you claim it does. The coal Cracks red.

SYBIL: Nothing happens.

LEROY: Wait. Its trip
Begins. A jerk. And now the first slow ramble

Around the ring. I think it must be making sure
The letters live in the same place. Or else
Each time must learn the letters new. Are
You to ask who's home, or I?

SYBIL: I will.

Is anybody there? It goes. It goes
Direct to Yes. I bet it's Pan. Who'll
Come on call like that but Pan? He's

Signing in. Just P this time. And off,
And back to P, as if he knew us well
Enough for nicknames.

LEROY: How are you, Pan?

SIBYL: F-
I-N-E, he says. You feel him pull
Under your finger? I mean, you don't push Even a little?

LEROY: You know I don't, and still . . .

SIBYL: And still I'm skeptic. I know. I'm being foolish

I suppose. If I didn't trust you at this
I wouldn't trust myself. The fault's my faith
In Pan: it's been ebbing ever since the mess
He made of the football pools—teasing us with Near wins, week by week, waiting until
We thought we'd trained him, before going haywire. Truth
Isn't in him.

LEROY: Maybe. But maybe the pools

Bored him. He's more philosopher, it seems,
Than financier.

SIBYL: What good is he, if not
For fortune-telling? And where is it fortune comes From, if not the pools?

LEROY: Oh, from a lot
Of places: the oil well my uncle owns, for one;
Or your white-haired benefactress, who may see fit
To alter her will our way. Shall we go on Asking about money?

SIBYL: I'm sick of that.

LEROY:

Well what, then?

SIBYL: That's the trouble. Let's say he Really can see into the future. What,
Pools aside, wills aside, do we Really want to know about?

LEROY: Everything.

Our work. Love. The after-life . . .

SIBYL: Do you

Honestly want to find if you'll have a fling

At fame or not? As for love, I figure when we're
Out of it will be time and plenty for us
To court remorse. Or someone else. I'd rather Sift him about the after-life than this:
It's not so imminent. At least I feel Less dread of the world beyond than ours.

LEROY: That's because

You don't quite believe in it. You're deaf to real

Dangers, but don't mind hearing about the ones
In hell, since hell's a fairytale.

SIBYL: I would Believe, if they could manage to convince Me.

LEROY: Ask, anyhow.

SIBYL: I admit it: I'm afraid,
Always, the glass will blurt what I don't want
To know at all. And yet I go ahead.

Pan, are you still there?

LEROY: See, his sprint

To Yes says he is ready.

SIBYL: Pan, is there
A life after this life? He shoots so swift
To Yes, his sureness must be his, not ours.
Do you know how my father is?

LEROY: He's left

For Yes, dragging our fingers after.

SIBYL: How

Is he, then? He spells. I-N. He'll lift
The glass yet as he glides. P-L-U-

M-A-G-E. In plumage. I'd never have thought
To say that. That must be his: his word.

LEROY: You see,

You're melting now, because you think he's hit
An original note. If he'd said, however, merely:
Dead, you'd swear him a victim of our own vain
Ventriloquy. But wings neither you nor I Would traffic in.

SIBYL: Let him finish what he began.

Plumage of what, Pan? P . . . He starts again,
Tugging us through plumage. I almost feel Feathers winnowing the room. A thin
Column of dazzle draws my eyes to the wall
As if the air were laboring to produce
An angel. Plumage. O-F-R. He'll
Jog off in jabberwocky now and lose us,

Lapsing into Russian or Serbo-Croat.
A-W-W. He's gone off: what English
Word wears two W's? O-R. Or what?
M-S. Manuscript? He stops. I wish
Those letters separated into sense
Instead of brewing us such a balderdash
Of half-hints.

LEROY: You persist in spelling half-hints

Out of a wholeness. Worms, not wings is what Pan said. A plumage of raw worms.

SIBYL: How
Tedious. That's what we'd say. About rot
Feeding at the root of things. He stole that, too,
As he stole our perplexities about the pools
And tricked us to trust his vision, while night after night he Palmed off our own hunches as oracles.

I was perfectly right: Pan's a mere puppet
Of our two intuitions.

LEROY: And if he is?
That's something to study even if it's not
The Faith-Maker, fisted in his cloud, or the chorus
Of mandatory voices you half expect
To fracture these four walls. Your faith flies
Like an olive-beaked dove above the engulfing fact:

Tables and chairs can elbow us with ease
Out of our very countenance by simply
Bulking more real than we think we are: we face
Obliteration hourly unless our eye
Can whipcrack the tables into tigers and foist
Castles upon the smug-shaped chairs.

SIBYL: All this I
Know: which is why I, when the wondrous fist

Fails to appear, turn, and, turning, shrink
The size of my demand to magic: no more
Than against gravity's grip, tables rising; the drink
Drunk, and tea-leaves candid; the clairvoyant seizure
Predicting three boys an hour hence will play
Some paltry scene on the soup-kitchen stair:
These gifts are given.

LEROY: And when withheld, you'll say

Gods grow too proud to practice doorman duties
 At the whim of a wine-glass and let us into worlds
 Saved for the acorn-stomached saint or eyes
 Burning like knotholes from a nun's shroud-circled Smirk.

SIBYL: Saints' door apart, backdoor's a door,
 And I'd sooner be staked for a witch, kindled, and curled
 To a cinder, than meet a poor upstart of our nether

Selves posing as prophet and slyly poaching
 Pebbles we preserve in our own cupboards
 To build his canting towers. While you, you long
 To view how versatile we are: you've pampered
 Pan as if he were our first-breached brat
 Fusing two talents, a sort of psychic bastard
 Sprung to being on our wedding night

Nine months too soon for comfort, but a bright
 Boy, prone to compose queer poetry
 In apt iambics, if prodded to recite
 By scoldings, or by subtle praise. Only I,
 Even if you seem pacified, prefer
 To picture some other party speaking through
 Our separate veins and this glass mouth.

LEROY: Oh you're Going to get Gabriel's thumb into the pie

 If you must butcher Mother Goose to do it.
 Gabriel or Beelzebub: I see,
 Now, you really don't much care which, or what
 Minor imps pipe up, so long as each
 May testify to drive your doubting out.
 I never knew such credulity to pitch

Such skeptic cracks. With sense sealed watertight
 So, you'll scoff, and yet you'd drop to kneel
 If that elderberry bush beside the gate
 Belched into blaze and, though red-hot, kept whole
 And hale its green latticework of leaves. You need
 Nothing short of a miracle to nail
 Faith fast: a miracle and the smell of blood

To prove it genuine.

SIBYL: You'd kneel, too,
 If a bush borrowed tongues and spoke to you. You'd kneel
 Until it finished, and then look furtively
 For loudspeaker wires running like a logical Argument to the house next door. Or if Your Sherlock Holmesing steered to a blank wall
 You'd presume your inner voice god-plumed enough

To people the boughs with talking birds.

LEROY: I'd plant
 Gods and rear them like beanstalks from out these ribs

Before one heaved himself through heaven's tent
To contradict me.

SIBYL: Your shouldering words outstrip
The stint of Sisyphus.

LEROY: Ask Pan, then, where
He lives. His answer will put an end to gibes
And get us clear of this.

SIBYL: Oh, he'll go clever

Like all the others and swear that he's a puma
In Tibet, or a llama in Zanzibar
As if tempting our gross gullibility
To give another inch.

LEROY: If you prefer,
I'll ask.

SIBYL: Do. We've kept him waiting long Enough. But be polite. You're too severe
On him sometimes.

LEROY: He's lazy. Like any young

Boy, he needs a beating now and then
To quicken his sluggard's blood.

SIBYL: But he needn't come
To collect his beatings. And if he's a go-between
Our world and theirs we'd best play safe and groom
Our questions in humble habit to gain grace
And chance of a true answer.

LEROY: You waste no time
Eating your words: you'll revoke his godhood soon as

His drift endorses your inklings of a doom
Descended on your favorites, and yet
You'll issue him his pass to angeldom
Before he spells again, should his next writ
Warrant him whelped in the wake of two shooting
Stars, not our cheeseparing psyches.

SIBYL: It
Pays to be politic. Oh, I'm not one to hang

Bled white with briars by a busy conscience
If nothing comes of it. On the other hand,
What greenhorn vents his venom against giants
Outside the cave whose contours most remind
One of a giant's ear?

LEROY: I guess this glass
Might do as a god's mouthpiece if a whirlwind
Did. It's small, but the volume of the voice

Is small these days.

SIBYL: Don't be so smart.

LEROY: I'll ask,
And we'll see who's smartest. Pan, tell us now:
Where do you live?

SIBYL: He moves.
 LEROY: He's moving brisk
 Like a good boy.
 SIBYL: Be careful. I'm not sure that he
 Can spell sarcasm through our fingertips.
 LEROY:
 He goes . . .
 SIBYL: I-N-G-O-D-P-I-
 E.
 LEROY:
 Godpie! That's rich. The jackanapes
 Is joking at the pie-in-the-sky mirage
 Which props you through this desert like a dream
 Of water.
 SIBYL: Wait.
 LEROY: Godpie I don't begrudge
 You: a priest-baked pasty stuffed to the brim
 With blackbirds — twenty-four, and every one
 A devil.
 SIBYL: Wait: he shifts. He hasn't come
 To the end of it. He starts again: I-N-G-O-D-H-E-A-D. There, see!
 I knew he'd got it mixed before: visions
 Aren't vouchsafed to antique virgins only:
 It takes patience. If veronicas and fountains
 Can once in a blue moon catch the shadows of
 Their passing on a perishable screen
 Of cambric or waterdrops, who knows what belief
 Might work on this glass medium.
 LEROY: Belief, yes,
 If either of us had it: but not the half-
 Hearted gambling-game you warily practice
 Under the guise of nonchalance. Pan's laugh
 Is on the two of us for lending heat
 To propel his playfulness, but on you, above
 All, if you'll hide hopes of heaven in a hat
 Of formal scorn, until the first sign of an Angel's eye in the audience, then whisk them out
 Like live white rabbits, ready to begin
 Running neck and neck with the most devout
 Rabbits in the lot.
 SIBYL: You're in a huff
 Because Pan bluntly spelt out god's head, not
 Your head after all. It seems his laugh
 Is on you now, for planning to dredge up
 Pools, prophecies and such from the unfathomed
 Bottom of your brain. By some mishap,
 Instead of fat fish on the line, you've plumbed

Deeper than your own ocean floor, and got
A barnacle-pated, moss-wigged, lobster-limbed
Chimera on the hook, who claims he's late

Of Davy's locker, and the lord's to home,
And not extinct, as everyone supposed.

