

INTERNATIONAL AND EUROPEAN TAX LAW

CASE STUDY: International exchange of informationS

A Italian resident with dual citizenship (both Italian and US) holds an account in a Swiss bank. In order to avoid the exchange of tax information, he considers transferring the account to a company established in Panama and/or denouncing the US citizenship.

He requests you professional opinion about the effectiveness of those actions