LEROY:

If you can hang religion on the rim
Of one wine-glass, you'll pin it like a prize
Tail on each toy donkey that will bray
God-pie.

SIBYL: Why, then, did you deign to introduce
Pan as our evening guest if he's so free

With fibs?

LEROY: The fibs are ours, not his. Pan's fine
For sounding syllables we haven't yet
Surfaced in ourselves: he'll spell a line
Of poetry from these letters, but the beat
Will be our beat, just as the gift is ours,
And tongue, and thought, as well as the blood-heat
He leeches by our lenience.

SIBYL: He still bores

You to taunts though, when he reflects a face
Other than your own.

LEROY: As he bores you
When he recites one of my similes
For rot.

SIBYL: Don't think you had me fooled. I knew
Where those worms came from.

LEROY: I swear I didn't expect
Them any more than you did.

SIBYL: Oh, let it go.

You say he's told two lies . . .

LEROY: Call them two plucked

Fruits of your willful tree: god-head, god-pie
Feed your own wishful thinking.

SIBYL: Try asking him
To name his home a third time. Give your will three Chances to master mine. They say the third time Counts.

LEROY: Such duels infect best friendships.

SIBYL: Pan
Tell us the truth this time: tell us the kingdom
You inhabit.

LEROY: Plainly as you can,

Tell us the truth.

SIBYL: Where do you live?

LEROY: He starts
As if bloodhounds bore him down.

SIBYL: I-N-C-O . . .
 Does he write C for G?
 LEROY: No. He darts
 To R now. E.
 SIBYL: In core . . .
 LEROY: O-F-N-E-
 R-V-E.
 SIBYL:
 In core of nerve! I hope You're satisfied. My will has evidently Curtseyed to yours.
 LEROY: Too bad you called Pan up
 A third time.
 SIBYL: Don't gloat. Your will misfired twice
 Before it made the bull's-eye.
 LEROY: Do we have to battle
 Like rival parents over a precocious
 Child to see which one of us can call
 Pan's prowess our own creation, and not the other's Work at all?
 SIBYL: How can we help but battle
 If our nerves are the sole nourishers
 Of Pan's pronouncements, and our nerves are strung
 To such cross-purposes?
 LEROY: At last you glimpse
 Some light.
 SIBYL: I glimpse no light at all as long
 As we two glower from our separate camps,
 This board our battlefield. Let's give Pan up
 As a bad job.
 LEROY: Wait.
 SIBYL: He stirs.
 LEROY: He romps
 Round to earn his pay: he'll have us keep Him yet, and give us good reason.
 SIBYL: No, he's on
 A binge of jeers. Look. He's running through
 His book of insults.
 LEROY: Nerve or noumenon,
 His manners are atrocious.
 SIBYL: A-P-E-S.
 LEROY:
 He calls us apes.
 SIBYL: I'll settle him!
 (Breaking glass)
 There! That shuts him up!
 LEROY: So. Better so,
 My wish one with your aim.

SIBYL: Once, in a dream,

I smashed a glass, and ever since that dream
I've dreamed of doing it again. And now
It's done.

LEROY: It's done, and there's no mending him.

SIBYL:

It was his tongue that wanted mending.

LEROY: You know,

Those glass bits in the grate strike me chill:

As if I'd half-believed in him, and he,

Being not you, nor I, nor us at all.

Must have been wholly someone else.

SIBYL: It's absurd,

But now that anger cools, I've a sense of sorrow

Adrift in the guise of some great-taloned bird

Over my mind, casting a shadow. Sorrow

Settles in the room now. Its wings blacken the table.

The chairs belong to its darkness. I smell decay

Like the underside of mushrooms. Do you feel

Wiser for tonight's wise words?

LEROY: I felt drawn

Deeper within the dark, and as I pitched further
Into myself and into my conviction

A rigor seized me: I saw cracks appear.

Dilating to craters in this livingroom,

And you, shackled ashen across the rift, a specter
Of one I loved.

SIBYL: I saw division bloom

On darkness, more vivid and unnatural
Than any orchid.

LEROY: You broke him then.

SIBYL: I broke

The image of you, transfixed by roots, wax-pale,
Under a stone.

LEROY: Those two dreamed deaths took
Us in: a third undid them.

SIBYL: And we grew one
As the glass flew to its fragments.

LEROY: Let us stake
 Death's two dreams down with the body that bled the vein.

As is the use with vampires, and resign our stand
At the unreal frontier.

SIBYL: Let our backs, now bold,
Oppose what we faced earlier. Feel my hand.

LEROY:

Why, your hand's cold as ice!

SIBYL: Then chafe the cold
Out of it. There. The room returns

To normal. Let's close the curtains.

LEROY: It looks wild

Beyond the window-frame tonight.

SIBYL: Wind warns

November's done with. The blown leaves make bat-shapes,
Web-winged and furious.

LEROY: The full moonlight

Strikes the tiles of the neighbors' gable-tops

Blue as lizard-scales.

SIBYL: Frost sheens the street.

LEROY:

I am resolved. No reason could untwist

That skein of voices.

SIBYL: We promised to forget

The labyrinth and ignore what manner of beast

Might range in it.

LEROY: I only shut the door

And bolt it up by taking oath no guess

Could grope its way to gospel through that welter

Of contending words.

SIBYL: Some pytho^{ness}

In her prophetic fit heard what we heard,

Stuck to her tripod, over the fuming crevice,

Breathing the god's word, or the devil's word,

Or her own word, ambushed in an equivocal

Thicket of words.

LEROY: The curtain's drawn on that.

SIBYL:

The table looks as if it would stay a table

All night long, even should our eyes shut

In sleep,

LEROY: The chairs won't vanish or become

Castles when we glance aside.

SIBYL: That's that.

As sure as those coals burn, the livingroom

Is itself again, and ours.

LEROY: The dream

Of dreamers is dispelled. Once more we cut

A solid shape on air.

SIBYL: May the decorum

Of our days sustain us.

LEROY: May each thought

And act bear witness, in the crux of time,

To our meaning well.

BOTH: When lights go out

May two real people breathe in a real room.

ON THE DECLINE OF ORACLES. SP frequently mentioned flashes of prescience — always about something unimportant.

l. 5 Old Böcklin: Arnold Böcklin, Swiss late-Romantic painter.

1958

In the early months of this year SP continued to teach at Smith College, while her husband taught at the University of Massachusetts. Some time in the spring they made the decision to leave teaching and attempt to live on their earnings as writers.

During the summer they were again on Cape Cod, and returned to a flat in Boston, at 9 Willow Street, where they remained until the following June.

Throughout this time SP found writing difficult. She resorted to set themes, and deliberate exercises in style, in her efforts to find release.

66-8, 73 Art News had asked SP for poems based on paintings. VIRGIN IN A TREE (No. 66) is on a drawing by Paul Klee, as is PERSEUS (No. 67); BATTLE-SCENE . . . (No. 68) and THE GHOST'S LEAVETAKING (No. 73) are on paintings by Klee.

69 YADWIGHA, ON A RED COUCH, AMONG LILIES. On a painting, The Dream, by the Douanier Rousseau. SP wrote of it, on 27 March 1958, 'my first and only good sestina'.

74 SCULPTOR. Bronze dead men lay in numbers around the house and studio of the sculptor Leonard Baskin.

75 FULL FATHOM FIVE. Her first poem about her father in his mythic role as 'father-sea god-muse' (cf. Introduction, p. 13). She composed the poem while reading one of Cousteau's books about the submarine world, alternating reading and writing without moving her position.

76 LORELEI. On 3 July, SP and TH had a session with the ouija oracle (cf. note on No. 62), 'for the first time in America'. She noted at the time: 'Among other penetrating observations, Pan said I should write on the poem-subject "Lorelei" because they are "my own kin". So today [4 July], for fun, I did so, remembering the plaintive German song Mother used to play and sing to us beginning "Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedeuten . . .". The subject appealed to me doubly (or triply): the German legend of the Rhine Sirens, the sea-childhood symbol, and the death-wish involved in the song's beauty. The poem devoured my day, but I feel it is a book poem and am pleased with it.'

l. 32 Drunkenness of the great depths: a phrase from the book of Cousteau's she was reading as she wrote 'Full Fathom Five' (No. 75) some time earlier. It describes the euphoric visionary state of acute oxygen shortage in which divers blissfully forget all precautions and danger.

77 MUSSEL HUNTER AT ROCK HARBOR. Rock Harbor on Cape Cod. On 4 July 1958 SP noted: 'I suppose now my star piece is "Mussel Hunter at Rock Harbor".'

82 CHILD'S PARK STONES. Child's Park, the setting of several poems from this period, lay next door to the house where SP lived in Elm Street, Northampton, Massachusetts. She wrote on 11 June 1958: 'I have just written a good syllabic poem on the Child's Park Stones as juxtaposed to the ephemeral orange and fuchsia azaleas and feel the park is my favorite place in America.'

83 OWL. On 26 June 1958, she noted: 'Wrote a brief poem this morning—"Owl over Main Street"—in "syllabic" verse. Could be better. The beginning is a bit lyrical for the subject and the last verse might be expanded.' This poem eventually became 'Owl', and in Boston on 23 April 1959, looking back over her poems, she wrote: 'I have forty

- unattackable poems. I think. And a joy about them of sorts. Although I would love more potent ones. All the Smith ones are miserable death-wishes. The ones here, however gray ("Companionable Ills" [No. 87], "Owl"), have a verve and life-joy.'
- 84 WHITENESS I REMEMBER. On 9 July 1958, she noted: 'I wrote what I consider a "book poem" about my runaway ride in Cambridge on the horse Sam: a "hard" subject for me, horses alien to me, yet the daredevil change in Sam and my hanging on God knows how is a kind of revelation: it worked well.'
- 87 GREEN ROCK, WINTHROP BAY. SP spent her first years on the Winthrop peninsula, where her grandparents lived.

1959

SP and her husband lived in Boston until June 1959. During this period she worked as a secretary in the records office at the Massachusetts General Hospital. She also began to see her old psychiatrist Ruth Beutscher (cf. note on No. 101), and attended—along with Anne Sexton and George Starbuck—a writing course given by Robert Lowell.

Setting off in July, she and TH drove around the United States, from Canada to San Francisco to New Orleans and back, camping on the way—a journey of about nine weeks. In September they accepted an invitation to Yaddo, the artists' colony near Saratoga Springs, in upstate New York.

In this year TH had received a Guggenheim Foundation award, and adding this cash to what they had saved from their teaching and other work, they sailed for Europe in December.

- 92 THE BULL OF BENDYLAW. Cf. English and Scottish Popular Ballads, edited by F. J. Child (1883), where the following occurs as a 'fragment':

The great bull of Bendy-law
Has broken his band and run awa
And the King and a his court
Canna turn that bull about

- 94 POINT SHIRLEY. The end of the Winthrop peninsula; cf. note on No. 86. On 20 January 1959 SP wrote: 'Finished a poem this weekend, "Point Shirley", revisited, on my grandmother. Oddly powerful and moving to me in spite of rigid formal structure. Evocative. Not so one-dimensional.'
- 95 GOATSUCKER. Nightjar, fern-owl, etc.—nocturnal bird of many names. Esther Baskin was collecting material for a book about night creatures, and this poem was SP's contribution. On 20 January she noted: 'Spent a really pleasant afternoon, rainy, in the library looking up goatsuckers for a poem for Esther's night creature book. Much more than on frogs and a much more congenial subject. I have eight lines of a sonnet on the bird, very alliterative and colored.' She collected several pages of detailed notes.
- 96 WATERCOLOR OF GRANTCHESTER MEADOWS. On 19 February, she noted: 'Wrote a Grantchester poem of pure description . . . a fury of frustration. Some inhibition keeping me from writing what I really feel.' Grantchester meadows lie along the river Cam, towards Grantchester, near Cambridge.
- 99 TWO VIEWS OF A CADAVER ROOM. The Brueghel painting is The Triumph of Death.
- 101 THE RAVAGED FACE. On 9 March, she wrote: 'After a lugubrious session with RB [Ruth Beutscher, her psychiatrist] much freed. Good weather, good bits of news. If I don't stop crying she'll have me tied up. Got idea on trolley for a poem because of my ravaged face: called "The Ravaged Face". A line came, too. Wrote it down and then the [other] five lines of a sestet. Wrote the first eight lines after coming back from a fine day in Winthrop yesterday. I rather like it—it has all the forthrightness of “Suicide off Egg Rock”. From her earlier suicide attempt SP carried a broad patch of scar tissue across her cheek.

- 103 ELECTRA ON AZALEA PATH. Azalea Path was the name of the cemetery path beside which SP's father's grave lies. On 9 March she wrote: ‘A clear blue day in Winthrop. Went to my father's grave, a very depressing sight. Three graveyards separated by streets, all made within the last fifty years or so, ugly crude black stones, headstones together, as if the dead were sleeping head to head in a poorhouse. In the third yard, on a flat grassy area looking across a sallow barren stretch to rows of wooden tenements I found the flat stone: Otto E. Plath: 1885-1940. Right beside the path, where it would be walked over. Felt cheated. My temptation to dig him up. To prove he existed and really was dead. How far gone would he be? No trees, no peace, his headstone jammed up against the body on the other side. Left shortly. It is good to have the place in mind.’

On 20 March she wrote: ‘Finished . . . “Electra on Azalea Path”. They are never perfect but I think have goodnesses.’ And on 23 April: ‘Must do justice to my father's grave. Have rejected the Electra poem from my book. Too forced and rhetorical.’

- 104 THE BEEKEEPER'S DAUGHTER. The detail in the last verse is mentioned in her father's book Bumblebees and Their Ways, and had been demonstrated to her by him.

- 105 THE HERMIT AT OUTERMOST HOUSE. The Outermost House: a popular classic about Cape Cod.

- 113 THE MANOR GARDEN. The setting is the gardens of the manor at Yaddo. SP called this a poem ‘for Nicholas’, but her first child, born five months later, was a girl.

- 119 POEM FOR A BIRTHDAY. In Boston, earlier in the year, she had tried for a way out through Robert Lowell's earlier manner of writing (as in ‘Point Shirley’). She had always responded strongly to Theodore Roethke's poems, but it was only at Yaddo, in October, that she realized how he could help her. This sequence began as a deliberate Roethke pastiche, a series of exercises which would be light and throwaway to begin with, but might lead to something else. On 22 October she wrote: ‘Ambitious seeds of a long poem made up of separate sections. Poem on her Birthday. [Her own birthday fell on 27 October.] To be a dwelling on madhouse, nature: meanings of tools, greenhouses, florists' shops, tunnels vivid and disjointed. An adventure. Never over. Developing. Rebirth. Despair. Old women. Block it out.’ And then on 4 November: ‘Miraculously I wrote seven poems in my “Poem for a Birthday” sequence. . . .’

- 120 THE BURNT-OUT SPA. The old health spa at Saratoga Springs remained only as a burned-out ruin.

- 121 MUSHROOMS. On 14 November: ‘Wrote an exercise on Mushrooms yesterday which Ted likes. And I do too. My absolute lack of judgment when I've written something: whether it's trash or genius.’

1960

Back in England before Christmas 1959, the poet and her husband found a flat at 3 Chalcot Square, near Primrose Hill, in London.

In February she signed a contract with Heinemann for the publication of her first collection of poems, The Colossus. On 1 April, her daughter Frieda was born at home. In October The Colossus was published in London.

- 130 MAGI. ‘Abstractions, by definition, are withdrawn from life and formulated in despite of life's minute and vital complexities. In this poem, "Magi", I imagine the great absolutes of the philosophers gathered around the crib of a newborn baby girl who is nothing but life.' So SP introduced this poem in a BBC radio broadcast reading.

- 133 WAKING IN WINTER. This poem has been extracted from a tangle of heavily corrected manuscript lines, and must be regarded as unfinished.

Another poem from this same period which she seems to have finished but which she never included in her own file is the following:

QUEEN MARY'S ROSE GARDEN

In this day before the day nobody is about.
A sea of dreams washes the edge of my green island
In the center of the garden named after Queen Mary.
The great roses, many of them scentless,
Rule their beds like beheaded and resurrected and all silent royalty,
The only fare on my bare breakfast plate.

Such a waste of brightness I can't understand.
It is six in the morning and finer than any Sunday—
Yet there is no walker and looker but myself.
The sky of the city is white; the light from the country.
Some ducks step down off their green-reeded shelf
And into the silver element of the pond.

I see them start to cruise and dip for food
Under the bell-jar of a wonderland.
Hedged in and evidently inviolate
Though hundreds of Londoners know it like the palm of their hand.
The roses are named after queens and people of note
Or after gay days, or colors the grower found good.

And I have no intention of disparaging them
For being too well-bred and smellless and liking the city.
I enjoy petticoats and velvets and gossip of court,
And a titled lady may frequently be a beauty.
A Devon meadow might offer a simpler sort
Of personage—single-skirted, perfumed, a gem—
But I am content with this more pompous lot.

1961

In the spring and early summer of this year SP wrote her autobiographical novel The Bell Jar.

During the summer, after a visit to the Dordogne, she and TH bought a house in a small town in Devon, and moved there in September.

- 134 PARLIAMENT HILL FIELDS. Part of Hampstead Heath, in north London. Introducing this poem in a BBC broadcast, SP said: 'This poem is a monologue. I imagine the landscape of Parliament Hill Fields in London seen by a person overwhelmed by an emotion so powerful as to color and distort the scenery. The speaker here is caught between the old and the new year, between the grief caused by the loss of a child (miscarriage) and the joy aroused by the knowledge of an older child safe at home. Gradually the first images of blankness and silence give way to images of convalescence and healing as the woman turns, a bit stiffly and with difficulty, from her sense of bereavement to the vital and demanding part of her world which still survives.'

136 ZOO KEEPER'S WIFE. Chalcot Square is close to Regent's Park Zoo, which she visited regularly.

137 FACE LIFT. The experience of an acquaintance, requisitioned for the poet's myth of self-renewal.

141 IN PLASTER. In March of this year SP spent a week in hospital undergoing an appendectomy. The patient in complete plaster lay on a neighbouring bed. This and the next poem, 'Tulips' (No. 142), were written during this week.

147 THE RIVAL. This poem originally had two further sections, as follows:

(2)

Compared to you, I am corruptible as a loaf of bread.

While I sleep, the black spores nod

Their magnified heads and plan to kill me as soon as possible.

The wrinkles creep up like waves,

One camouflaging itself behind another.

I should have a steel complexion like yours

In which the minutes could admire their reflections and forget about me.

(3)

I try to think of a place to hide you

As a desk drawer hides a poison pen letter,

But there is no drawer to hold you.

Blue sky or black

You preoccupy my horizon.

What good is all that space if it can't draw you off?

You are the one eye out there.

The sea, also, is ineffectual.

It keeps washing you up like an old bone.

And I, on the sky-mirroring, bland sands

Find you over and over, lipped like a skate and smiling,

With the sound of the sea in your mouth.

Angel of coldness,

Surely it is not I you want so badly.

I thought Earth might use you.

She has a terrible way with minerals,

But even her tonnage doesn't impress a diamond.

Your facets are indestructible;

Their lights whiten my heart.

Toad-stone! I see I must wear you in the centre of my forehead

And let the dead sleep as they deserve.

149 BLACKBERRYING. In a cliff cove looking out on to the Atlantic.

150 FINISTERRE. The westernmost tip of Brittany: the same outlook as 'Blackberrying' (No. 149), but a different country.

153 THE MOON AND THE YEW TREE. The yew tree stands in a churchyard to the west of the house in Devon, and visible from SP's bedroom window. On this occasion, the full moon, just before dawn, was setting behind this yew tree and her husband assigned her to write a verse 'exercise' about it.

Speaking about this poem in a BBC radio broadcast, she said: 'I do not like to think of all the things, familiar, useful and worthy things, I have never put into a poem. I did, once, put a yew tree in. And that yew tree began, with astounding egotism, to manage and order the whole affair. It was not a yew tree by a church on a road past a house in a town where a certain woman lived . . . and so on, as it might have been in a novel. Oh no. It stood squarely in the middle of my poem, manipulating its dark shades, the voices in the churchyard, the clouds, the birds, the tender melancholy with which I contemplated it—everything! I couldn't subdue it. And, in the end, my poem was a poem about a yew tree. The yew tree was just too proud to be a passing black mark in a novel.'

1962

On 17 January, SP's second child, a son, Nicholas, was born. In May The Colossus was published in the U.S. by Knopf.

In this year she signed a contract with Heinemann for the publication in England of her novel The Bell Jar. Both Harpers and Knopf in the U.S. rejected the novel.

She and her husband separated in October. Thereafter she was dependent on home help. In December she moved with her two children to London, to a flat at 23 Fitzroy Road, N.W.3, close to Chalcot Square.

- 156 NEW YEAR ON DARTMOOR. A fragment extracted from a tangle of corrected manuscript, this poem must be regarded as unfinished.
- 157 THREE WOMEN. This piece was written for radio at the invitation of Douglas Cleverdon, who produced it with great effect on the BBC's Third Programme, on 19 August 1962. The text was published by Turret Books in 1968, in a limited edition of 180 copies.
- 158 LITTLE FUGUE. Although never until now showing more than a general interest in music, about this time SP became keenly interested in Beethoven's late quartets, the Grosse Fuge in particular.
- 161 AMONG THE NARCISSI. Percy Key was the next-door neighbour whose eventual death is commemorated in 'Berck-Plage' (No. 167). The orchard in Devon was thick with daffodils and narcissi.
- 163 ELM. The house in Devon was overshadowed by a giant wych-elm, flanked by two others in a single mass, growing on the shoulder of a moated prehistoric mound.

This poem grew (21 sheets of working drafts) from a slightly earlier fragment:

She is not easy, she is not peaceful;
 She pulses like a heart on my hill.
 The moon snags in her intricate nervous system.
 I am excited, seeing it there.
 It is like something she has caught for me.
 The night is a blue pool; she is very still.
 At the center she is still, very still with wisdom.
 The moon is let go, like a dead thing.
 Now she herself is darkening
 Into a dark world I cannot see at all.

These lines were a premature crystallization out of four densely crowded pages of manuscript. In her next attempt, some days later, she took them up and developed out of them the final poem 'Elm'.

- 167 BERCK-PLAGE. A beach on the coast of Normandy, which SP visited in June 1961. Overlooking the sea there was a large hospital for mutilated war veterans and accident victims—who took their exercise along the sands. The funeral in the poem is that of Percy Key (cf. note on No. 161), who died in June 1962, exactly a year after her visit to Berck-Plage.

st. 7, l. 7 flowery cart: The old-fashioned funeral hand-cart on which the coffin, piled with wreaths, was wheeled through the town, ahead of the mourning cars.

st. 7, l. 16 mouth, red and awkward: The soil and subsoil of the graveyard is red.

- 176 THE BEE MEETING. SP kept one hive of bees, and attended meetings of the local Beekeepers Association. This poem draws on her experience of the first meeting she attended.

- 178 STINGS. The first stirring of this sequence of poems appeared on 2 August, when SP attempted to write a poem, which she never finalized in any way, titled 'Stings'. The following can be extracted from a mass of corrected manuscript:

What honey summons these animalcules?
What fear? It has set them zinging
On envious strings, and you are the center.
They are assailing your brain like numerals,
They contort your hair

Beneath the flat handkerchief you wear instead of a hat.
They are making a cat's cradle, they are suicidal.
Their death-pegs stud your gloves, it is no use running.
The black veil molds to your lips:
They are fools.

After, they stagger and weave, under no banner.
After, they crawl
Dispatched, into trenches of grass.
Ossifying like junked statues—
Gelded and wingless. Not heroes. Not heroes.

- 179 THE SWARM. When bees swarm, they sometimes cluster in a ball high in a tree, while they make up their minds where to go. Any loud sudden noise, such as gunfire, can make them come down to a much lower level where the beekeeper can reach them, and collect them into a box or skip. He then shakes the whole lot out on to a broad surface that slopes up into a fresh empty hive. The bees obediently march up into the hive, as described towards the end of this poem.

The poet uses an incident she watched in a neighbouring beekeeper's garden.

- 182 THE APPLICANT. Introducing this poem in a reading prepared for BBC radio, SP commented: 'In this poem, . . . the speaker is an executive, a sort of exacting super-salesman. He wants to be sure the applicant for his marvelous product really needs it and will treat it right.'

- 183 DADDY. In a reading prepared for BBC radio, she said of this poem: 'Here is a poem spoken by a girl with an Electra complex. Her father died while she thought he was God. Her case is complicated by the fact that her father was also a Nazi and her mother very possibly part Jewish. In the daughter the two strains marry and paralyse each other—she has to act out the awful little allegory once over before she is free of it.'

- 188 FEVER 103°. In a BBC radio reading she prepared, SP introduced this poem as follows: '[It] is about two kinds of fire—the fires of hell, which merely agonize, and the fires of heaven, which purify. During the poem, the first sort of fire suffers itself into the second.'

She had made a somewhat earlier (but undated) attempt to break through to the substance of this poem. After several pages of what looks like feverish exploration of the theme, her earlier controls took over, and reduced the confusion to the following, which she left in manuscript, unfinalized:

Four o'clock, and the fever soaks from me like honey.

O ignorant heart!

All night I have heard

The meaningless cry of babies. Such a sea

Broods in the newsprint!

Fish-grease, fish-bones, refuse of atrocities.

Bleached and finished, I surface

Among the blanched, boiled instruments, the virginal curtains.

Here is a white sky. Here is the beauty

Of cool mouths and hands open and natural as roses.

My glass of water refracts the morning.

My baby is sleeping.

- 192 BY CANDLELIGHT. The candlestick was a small brass image of Hercules, in his lion's pelt, kneeling under the candle. Behind his heels, five brass balls completed the design. (Cf. the poem 'Nick and the Candlestick', No. 196.)

- 194 ARIEL. The name of a horse which she rode, at a riding school on Dartmoor, in Devonshire.

- 196 NICK AND THE CANDLESTICK. 'In this poem,' she said in a reading prepared for BBC radio, '... a mother nurses her baby son by candlelight and finds in him a beauty which, while it may not ward off the world's ill, does redeem her share of it.'

- 198 LADY LAZARUS. In a reading prepared for BBC radio, SP introduced this poem: 'The speaker is a woman who has the great and terrible gift of being reborn. The only trouble is, she has to die first. She is the Phoenix, the libertarian spirit, what you will. She is also just a good, plain, very resourceful woman.'

- 201 THE NIGHT DANCES. A revolving dance which her baby son performed at night in his crib.

- 203 THALIDOMIDE. By the time this poem was written, the connection between the tranquillizing drug thalidomide and the 1960–1 crop of deformed babies was well established.

- 205 DEATH & CO. Introducing this poem in a reading prepared for BBC radio, she said: 'This poem is about the double or schizophrenic nature of death—the marmoreal coldness of Blake's death mask, say, hand in glove with the fearful softness of worms, water and other katabolists. I imagine these two aspects of death as two men, two business friends, who have come to call.'

The actual occasion was a visit by two well-meaning men who invited TH to live abroad at a tempting salary, and whom she therefore resented.

- 208 MARY'S SONG.

l. 10 Over the cicatrix of Poland: In one of the final typescripts of this poem (a carbon), this line is corrected, in SP's hand, to:

Over scoured Poland, burnt-out
Germany.

The earlier reading has been kept, as in all published versions.

- 212 EAVESDROPPER. This poem was written in slightly longer form on 15 October 1962, but reduced to its present length, by simple deletions, on 31 December. No final copy was made.

1963

From the beginning of this year, in what was to be the coldest winter in England since 1947, SP lived at 23 Fitzroy Road.

On 23 January her novel The Bell Jar, published under the pseudonym Victoria Lucas, came out in London.

On 11 February she died by her own hand.

- 213 SHEEP IN FOG. Introducing this poem in a reading prepared for BBC radio, SP said: 'In this poem, the speaker's horse is proceeding at a slow, cold walk down a hill of macadam to the stable at the bottom. It is December. It is foggy. In the fog there are sheep.'

It was first written on 2 December 1962. The last three lines of the original version were replaced by the present final three-line verse on 28 January 1963.

- 215 TOTEM. She explained this poem in conversation as 'a pile of interconnected images, like a totem pole'.

1.5 Dawn gilds the farmers . . . : She imagines the West country farmers in the early morning train, on their way up to London to the great meat market at Smithfield, whose 'white towers' she had been able to see from Primrose Hill during her first residence in London.

1. 11 In the bowl . . . : A pyrex bowl, used on different occasions both for her son's afterbirth and the cleaned body of a hare.

1. 18 a counterfeit snake: an articulated toy snake of scorch-patterned bamboo joints.

Notes

Translation

The only translations by Sylvia Plath that survive are four sonnets of Ronsard and one poem by Rilke, made in the course of studying French and German literature. Following is her literal rendering of Rilke's 'A Prophet', made about 1954:

Dilated by immense visions bright with the firelight from the outcome of judgments, which never destroy him, are his eyes, gazing out from under thick brows. And in his inmost soul already words are raising themselves again.

Not his words (for what would his be and how indulgently would they be lavished?)
but others, severe: pieces of iron, stones, which he must dissolve like a volcano

in order to cast them forth in the outburst from his mouth, which curses and damns;
while his forehead, like the face of a hound seeks to transmit that which the Master chooses within his mind:

this One, this One, whom they all might find
if they followed the great pointing hand which reveals him as he is: enraged.

A Concordance with Published Volumes

Following are the contents of the four previously published volumes of Sylvia Plath's poetry, with the poems listed according to the numbers they have been given in the present collected edition:

The Colossus (London, 1960; New York, 1962): Nos. 13, 15, 17, 35, 37, 38, 44, 47, 49, 50, 55, 59, 60, 61, 63, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 87, 89, 91, 92, 93, 94, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 102, 104, 105, 106, 112, 113, 114, 117, 119, 120, 121

Ariel (London and New York, 1965): Nos. 122, 123, 138, 142, 147, 153, 158, 163, 167, 170, 173, 176, 177, 178, 180, 182, 183, 184, 188, 191, 194, 195, 196, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 204, 205, 206, 213, 214, 215, 217, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224

Crossing the Water (London and New York, 1971): Nos. 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 134, 135, 136, 137, 140, 141, 143, 144, 145, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 154, 155, 159, 160, 161, 162, 165, 166, 193

Winter Trees (London, 1971; New York, 1972): Nos. 157, 164, 168, 172, 175, 179, 186, 187, 190, 192, 197, 203, 208, 209, 210, 211, 216, 218, 219

JUVENILIA

A Selection of Fifty Early Poems

The fifty poems printed here are a selection from Sylvia Plath's work produced mainly in the three or four years preceding 1956. Many of them were written as class assignments for her English professor at Smith College, Alfred Young Fisher, and the typescripts bear his profuse and detailed comments. In most cases, she seems to have followed his textual suggestions.

Bitter Strawberries

All that morning in the strawberry field
They talked about the Russians.
Squatted down between the rows
We listened.
We heard the head woman say,
'Bomb them off the map.'

Horseflies buzzed, paused and stung.
And the taste of strawberries
Turned thick and sour.

Mary said slowly, 'I've got a fella
Old enough to go.
If anything should happen . . .'

The sky was high and blue.
Two children laughed at tag
In the tall grass,
Leaping awkward and long-legged
Across the rutted road.
The fields were full of bronzed young men
Hoeing lettuce, weeding celery.

'The draft is passed,' the woman said.
'We ought to have bombed them long ago.'
'Don't,' pleaded the little girl
With blond braids.

Juvenilia

Her blue eyes swam with vague terror.
She added pettishly, 'I can't see why
You're always talking this way . . .'
'Oh, stop worrying, Nelda,'
Snapped the woman sharply.
She stood up, a thin commanding figure
In faded dungarees.
Businesslike she asked us, 'How many quarts?'
She recorded the total in her notebook,
And we all turned back to picking.

Kneeling over the rows,
We reached among the leaves
With quick practiced hands,
Cupping the berry protectively before
Snapping off the stem
Between thumb and forefinger.

Family Reunion

Outside in the street I hear
A car door slam; voices coming near;
Incoherent scraps of talk
And high heels clicking up the walk;
The doorbell rends the noonday heat
With copper claws;
A second's pause.
The dull drums of my pulses beat
Against a silence wearing thin.
The door now opens from within.
Oh, hear the clash of people meeting—
The laughter and the screams of greeting:

Fat always, and out of breath,
A greasy smack on every cheek
From Aunt Elizabeth;
There, that's the pink, pleased squeak
Of Cousin Jane, our spinster with
The faded eyes
And hands like nervous butterflies;
While rough as splintered wood
Across them all
Rasps the jarring baritone of Uncle Paul;

Juvenilia

The youngest nephew gives a fretful whine
And drools at the reception line.

Like a diver on a lofty spar of land
Atop the flight of stairs I stand.
A whirlpool leers at me,
Absorbent as a sponge;
I cast off my identity
And make the fatal plunge.

Female Author

All day she plays at chess with the bones of the world:
Favored (while suddenly the rains begin Beyond the window) she lies on cushions curled
And nibbles an occasional bonbon of sin.

Prim, pink-breasted, feminine, she nurses
Chocolate fancies in rose-papered rooms
Where polished highboys whisper creaking curses
And hothouse roses shed immoral blooms.

The garnets on her fingers twinkle quick
And blood reflects across the manuscript;
She muses on the odor, sweet and sick,
Of festering gardenias in a crypt,

And lost in subtle metaphor, retreats
From gray child faces crying in the streets.

April 18

the slime of all my yesterdays
rots in the hollow of my skull and if my stomach would contract because of some explicable phenomenon such as pregnancy or constipation

I would not remember you

Juvenilia

or that because of sleep infrequent as a moon of greencheese that because of food nourishing as violet leaves that because of these and in a few fatal yards of grass in a few spaces of sky and treetops

a future was lost yesterday as easily and irretrievably
as a tennis ball at twilight

Gold mouths cry

Gold mouths cry with the green young certainty of the bronze boy
remembering a thousand autumns
and how a hundred thousand leaves came sliding down his shoulderblades persuaded by his bronze heroic reason.
We ignore the coming doom of gold and we are glad in this bright metal season.
Even the dead laugh among the goldenrod.

The bronze boy stands kneedeep in centuries,
and never grieves,
remembering a thousand autumns,
with sunlight of a thousand years upon his lips
and his eyes gone blind with leaves.

Dirge for a Joker

Always in the middle of a kiss
Came the profane stimulus to cough;
Always from the pulpit during service
Leaned the devil prompting you to laugh.

Behind mock-ceremony of your grief
Lurked the burlesque instinct of the ham;
You never altered your amused belief
That life was a mere monumental sham.

Juvenilia

From the comic accident of birth
To the final grotesque joke of death
Your malady of sacrilegious mirth
Spread gay contagion with each clever breath.

Now you must play the straight man for a term
And tolerate the humor of the worm.

To Eva Descending the Stair

A Villanelle

Clocks cry: stillness is a lie, my dear;
The wheels revolve, the universe keeps running.
(Proud you halt upon the spiral stair.)

The asteroids turn traitor in the air,
And planets plot with old elliptic cunning;
Clocks cry: stillness is a lie, my dear.

Red the unraveled rose sings in your hair:
Blood springs eternal if the heart be burning.
(Proud you halt upon the spiral stair.)

Cryptic stars wind up the atmosphere,
In solar schemes the tilted suns go turning;
Clocks cry: stillness is a lie, my dear.

Loud the immortal nightingales declare:
Love flames forever if the flesh be yearning.
(Proud you halt upon the spiral stair.)

Circling zodiac compels the year.
Intolerant beauty never will be learning.
Clocks cry: stillness is a lie, my dear.
(Proud you halt upon the spiral stair.)

Cinderella

The prince leans to the girl in scarlet heels,
Her green eyes slant, hair flaring in a fan
Of silver as the rondo slows; now reels
Begin on tilted violins to span

Juvenilia

The whole revolving tall glass palace hall -
Where guests slide gliding into light like wine;
Rose candles flicker on the lilac wall
Reflecting in a million flagons' shine,

And gilded couples all in whirling trance
Follow holiday revel begun long since,
Until near twelve the strange girl all at once
Guilt-stricken halts, pales, clings to the prince

As amid the hectic music and cocktail talk
She hears the caustic ticking of the clock.

Jilted

My thoughts are crabbed and sallow,
My tears like vinegar,
Or the bitter blinking yellow
Of an acetic star.

Tonight the caustic wind, love,
Gossips late and soon,
And I wear the wry-faced pucker of
The sour lemon moon.

While like an early summer plum,
Puny, green, and tart,
Droops upon its wizened stem
My lean, unripened heart.

Sonnet: To Eva

All right, let's say you could take a skull and break it
The way you'd crack a clock; you'd crush the bone
Between steel palms of inclination, take it,
Observing the wreck of metal and rare stone.

This was a woman: her loves and stratagems
Betrayed in mute geometry of broken
Cogs and disks, inane mechanic whims,
And idle coils of jargon yet unspoken.

Juvenilia

Not man nor demigod could put together
The scraps of rusted reverie, the wheels
Of notched tin platitudes concerning weather,
Perfume, politics, and fixed ideals.

The idiot bird leaps up and drunken leans
To chirp the hour in lunatic thirteens.

Bluebeard

I am sending back the key
that let me into bluebeard's study;
because he would make love to me
I am sending back the key;
in his eye's darkroom I can see my X-rayed heart, dissected body:
I am sending back the key
that let me into bluebeard's study.

Aquatic Nocturne

deep in liquid indigo turquoise slivers
of dilute light

quiver in thin streaks of bright tinfoil
on mobile jet:

pale flounder
waver by tilting silver:

in the shallows agile minnows flicker gilt:

grapeblue mussels
dilate lithe and pliant valves:

Juvenilia

dull lunar globes
of bulbous jellyfish
glow milkgreen:

eels twirl
in wily spirals
on elusive tails:

adroit lobsters amble darkly olive on shrewd claws:

down where sound
comes blunt and wan
like the bronze tone
of a sunken gong.

Notes to a Neophyte

Take the general mumble, blunt as the faceless gut
of an anonymous clam,
vernacular as the strut
of a slug or small preamble
by snail under hump of home:

metamorphose the mollusk of vague vocabulary
with structural discipline:
stiffen the ordinary malleable mask
to the granite grin of bone.

For such a tempering task,
heat furnace of paradox
in an artifice of ice;
make love and logic mix,
and remember, if tedious risk
seems to jeopardize this:

it was a solar turbine
gave molten earth a frame,

Juvenilia

and it took the diamond stone
a weight of world and time being crystallized from carbon to the hardest substance known.

Metamorphoses of the Moon

Cold moons withdraw, refusing to come to terms with the pilot who dares all heaven's harms to raid the zone where fate begins,
flings silver gauntlet of his plane at space,
demanding satisfaction; no duel takes place:
the mute air merely thins and thins.

Sky won't be drawn closer: absolute,
it holds aloof, a shrouded parachute always the same distance from the falling man who never will abstain from asking, but inventive, hopes; in vain challenges the silent dome.

No violation but gives dividends of slow disaster: the bitten apple ends
the eden of bucolic eve:
understanding breaks through the skull's shell and like a cuckoo in the nest makes hell for naïve larks who starve and grieve.

What prince has ever seized the shining grail
but that it turned into a milking pail?
It's likely that each secret sought will prove to be some common parlor fake:
a craft with paint and powder that can make cleopatra from a slut.

For most exquisite truths are artifice framed in disciplines of fire and ice which conceal incongruous elements like dirty socks and scraps of day-old bread and egg-stained plates; perhaps such sophistry can placate us.

Juvenilia

But yet the perverse imp within will probe beneath the fringes of forbidden robe, seduced by curiosity,
until in disenchantment our eyes glut themselves on the clay toes and short clubfoot which mar the idol's sanctity.

The choice between the mica mystery of moonlight or the pockmarked face we see through the scrupulous telescope is always to be made: innocence is a fairy-tale; intelligence hangs itself on its own rope.

Either way we choose, the angry witch will punish us for saying which is which;
in fatal equilibrium
we poise on perilous poles that freeze us in a cross of contradiction, racked between the fact of doubt, the faith of dream.

Dialogue En Route

'If only something would happen!'
sighed Eve, the elevator-girl ace, to Adam the arrogant matador
as they shot past the forty-ninth floor in a rocketing vertical clockcase, fast as a fallible falcon.

'I wish millionaire uncles and aunts would umbrella like liberal toadstools
in a shower of Chanel, Dior gowns, filet mignon and walloping wines,
a pack of philanthropical fools to indulge my extravagant wants.'

Erect in his folderol cloak sham Adam the matador cried:
'O may G-men all die of the choler, and my every chimerical dollar breed innumerable bills, bona fide:
a hot hyperbolical joke!'

Juvenilia

Said Eve: 'I wish venomous nematodes were bewitched to assiduous lovers, each one an inveterate gallant with Valentino's crack technical talent for recreation down under the covers:
erotic and elegant episodes.'

Added Adam, that simian swell,
with his modish opposable thumb:
'O for ubiquitous free aphrodisiacs,
and for pumpkins to purr into Cadillacs and voluptuous Venus to come waltzing up to me out of her cockle-shell.'

Breaking through gravity's garrison,
Eve, the elevator-girl ace,
and Adam the arrogant matador shot past the ninety-fourth floor to corral the conundrum of space
at its cryptic celestial origin.

They both watched the barometer sink
as the world swiveled round in its orbit and thousands were born and dropped dead, when, from the inane overhead (too quick for the pair to absorb it), came a gargantuan galactic wink.

To a Jilted Lover

Cold on my narrow cot I lie and in sorrow look through my window-square of black:

figured in the midnight sky,
a mosaic of stars
diagrams the falling years,

while from the moon, my lover's eye chills me to death
with radiance of his frozen faith.

Juvenilia

Once I wounded him with so small a thorn
I never thought his flesh would burn or that the heat within would grow until he stood incandescent as a god;

now there is nowhere I can go to hide from him:
moon and sun reflect his flame.

In the morning all shall be the same again:
stars pale before the angry dawn;

the gilded cock will turn for me
the rack of time until the peak of noon has come and by that glare, my love will see how I am still blazing in my golden hell.

The Dream

'Last night,' he said, 'I slept well except for two uncanny dreams that came before the change of weather
when I rose and opened all the shutters to let warm wind feather with wet plumage through my rooms.

'In the first dream I was driving down the dark in a black hearse with many men until I crashed
a light, and right away a raving woman followed us and rushed to halt our car in headlong course.

Juvenilia

'Crying, she came to the island where we stopped, and with a curse demanded that I pay a fine for being such a rude assailant and damaging the whole unseen lighting plant of the universe.

'Behind me then I heard a voice warning me to hold her hand and kiss her on the mouth for she loved me and a brave embrace would avoid all penalty.
"I know, I know," I told my friend.

'But yet I waited to be fined and took the woman's bright subpoena (while she washed the way with tears),
then drove to you upon the wind. . . .
I do not tell you the nightmare which occurred to me in China.'

Sonnet: To Time

Today we move in jade and cease with garnet
Amid the ticking jeweled clocks that mark
Our years. Death comes in a casual steel car, yet
We vaunt our days in neon and scorn the dark.

But outside the diabolic steel of this
Most plastic-windowed city, I can hear
The lone wind raving in the gutter, his Voice crying exclusion in my ear.

So cry for the pagan girl left picking olives
Beside a sunblue sea, and mourn the flagon
Raised to toast a thousand kings, for all gives Sorrow; weep for the legendary dragon.

Time is a great machine of iron bars
That drains eternally the milk of stars.

Juvenilia

The Trial of Man

The ordinary milkman brought that dawn
Of destiny, delivered to the door
In square hermetic bottles, while the sun
Ruled decree of doomsday on the floor.

The morning paper clocked the headline hour
You drank your coffee like original sin,
And at the jet-plane anger of God's roar
Got up to let the suave blue policeman in.

Impaled upon a stern angelic stare
You were condemned to serve the legal limit
And burn to death within your neon hell.

Now, disciplined in the strict ancestral chair,
You sit, solemn-eyed, about to vomit,
The future an electrode in your skull.

April Aubade

Worship this world of watercolor mood in glass pagodas hung with veils of green where diamonds jangle hymns within the blood and sap ascends the steeple of the vein.

A saintly sparrow jargons madrigals to waken dreamers in the milky dawn, while tulips bow like a college of cardinals
before that papal paragon, the sun.

Christened in a spindrift of snowdrop stars,
where on pink-fluted feet the pigeons pass
and jonquils sprout like solomon's metaphors,
my love and I go garlanded with grass.

Again we are deluded and infer that somehow we are younger than we were.

Juvenilia

Go get the goodly squab

Go get the goodly squab in gold-lobed corn
And pluck the droll-flecked quail where thick they lie;
Reap the round blue pigeon from roof ridge,
But let the fast-feathered eagle fly.

Let the fast-feathered eagle fly
And the skies crack through with thunder;
Hide, hide, in the deep nest
Lest the lightning strike you to cinder.

Go snare the sleeping bear in leaf-lined den
And trap the muskrat napping in slack sun;
Dupe the dull sow lounging snout in mud,
But let the galloping antelope run.

Let the galloping antelope run
And the snow blow up behind;
Hide, hide, in the safe cave
Lest the blizzard drive you blind.

Go cull the purple snails from slothful shells
And bait the drowsing trout by the brook's brim;
Gather idle oysters from green shoals,
But let the quicksilver mackerel swim.

Let the quicksilver mackerel swim
Where the black wave topples down;
Hide, hide, in the warm port
Lest the water drag you to drown.

Trio of Love Songs

(1)

Major faults in granite mark a mortal lack,
yet individual planet
directs all zodiac.

Diagram of mountains
graphs a fever chart,

Juvenilia

yet astronomic fountains
exit from the heart.

Tempo of strict ocean
metronomes the blood,
yet ordered lunar motion
proceeds from private flood.

Drama of each season
plots doom from above, yet all angelic reason
moves to our minor love.

(2)

My love for you is more athletic than a verb, agile as a star
the tents of sun absorb.

Treading circus tightropes
of each syllable,
the brazen jackanapes
would fracture if he fell.

Acrobat of space,
the daring adjective plunges for a phrase
describing arcs of love.

Nimble as a noun,
he catapults in air;
a planetary swoon
could climax his career,

but adroit conjunction eloquently shall link to his lyric action
a periodic goal.

Juvenilia

(3)

If you dissect a bird
to diagram the tongue,
you'll cut the chord
articulating song.

If you flay a beast
to marvel at the mane, you'll wreck the rest
from which the fur began.

If you assault a fish
to analyse the fin,
your hands will crush
the generating bone.

If you pluck out my heart
to find what makes it move, you'll halt the clock
that syncopates our love.

Lament

A Villanelle

The sting of bees took away my father who walked in a swarming shroud of wings
and scorned the tick of the falling weather.

Lightning licked in a yellow lather
but missed the mark with snaking fangs:
the sting of bees took away my father.

Trouncing the sea like a raging bather,
he rode the flood in a pride of prongs
and scorned the tick of the falling weather.

A scowl of sun struck down my mother,
tolling her grave with golden gongs,
but the sting of bees took away my father.

He counted the guns of god a bother,
laughed at the ambush of angels' tongues,
and scorned the tick of the falling weather.

Juvenilia

O ransack the four winds and find another man who can mangle the grin of kings:
the sting of bees took away my father
who scorned the tick of the falling weather.

Doomsday

The idiot bird leaps out and drunken leans
Atop the broken universal clock:
The hour is crowed in lunatic thirteens.

Our painted stages fall apart by scenes
While all the actors halt in mortal shock:
The idiot bird leaps out and drunken leans.

Streets crack through in havoc-split ravines
As the doomstruck city crumbles block by block:
The hour is crowed in lunatic thirteens.

Fractured glass flies down in smithereens;
Our lucky relics have been put in hock:
The idiot bird leaps out and drunken leans.

God's monkey wrench has blasted all machines;
We never thought to hear the holy cock:
The hour is crowed in lunatic thirteens.

Too late to ask if end was worth the means,
Too late to calculate the toppling stock:
The idiot bird leaps out and drunken leans,
The hour is crowed in lunatic thirteens.

Moonsong at Morning

O moon of illusion, enchanting men
with tinsel vision
along the vein,

cocks crow up a rival to mock your face

Juvenilia

and eclipse that oval which conjured us

to leave our reason and come to this fabled horizon of caprice.

Dawn shall dissever your silver veil which let lover think lover beautiful;

the light of logic
will show us that all moonstruck magic is dissolute:

no sweet disguises
withstand that stare whose candor exposes love's paling sphere.

In gardens of squalor
the sleepers wake
as their golden jailer turns the rack;

each sacred body
night yielded up is mangled by study
of microscope:

facts have blasted
the angel's frame
and stern truth twisted
the radiant limb.

Reflect in terror
the scorching sun:
dive at your mirror
and drown within.

Juvenilia

Doom of Exiles

Now we, returning from the vaulted domes
Of our colossal sleep, come home to find
A tall metropolis of catacombs
Erected down the gangways of our mind.

Green alleys where we reveled have become
The infernal haunt of demon dangers;
Both seraph song and violins are dumb;
Each clock tick consecrates the death of strangers.

Backward we traveled to reclaim the day
Before we fell, like Icarus, undone;
All we find are altars in decay
And profane words scrawled black across the sun.

Still, stubbornly we try to crack the nut
In which the riddle of our race is shut.

16 April 1954

The Dispossessed

The enormous mortgage must be paid somehow,
so if you can dream up any saving plan
tell me quick, darling, tell me now.

An odd disease has hit our holy cow,
no milk or honey fills the empty can;
the enormous mortgage must be paid somehow.

If you've a plot to halt the lethal flow of weevil tribe and locust caravan
tell me quick, darling, tell me now.

Our creditor advances with a bow to cast lock, stock and barrel under ban;
the enormous mortgage must be paid somehow.

If you can think of means to mend the vow
we broke the minute that the world began tell me quick, darling, tell me now.

Juvenilia

We've squandered all the banker will allow and mislaid every vital talisman;
the enormous mortgage must be paid somehow:
tell me quick, darling, tell me now!

Admonitions

Oh never try to knock on rotten wood or play another card game when you've won;
never try to know more than you should.

The magic golden apples all look good although the wicked witch has poisoned one.
oh never try to knock on rotten wood.

From here the moon seems smooth as angel-food,
from here you can't see spots upon the sun;
never try to know more than you should.

The suave dissembling cobra wears a hood and swaggers like a proper gentleman;
oh never try to knock on rotten wood.

While angels wear a wakeful attitude disguise beguiles and mortal mischief's done:
never try to know more than you should.

For deadly secrets strike when understood and lucky stars all exit on the run:
never try to knock on rotten wood,
never try to know more than you should.

Never try to trick me with a kiss

Never try to trick me with a kiss
Pretending that the birds are here to stay;
The dying man will scoff in scorn at this.

A stone can masquerade where no heart is
And virgins rise where lustful Venus lay:
Never try to trick me with a kiss.

Juvenilia

Our noble doctor claims the pain is his,
While stricken patients let him have his say;
The dying man will scoff in scorn at this.

Each virile bachelor dreads paralysis,
The old maid in the gable cries all day:
Never try to trick me with a kiss.

The suave eternal serpents promise bliss
To mortal children longing to be gay;
The dying man will scoff in scorn at this.

Sooner or later something goes amiss;
The singing birds pack up and fly away;
So never try to trick me with a kiss:
The dying man will scoff in scorn at this.

The Dead

Revolving in oval loops of solar speed,
Couched in cauls of clay as in holy robes,
Dead men render love and war no heed,
Lulled in the ample womb of the full-tilt globe.

No spiritual Caesars are these dead;
They want no proud paternal kingdom come;
And when at last they blunder into bed
World-wrecked, they seek only oblivion.

Rolled round with goodly loam and cradled deep,
These bone shanks will not wake immaculate
To trumpet-toppling dawn of doomstruck day:
They loll forever in colossal sleep;
Nor can God's stern, shocked angels cry them up
From their fond, final, infamous decay.

Danse macabre

Down among strict roots and rocks, eclipsed beneath blind lid of land goes the grass-embroidered box.

Juvenilia

Arranged in sheets of ice, the fond skeleton still craves to have fever from the world behind.

Hands reach back to relics of nipped moons, extinct and cold,
frozen in designs of love.

At twelve, each skull is aureoled with recollection's ticking thorns winding up the raveled mold.

Needles nag like unicorns,
assault a sleeping virgin's shroud
till her stubborn body burns.

Lured by brigands in the blood,
shanks of bone now resurrect,
inveigled to forsake the sod.

Eloping from their slabs, abstract
couples court by milk of moon:
sheer silver blurs their phantom act.

Luminous, the town of stone anticipates the warning sound of cockcrow crying up the dawn.

With kiss of cinders, ghosts descend, compelled to deadlock underground.

Circus in Three Rings

In the circus tent of a hurricane designed by a drunken god
my extravagant heart blows up again in a rampage of champagne-colored rain and the fragments whirl like a weather vane
while the angels all applaud.

Daring as death and debonair
I invade my lion's den;
a rose of jeopardy flames in my hair

Juvenilia

yet I flourish my whip with a fatal flair defending my perilous wounds with a chair while the gnawings of love begin.

Mocking as Mephistopheles,
eclipsed by magician's disguise,
my demon of doom tilts on a trapeze,
winged rabbits revolving about his knees,
only to vanish with devilish ease
in a smoke that sears my eyes.

Prologue to Spring

The winter landscape hangs in balance now,
Transfixed by glare of blue from gorgon's eye;
The skaters freeze within a stone tableau.

Air alters into glass and the whole sky
Grows brittle as a tilted china bowl;
Hill and valley stiffen row on row.

Each fallen leaf is trapped by spell of steel,
Crimped like fern in the quartz atmosphere;
Repose of sculpture holds the country still.

What countermagic can undo the snare
Which has stopped the season in its tracks
And suspended all that might occur?

Locked in crystal caskets are the lakes,
Yet as we wonder what can come of ice
Green-singing birds explode from all the rocks.

Song for a Revolutionary Love

O throw it away, throw it all away on the wind:
first let the heavenly foliage go,
and page by pride the good books blow;
scatter smug angels with your hand.

Juvenilia

Undo the doings of the fathering age:
 chuck the broken acropolis out,
 fling the seven wonders after that with struts and props of the holy stage.

Disrupt the calendars next; send the duteous packing without a compass or scale to chart the measure of fortune's wheel;
let nothing be left to swaddle us.

Unravel antique samplers, unwind the clocks,
 till unruly children stream down the sky and old maids on impromptu petticoats fly with begonia and building blocks.

Now empty boxes of the hoodwinked dead upon the pouring air until god hears from his great sunstruck hell
the chittering crackpots that he made.

Then hurl the bare world like a bluegreen ball back into the holocaust to burn away the humbug rust and again together begin it all.

Sonnet to Satan

In darkroom of your eye the moonly mind somersaults to counterfeit eclipse:
bright angels black out over logic's land
under shutter of their handicaps.

Commanding that corkscrew comet jet forth ink to pitch the white world down in swiveling flood,
you overcast all order's noonday rank and turn god's radiant photograph to shade.

Steepling snake in that contrary light invades the dilate lens of genesis to print your flaming image in birthspot with characters no cockcrow can deface.

O maker of proud planet's negative, obscure the scalding sun till no clocks move.

Juvenilia

A Sorcerer Bids Farewell to Seem

I'm through with this grand looking-glass hotel where adjectives play croquet with flamingo nouns;
methinks I shall absent me for a while from rhetoric of these rococo queens.
Item: chuck out royal rigmarole of props
and auction off each rare white-rabbit verb;
send my muse Alice packing with gaudy scraps of mushroom simile and gryphon garb.

My native sleight-of-hand is wearing out:
mad hatter's hat yields no new metaphor,
the jabberwock will not translate his songs:
it's time to vanish like the cheshire cat alone to that authentic island where cabbages are cabbages; kings: kings.

Midsummer Mobile

Begin by dipping your brush into clear light.
Then syncopate a sky of Dufy-blue
With tilted spars of sloops revolved by white
Gulls in a feathered fugue of wings. Outdo

Seurat: fleck schooner flanks with sun and set
A tremolo of turquoise quivering in
The tessellated wave. Now nimbly let
A tinsel pizzicato on fish fin

Be plucked from caves of dappled amber where
A mermaid odalisque lolls at her ease
With orange scallops tangled in wet hair,
Fresh from the mellow palette of Matisse:

Suspend this day, so singularly designed,
Like a rare Calder mobile in your mind.

Juvenilia

On Looking into the Eyes of a Demon Lover

Here are two pupils whose moons of black transform to cripples
all who look:

each lovely lady who peers inside takes on the body
of a toad.

Within these mirrors
the world inverts:
the fond admirer's burning darts

turn back to injure the thrusting hand
and inflame to danger
the scarlet wound.

I sought my image
in the scorching glass, for what fire could damage
a witch's face?

So I stared in that furnace where beauties char
but found radiant Venus reflected there.

Insolent storm strikes at the skull

Insolent storm strikes at the skull,
assaults the sleeping citadel, knocking the warden to his knees
in impotence, to sue for peace, while wantonly amused by this,
wind wakes the whole metropolis.
Skeptic cyclones try the bone of strict and sacred skeleton;
polemic gales prove point by point

Juvenilia

how flesh cleaves fast to frozen joint,
and a hurricane headache rocks
the temples of the orthodox.

Abracadabra of the rain
drowns Noah's prayers with distain, drives priest and prostitute in doorways,
bereft of Moses and of mores;
no ancient blueprint builds an ark
to navigate this final dark.
River floods transcend the level
demarcating good from evil, and casuist arguments run riot
inundating Eden's quiet:
all absolutes that angels give flounder in the relative.

Lightning conjures God's globe off its orbit; neither law nor prophets can rectify truant intent to doublecross the firmament.
Now earth rejects communication with heaven's autocratic station, and violates celestial custom
by seceding from the solar system.
Scintillant irony inspires independent rebel fires till the Announcer's voice is lost in heresies of holocaust.

Denouement

The telegram says you have gone away
And left our bankrupt circus on its own;
There is nothing more for me to say.

The maestro gives the singing birds their pay
And they buy tickets for the tropic zone;
The telegram says you have gone away.

The clever woolly dogs have had their day
They shoot the dice for one remaining bone;
There is nothing more for me to say.

Juvenilia

The lion and the tigers turn to clay
And Jumbo sadly trumpets into stone;
The telegram says you have gone away.

The morbid cobra's wits have run astray;
He rents his poisons out by telephone;
There is nothing more for me to say.

The colored tents all topple in the bay;
The magic sawdust writes: address unknown.
The telegram says you have gone away;
There is nothing more for me to say.

Two Lovers and a Beachcomber by the Real Sea

Cold and final, the imagination
Shuts down its fabled summer house;
Blue views are boarded up; our sweet vacation
Dwindles in the hour-glass.

Thoughts that found a maze of mermaid hair
Tangling in the tide's green fall
Now fold their wings like bats and disappear
Into the attic of the skull.

We are not what we might be; what we are Outlaws all extrapolation
Beyond the interval of now and here:
White whales are gone with the white ocean.

A lone beachcomber squats among the wrack
Of kaleidoscopic shells
Probing fractured Venus with a stick
Under a tent of taunting gulls.

No sea-change decks the sunken shank of bone
That chuckles in backtrack of the wave;
Though the mind like an oyster labors on and on,
A grain of sand is all we have.

Water will run by rule; the actual sun
Will scrupulously rise and set;
No little man lives in the exacting moon
And that is that, is that, is that.

Juvenilia

Black Pine Tree in an Orange Light

Tell me what you see in it:
the pine tree like a Rorschach-blot black against the orange light:

Plant an orange pumpkin patch which at twelve will quaintly hatch nine black mice with ebon coach, or walk into the orange and make a devil's cataract of black obscure god's eye with corkscrew fleck;

put orange mistress half in sun,
half in shade, until her skin
tattoos black leaves on tangerine.

Read black magic or holy book or lyric of love in the orange and black till dark is conquered by orange cock,

but more pragmatic than all of this,
say how crafty the painter was to make orange and black ambiguous.

Terminal

Riding home from credulous blue domes,
the dreamer reins his waking appetite in panic at the crop of catacombs sprung up like plague of toadstools overnight:
refectories where he reveled have become the hostelry of worms, rapacious blades who weave within the skeleton's white womb
a caviare decay of rich brocades.

Turning the tables of this grave gourmet,
the fiendish butler saunters in and serves for feast the sweetest meat of hell's chef d'œuvres:
his own pale bride upon a flaming tray:
parsleyed with elegies, she lies in state waiting for his grace to consecrate.

Juvenilia

Love Is a Parallax

'Perspective betrays with its dichotomy:
train tracks always meet, not here, but only in the impossible mind's eye;
horizons beat a retreat as we embark on sophist seas to overtake that mark where wave pretends to drench real sky.'

'Well then, if we agree, it is not odd that one man's devil is another's god or that the solar spectrum is a multitude of shaded grays; suspense on the quicksands of ambivalence is our life's whole nemesis.'

So we could rave on, darling, you and I,
until the stars tick out a lullaby about each cosmic pro and con;
nothing changes, for all the blazing of our drastic jargon, but clock hands that move implacably from twelve to one.

We raise our arguments like sitting ducks to knock them down with logic or with luck
and contradict ourselves for fun;
the waitress holds our coats and we put on the raw wind like a scarf; love is a faun who insists his playmates run.

Now you, my intellectual leprechaun, would have me swallow the entire sun
like an enormous oyster, down the ocean in one gulp: you say a mark of comet hara-kiri through the dark should inflame the sleeping town.

So kiss: the drunks upon the curb and dames
in dubious doorways forget their monday names,
caper with candles in their heads;
the leaves applaud, and santa claus flies in scattering candy from a zeppelin, playing his prodigal charades.

Juvenilia

The moon leans down to look; the tilting fish in the rare river wink and laugh; we lavish blessings right and left and cry hello, and then hello again in deaf churchyard ears until the starlit stiff graves all carol in reply.

Now kiss again: till our strict father leans to call for curtain on our thousand scenes;
brazen actors mock at him,
multiply pink harlequins and sing
in gay ventriloquy from wing to wing
while footlights flare and houselights dim.

Tell now, we taunt, where black or white begins and separate the flutes from violins:
the algebra of absolutes explodes in a kaleidoscope of shapes that jar, while each polemic jackanapes joins his enemies' recruits.

The paradox is that 'the play's the thing':
though prima donna pouts and critic stings,
there burns throughout the line of words,
the cultivated act, a fierce brief fusion which dreamers call real, and realists, illusion:
an insight like the flight of birds:

Arrows that lacerate the sky, while knowing the secret of their ecstasy's in going;
some day, moving, one will drop,
and, dropping, die, to trace a wound that heals only to reopen as flesh congeals:
cycling phoenix never stops.

So we shall walk barefoot on walnut shells of withered worlds, and stamp out puny hells and heavens till the spirits squeak surrender: to build our bed as high as jack's bold beanstalk; lie and love till sharp scythe hacks away our rationed days and weeks.

Then let the blue tent topple, stars rain down,
and god or void appall us till we drown
in our own tears: today we start

Juvenilia

to pay the piper with each breath, yet love knows not of death nor calculus above
the simple sum of heart plus heart.

Aerialist

Each night, this adroit young lady
Lies among sheets
Shredded fine as snowflakes
Until dream takes her body
From bed to strict tryouts
In tightrope acrobatics.

Nightly she balances
Cat-clever on perilous wire
In a gigantic hall,
Footing her delicate dances
To whipcrack and roar
Which speak her maestro's will.

Gilded, coming correct
Across that sultry air,
She steps, halts, hung
In dead center of her act
As great weights drop all about her
And commence to swing.

Lessoned thus, the girl
Parries the lunge and menace
Of every pendulum;
By deft duck and twirl
She draws applause; bright harness
Bites keen into each brave limb

Then, this tough stint done, she curtsies
And serenely plummets down
To traverse glass floor
And get safe home; but, turning with trained eyes,
Tiger-tamer and grinning clown
Squat, bowling black balls at her.

Tall trucks roll in
With a thunder like lions; all aims
And lumbering moves

Juvenilia

To trap this outrageous nimble queen
And shatter to atoms
Her nine so slippery lives.

Sighting the stratagem
Of black weight, black ball, black truck,
With a last artful dodge she leaps
Through hoop of that hazardous dream
To sit up stark awake
As the loud alarmclock stops.

Now as penalty for her skill,
By day she must walk in dread
Steel gauntlets of traffic, terror-struck
Lest, out of spite, the whole
Elaborate scaffold of sky overhead
Fall racketing finale on her luck.

Morning in the Hospital Solarium

Sunlight strikes a glass of grapefruit juice, flaring green through philodendron leaves in this surrealistic house of pink and beige, impeccable bamboo, patronized by convalescent wives;
heat shadows waver noiseless in bright window-squares until the women seem to float like dream-fish in the languid limbo of an undulant aquarium.

Morning: another day, and talk taxis indolent on whispered wheels;
the starched white coat, the cat's paw walk,
herald distraction: a flock of pastel pills,
turquoise, rose, sierra mauve; needles that sting no more than love: a room where time ticks tempo to the casual climb of mercury in graded tubes, where ills slowly concede to sun and serum.

Like petulant parakeets corked up in cages of intricate spunglass routine,
the women wait, fluttering, turning pages
of magazines in elegant ennui,

Juvenilia

hoping for some incredible dark man to assault the scene and make some gaudy miracle occur, to come and like a burglar steal their fancy:
at noon, anemic husbands visit them.

The Princess and the Goblins

(1)

From fabrication springs the spiral stair up which the wakeful princess climbs to find the source of blanching light that conjured her to leave her bed of fever and ascend a visionary ladder toward the moon whose holy blue anoints her injured hand.

With finger bandaged where the waspish pin flew from the intricate embroidery and stung according to the witch's plan,

she mounts through malice of the needle's eye,
trailing her scrupulously simple gown
along bright asterisks by milky way.

Colonnades of angels nod her in where ancient, infinite, and beautiful,
her legendary godmother leans down,

spinning a single stubborn thread of wool which all the artful wizards cannot crimp to keep the young girl from her crowning goal.

Initiated by the lunar lamp,
kindling her within a steepled flame,
the princess hears the thunder and the pomp of squadrons underground abducting him who is the destination of the cord

now bound around her wrist till she redeem
this miner's boy from goblin bodyguard.

Juvenilia

(2)

Guided only by the tug and twitch of that mercurial strand, the girl goes down
the darkening stair, undoes the palace latch

and slips unseen past watchmen on the lawn
dozing around their silvered sentry box.
Across the frosted grass she marks the sheen of thread conducting her to the worn tracks made by miners up the mountainside

among the jagged mazes of the rocks.

Laboring on the tilt of that steep grade behind which the declining moon has set,
she recalls queer stories her nurse read about a goblin raid on miner's hut because new excavations came too near the chambers where their fiendish queen would sit.

Hearing a weird cackle from afar,
she clutches at the talismanic cord
and confronts a cairn of iron ore.

Suddenly a brazen song is heard from the pragmatic boy confined within,
gaily cursing the whole goblin horde.

Inviolate in the circle of that skein, looping like faith about her bleeding feet,
the princess frees the miner, stone by stone,
and leads him home to be her chosen knight.

(3)

The princess coaxes the incredulous boy through candid kitchens in the rising sun to seek the staircase by the glare of day.

Hand in hand, they scale meridian,
clambering up the creaking heights of heat until she hears the twittering machine

Juvenilia

which quaintly wove the fabric of her fate behind the zodiac on attic door with abracadabra from the alphabet.

Pointing toward the spindle's cryptic whir,
she tells the greenhorn miner to bow down and honor the great goddess of the air suspended aloft within her planet-shine.

Laughing aloud, the dazzled boy demands
why he should kneel before a silly scene

where pigeons promenade the gable-ends and coo quadrilles about the blighted core in a batch of raveled apple rinds.

At his words, the indignant godmother vanishes in a labyrinth of hay while sunlight winds its yarn upon the floor.

O never again will the extravagant straw knit up a gilded fable for the child who weeps before the desolate tableau of clockwork that makes the royal blood run cold.

Touch-and-Go

Sing praise for statuary:
For those anchored attitudes
And staunch stone eyes that stare
Through lichen-lid and passing bird-foot
At some steadfast mark
Beyond the inconstant green
Gallop and flick of light
In this precarious park

Where vivid children twirl
Like colored tops through time
Nor stop to understand
How all their play is touch-and-go:
But, Go! they cry, and the swing
Arcs up to the tall tree tip;
Go! and the merry-go-round
Hauls them round with it.

Juvenilia

And I, like the children, caught
In the mortal active verb,
Let my transient eye break a tear
For each quick, flaring game
Of child, leaf and cloud,
While on this same fugue, unmoved,
Those stonier eyes look,
Safe-socketed in rock.

Temper of Time

An ill wind is stalking
While evil stars whir
And all the gold apples
Go bad to the core.

Black birds of omen
Now prowl on the bough;
With a hiss of disaster
Sibyl's leaves blow.

Through closets of copses
Tall skeletons walk;
Nightshade and nettles
Tangle the track.

In the ramshackle meadow
Where Kilroy would pass
Lurks the sickle-shaped shadow
Of snake in the grass.

Approaching his cottage
By crooked detour,
He hears the gruff knocking
Of the wolf at the door.

His wife and his children
Hang riddled with shot,
There's a hex on the cradle
And death in the pot.

Juvenilia

Epitaph in Three Parts

(1)

Rocking across the lapis lazuli sea comes a flock of bottle battleships
each with a telegram addressed to me.

'Destroy your mirror and avoid mishaps,' chirps the first; 'live on a silent island where the water blots out all footsteps.'

The second sings: 'Receive no roving gallant who seeks to dally in the port till dawn,
for your fate involves a dark assailant.'

The third cries out as all the ships go down:
'There is more than one good way to drown.'

(2)

In the air above my island flies
a crowd of shining gulls that plunge to launch an accurate assault upon the eyes of the bold sailor falling under drench

and hunger of the surf that plucks the land, devouring green gardens inch by inch.

Blood runs in a glissando from the hand that lifts to consecrate the sunken man.
Aloft, a lone gull halts upon the wind,

announcing after gluttoned birds have flown:
'There is more than one good way to drown.'

(3)

Grasshopper goblins with green pointed ears
caper on leafstalk legs across my doorsill,
and mock the jangling rain of splintered stars.

My room is a twittering gray box with a wall
there and there and there again, and then a window which proves the sky sheer rigmarole

Juvenilia

that happens to conceal the lid of one enormous box of gray where god has gone and hidden all the bright angelic men.

A wave of grass engraves upon the stone:
'There is more than one good way to drown.'

A complete list of poems composed before 1956

This alphabetical list includes all the poems Sylvia Plath composed before 1956. The texts of all but half a dozen of these early pieces are in the Sylvia Plath Archive of juvenilia in the Lilly Library at Indiana University. The rest are with the Sylvia Plath Estate. The bracketed date following certain titles indicates the year of composition, where it is known. An asterisk before a title indicates that it is included in the selection of fifty early poems printed above, p. 299.

ARIEL

Widely considered her masterpiece, these are Sylvia Plath's final, shattering poems, which dazzle with their lyricism, their surprising vivid imagery, and their wit.

"In these poems . . . Sylvia Plath becomes herself, becomes something imaginary, newly, wildly, and subtly created." —Robert Lowell

ISBN 0-06-093172-8 (Perennial Classic paperback)

THE BELL JAR

Sylvia Plath's only novel, this is the classic, semi-autobiographical account of one woman's downward spiral into depression and madness. Also available from Caedmon Audio, performed by Academy Award winning actress Frances McDormand.

"Witty and disturbing . . . [This] is not a potboiler, nor a series of ungrateful caricatures; it is literature." —New York Times

Edited, Annotated, and with an Introduction by Ted Hughes

"By the time of her death, on 11 February 1963, Sylvia Plath had written a large bulk of poetry. To my knowledge, she never scrapped any of her poetic efforts. With one or two exceptions, she brought every piece she worked on to some final form acceptable to her, rejecting at most the odd verse, or a false head or a false tail. Her attitude to her verse was artisan-like: if she couldn't get a table out of the material, she was quite happy to get a chair, or even a toy. The end product for her was not so much a successful poem, as something that had temporarily exhausted her ingenuity. So this book contains not merely what verse she saved, but—after 1956—all she wrote. . . . The aim of the present complete edition, which contains a numbered sequence of the 224 poems written after 1956 together with a further 50 poems chosen from her pre-1956 work, is to bring Sylvia Plath's poetry together in one volume, including the various uncollected and unpublished pieces, and to set everything in as true a chronological order as is possible, so that the whole progress and achievement of this unusual poet will become accessible to readers."
